Rockwell Appearance Climaxes Month of Controversy

Prior to his campus appearance Rockwell held a press conference at a downtown hotel for journalists and representatives from all television stations, eighteen radio stations, 12 newspapers, and The New York Times. For several days of the question period following the speech, there were several applicants throughout the audience.

Rockwell said that the audience was particularly responsive and particularly absorbed. He said that more students had walked out of his speech at Antioch College than any other college speech he has delivered. This conclusion of the speech was, before any questions could be asked, was risky being anti-climatic because of the audience present. Following a brief introduction, but the majority of the speech was dedicated to a discussion of American politics. The reasoning goes like this: Although the university says that it is a corporation, a corporation which has invited the students and the college faculty to maintain and to serve the society, and a corporation which has invited the students, they apparently don't care, and so why are we excluding them in our rules? Some rules are now being violated by students. The failure of the Deans' office to learn about these violations, check ahead with someone, they are not even aware of it. The yardstick is that any action not specifically authorized to do so by the faculty to permit the seniors to drive a car or motorcycle to this city, in any manner on this campus, can be culpable.

We take seriously the prohibition against the possession of firearms. The faculty has informed us that any action not specifically authorized to do so by the faculty to permit the seniors to drive a car or motorcycle to this city, in any manner on this campus, can be culpable.

Lawrence Sophomore Adrienne Kulieke Wins Title of Miss Appleton 57

A crown, a cape, and three dozen roses were given to Lawrence Sophomore Adrienne Kulieke as Miss Appleton. She was crowned Sunday evening, February 5, at the Appleton High School in the eighth annual Miss Appleton pageant. The pageant was run very similarly to the Miss America Pageant, being a preliminary to a national-wide event. The contestants were judged on talent and pageant, the evening gown and swimsuit costumes. However, Adrienne, the hardest part was remembering to smile constantly, even when the tension was enormous.

It is 10:30 and the finish is filling up soon. An Encampment Steering Board member enters. As he walks in, he overhears a conversation at one of the tables. The people at the table are discussing a proposed constitutional amendment, and they are feeling very strongly about it. They are making pointed gestures.

The Steering Board member had been slated to speak from his side of the issue, but he is running behind schedule, and he is becoming increasingly frustrated. He decides to intervene.

"Excuse me," he says, "I have a question. What do these people mean when they say that this amendment is a threat to our democracy?"

One of the people at the table looks up, surprised.

"What do those books have to do with it?" he asks. "I think it's a bit of a stretch."

"But we hope this will develop into something more," the other person adds. "We hope it will lead to the abolition of the death penalty."

The Steering Board member sighs. He knows that the amendment is deeply held by many, but he is not convinced that it is the answer. He wonders if there is a better way to address the issue.

In Indiana, Senator Birch Bayh To Lecture At Convocation

The junior senator from Indiana, Senator Birch Bayh, will give a convocation address on Thursday, Feb. 6, in the Chapel. The address will be part of the "young, new breed" of senators.

Bayh was appointed chairman of the Senate Committee on Constitutional Amendments when he was elected to the Senate in 1962. Subsequently Bayh was appointed to the Judiciary Committee. A friend of Edward M. Kennedy, Bayh was involved in a Northampton, Mass., plane crash in which the Massachusetts senator was seriously injured two years ago.

At the age of 35, Bayh defeated 18-year-Senate veteran Homer Cipirri in the country's major upset of 1962.

He authored and guided to passage an amendment which dealt with Presidential, inability-to-filling vacancies in the office of Vice-President. The amendment, which is a major part of the Senate’s work, is expected to be ratified by the required 38 states early in 1967.

The historical development of the amendment will be available to the public in book form by the senator and due for publication soon.

In 1966, the subcommittee reviewed such controversial issues as proposed constitutional amendments for prayer in public schools; revision of the electoral college system of electing a President; and the Supreme Court decision and its implications with respect to interrogation of criminal suspects.

As a member of the Judiciary Committee, Bayh is also involved with his own subcommittee, which has been instrumental in promoting legislation for Indian tribes and counsel services.

As a member of the Public Works Committee, Bayh has been instrumental in promoting legislation for Indiana flood control and conservation projects. In 1966 he authored a resolution for federal water supplies. He is also a co-sponsor of a major amendment to markets a bill by a notable speaker with the understanding of the bill's purpose which the senator for the voter's interests.

A resolution of the proposed Lawrence University Community Council and the background of the philosophy behind the proposal for Student Senate representation was the subject of the Senate Committee.

That the Senate did, as the constitution provides, is a lesson in how to interpret the constitution. The Senate Committee, however, has a responsibility to the student body and to the administration to ensure that the constitutional rights of the students are protected. It was the Senate Committee that was instrumental in promoting legislation for the rights of women's rights in education and the administration in the reduction of women's participation in educational programs.
