Introduction

Cain and Noah is the first production of the Musical Drama Society for the 1972-73 academic year. The production was presented by the Lawrence University Theatre company in the Experimental Theatre of the Music Drama Center.

Dedication

The production was dedicated to Mr. F. Theodore Cloak, in recognition of his many years of service to the Lawrence University Theatre department. Cloak has been associated with the theatre department for over forty years, and has made significant contributions to the success of the department.

Production

Set in a world of survival, Cain and Noah explores themes of human nature, faith, and the struggle for survival. The play is based on the biblical stories of Cain and Noah, and is set in a world of extreme violence and destruction.

Cain is portrayed as a man consumed by greed and envy, while Noah is depicted as a man of peace and moderation. The play explores the tension between these two characters, and the consequences of their actions.

Production Staff

The production was directed by Mr. F. Theodore Cloak, and was assisted by Mr. Steve Tower, who served as the musical director. The production also featured a variety of talented actors and designers, who worked tirelessly to bring the story to life.

Conclusion

Cain and Noah was a powerful and moving production, and was received with great enthusiasm by the audience. The production was a fitting tribute to Mr. F. Theodore Cloak, and a testament to the dedication and hard work of the Lawrence University Theatre company.

Appreciation

To the Editor,

In response to the article by Joe Harrichand and Benno Morris in February 3rd’s Lawrence, this office is appreciative when students remember publically that they were encouraged by us to actively choose to come here. We have a few good students to institutions whose representatives handled backside and haphazardly into believing that one can sensibly choose a college on the basis of how much one likes its administration office. That approach is degrading to the inclinations of secondary school seniors to make considered judgments about where to attend college. Our duty is to try hard to avoid it, and it’s good to hear that the approach we use is successful sometimes and that it is appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

—RICHARD M. CANTERBURY
Director of Administration

To the Editor:

As the student responsible for the operation of Film Classics I feel a need to reply to the criticisms leveled at the program by Mike Whitcomb in his article to the Editor printed in the Jan. 28 Lawrence.

1. The possibility of obtaining another arc projector for Stanley in remote. There are only 10 projectors like ours in the country—a room originally intended for a booth—a room currently going to be removed any charge at the door.

2. The auction will be next Friday, Feb. 16 at 10:00 p.m. in the Union.

3. The projector now in Youngchild cost $500 in the Spring of ’96, and at that time it was not authorized by the Board of Control who approves major expenditures for Film Classics. This was the move by Rich Rothchild that allows us to show movies in Youngchild now.

4. The respectable profit we can make is currently going to repay a debt that currently stands at $2500.00, and which was $3300.00 when I took this job.

5. Expenses for running the films is taken from the gate receipts. LCCC gave us $600 this year to help finance a school function which could be paid for out of the activity fund and remove any charge at the door.

6. On the particular night referred to, new projectors were being trained.

7. As the student responsible for the operation of Film Classics schedule there is a possibilities of obtaining another arc projector for Stanley in remote. P.S. Remember the films only run on Friday and Saturday nights at the same as next five years ago.

Now Is The Time

A survey of companies and government agencies that expect to hire college graduates this fall indicates that now is sometime after graduation in June is when seniors should be starting to look for jobs. The survey, conducted by Changing Times magazine and released February 1, shows that despite an upturn in the job market, fewer graduates, the day they would like to work for companies indicate that seniors who do get started early should find good demand for their services in most major disciplines. Personnel officers responsible to the survey described a wide range of jobs throughout the country.

72 of the organizations have or expect to have jobs for new engineering graduates. The specialties needed include aeronautical, chemical, civil, electrical, geological, industrial and mechanical engineering, among others.

50 want business and marketing majors for jobs in sales, management, planning and administration.

48 have varied openings for accountants.

Like to Dig in England?

Students are urgently invited to help in archaeological excavations in England. City center redevelopment, rapidly changing land use are threatening the disappearance of prehistoric graves, Iron-age settlements, Roman vills, fascinating relics of medieval towns throughout the country.

American students free from mid-May, and with previous archaeological experience, are invited to join an international team on a dig of the important Anglo-Saxon site at Spong Hill, where the 1973 excavation hopes to find new evidence of the early pagan settlements. Experienced helpers will receive free board for helping in this important work. Similar help is also required on work on a medieval manor near Chester.

Other students without experience are invited to join the British Archaeology Seminar at Lincoln College, Oxford, organized by the Association for Cultural Exchange. Six academic credits can be earned from participating in this low-cost program which ends by three weeks' participation on digs in different parts of England and Scotland.

These include the Association's own mesolithic dig on the island of Orney in the Hebrides which last summer was led by Queen Elizabeth, Prince Charles and Princess Anne. Cost, in clusive of Trans-Atlantic travel, scheduled jet, is $875.

J. J. CALE

REALLY

SHELTER SSN 3922

Even though his rendition of "Crazy Mama" made the charts and his "After Midnight" (as done by Eric Clapton) was also a hit, J. J. Cale remains largely unrecognized as a writer-performer. Cale's latest release, "Really," demonstrates why J. J. Cale, the writer, will continue to overshadow the singer. Cale's songs are good, basic country-folk tunes, but his performances remain to be the point of the album's cuts. In addition the backgrounds on most of the album's cuts are an uniform as the vocals. Stylistically speaking, Bucky Wayne's "Hoochie." "The Man Not Written by Cale is indistinguishable from Cale's "Right Down Here." Although his performances may be somewhat unsingable, this material is top-notch. His songs are much more important than the material for other artists and probably should not be judged like table (Dylan material) as a finished product. Look for country and folk artists to steal this material from this album.

Redskin Scalp Vike 5

by Dave Elskay

Last Saturday night the Viking basketball squad hosted Ripon, and came out on the winning end of an 80-50 score. Ripon controlled the first half from the opening tip. After Simms, Reuten Plentz hit a jump shot to give Lawrence a brief 2-0 lead before the Badgers ran off eight straight points.

The margin stretched to 35-15 before Ripon could finally get in the lead. But Ripon's lead lasted only a few short moments. Lawrence managed to narrow the deficit to as respectable 45-27.

Lawrence controlled the second half tip and matched Ripon for the first 26 minutes. But the Vikes could draw no closer, as half-handling errors plagued them. A three-point play by freshman Steve Cissi cut the Lawrence lead to 60-46 with almost nine minutes left, but the Vikes were outscored 26-4 in the rest of the way.

Fyle paced the Vikes in scoring with 16 points, while Simms added 11. Sobiehl and Delaney contributed 15 points apiece for Ripon, while Keppie jumped in 11.

Lawrence was outmatched in both height and experience. The Vikes started three freshmen, while Lawrence had two on their entire roster. In addition, no Ripon starter was less than an inch taller than the Viking with whom he matched up.

Viking JV Win First

"On Thursday we played about as well as we can play. Then on Saturday, we had our worst game of the year." This is how Coach Russ Ullsperger appraised the performance of his JV basketball team this past week.
