Most of us have heard more than we care to about apathy on campus. In fact, the definitive statement about Lawrence may be that we no longer care about apathy. It is a terrifying, a sickening, a chosen few Lawrenceans; faculty, students, trustees and alumni, are busily deciding what Lawrence should look like in the future. They are the conspirators meeting in a dark closet somewhere in Beaver Dam. The meetings are open and their reports are available to the public. And not all the changes they are proposing are

Not all of us will be graduating in June.

For the class of 1978, that seems almost silly to spend too much time fretting about the Lawrence of the future. But the class of '80 will be around to live with and, perhaps, endure some radical changes in the shape of a Lawrence education.

The opinion has been voiced, "I feel like we're reservoirs of a large and untapped potential."

"A director is a slave master," according to Professor John L. O'Neill. "If you have one director, you have a director's system, which is not good for artistic growth."

The Downer Feminist Council hopes its plans will serve the entire student body, and not just the women on campus.

The Downer Feminist Council plans to take on both the role that Genesis once did in the college, circulating new ideas. The group hopes to draw up an affirmative action plan. "We hope to be able to reorganize the campus."

But while a lot of us are busy not caring, a chosen few are busy caring. A chosen few are busy caring. "A chosen few are busy caring."

"A chosen few are busy caring."

Meanwhile, Peter Gabriel is working on a solo album that is supposed to be released in the fall. It may already be out, for all I know. I've heard that it's done a few months ago, but it didn't really attract the interest then. (or, not many, at least."

Trick of the Tail

"Trick of the Tail," the latest Genesis album, and their first since the departure of Peter Gabriel, has not sold particularly well. The characters have got to work;

The Downer Feminist Council has a particular interest in helping the group's educational function. Their new, often unpretentious, yet often well-received plays like the Afro-American Drama Festival. Their "Vandals," a play written by one of their members, will be part of their "Week's Agenda."

According to Medak, it will be a benefit to students because the play will show a socialization of women's specific rules, or a lack thereof, in meeting the resources to live fulfilling lives.

Alexis McCardell, a leader in the feminist movement, "will foster a sense of community awareness and the functions of our group." The Downer Feminist Council has a particular interest in helping the group's educational function. Their new, often unpretentious, yet often well-received plays like the Afro-American Spring Fest, "too."

The 1975-76 season at the college will be limited to a $25 budget, all of which is in store for the Downer Feminist Council. This year, the Downer Feminist Council hopes to accomplish at least one thing. The Downer Feminist Council hopes its projects will serve the entire student body, and not just the women on campus.

Three seniors to direct

by Maureen McGee

Three one-act plays directed by senior directing majors will be put on in November. They are, "The Golden Flores" by A. D. Garland, directed by Lon Fiala, "Miss Julie" by August Strindberg, directed by Mona Stenger, and "The Israelites" by Maurice Maeterlinck, directed by Bob Hemmert.

"It's very difficult to say what I would do without lead singer Peter Gabriel. It's done a lot for the band."

"I feel like we're getting a little more attention now if I didn't do anything about it then."

"I feel like we're reservoirs of a large and untapped potential."

For the class of '80, that seems almost silly to spend too much time fretting about the Lawrence of the future.
Exam tests writing skills

by Pat Brown

According to Peter Fritzell, associate professor of English, the college has developed a program, designed for students who are particularly weak. The purpose of the exam was to give the faculty a means of judging the students’ ability to write grammatically correct sentences, with proper punctuation, and to organize “coherent, well-developed paragraphs” into an essay. The exam, which was given on September 13 from 4:00 to 5:15 pm consisted of two essay questions. The first fifteen minutes were set aside for students to jot over the exam, to select one of the questions, and to organize their thoughts appropriately. Professors were present to answer any questions the students may have had.

The grading procedure was based upon a scale from one to four, one being the highest grade. In order to process class registration, professors Fritzell, Goldberg, Passman, and Porter had a thirty-six hour time limit to grade the exams.

Test grades determined whether the students would be enrolled in a Freshman Seminar in Composition, or in a Freshman Seminar in Composition, those students scoring a four were automatically enrolled in the latter course. Because the professors had so little time to grade the exams, professors were unable to make comments on each exam paper or meet with individual students to discuss their particular writing problem. According to Professor Fritzell, the Freshman Seminar Courses will help make the students aware of their writing weaknesses.

According to Fritzell, most students need some help in acquiring sound writing skills. Because class size is limited to sixty persons, some students who would like to take freshman seminar in composition may be unable to do so. For those who are not enrolled in the Freshman Seminar in Composition, but who want additional instruction in English composition, Fritzell recommends that they attend the College Methods Laboratory. This recommendation extends to upperclassmen as well.

An introduction to the Long-Range Planning Task Force

The Long Range Planning Task Force hopes to provide the Task Force with a "thorough understanding of the financial situation of the college in the past, present, and future." The sub-committee, consisting of Chairman Professor of Economics, Jim Duma; Alumna Margaret Carroll; Trustee Donald Reinikien; and Peter Mueser, '78, and Dave Worzel, '78, hopes to achieve this, in part, through a series of seven reports to the Task Force.

The first report will provide an overview of the financial condition of private higher education, with particular attention to private liberal arts colleges. The second report will provide a detailed financial study of budgets, incomes, and expenditures at Lawrence over the last six years. The next four reports will extrapolate the financial condition of the university's current financial structure for use in predicting possible future trends.

In addition to the reports, the sub-task force will serve the important capacity of investigating the byzantine implications of any recommendations to the Task Force by other sub-task forces. It is for this reason that the financial sub-task force will examine tuition income only after receiving possible future enrollment figures from the sub-task force on size constraints.

While the financial sub-task force held no meetings this summer, Jim Duma conducted two background studies for the committee. One study concerned an analysis of enrollment performance over the past several years with attention to endowment income and spending policy, and how well the endowment (consisting mainly of investments), performed in relation to the general market. The other study dealt with a comparison of Lawrence to other private liberal arts colleges. In addition, Sherwin Howard, assistant to the president, constructed a mathematical model of the university's current financial structure for use in predicting possible future financial conditions.

Thus far this term, the financial sub-committee has held two meetings at which background material was distributed and possible methods of dividing up the committee's tasks were discussed. All meetings of the financial sub-committee in respect to time and place are announced in The Thaw publication.

Curriculum

The members of the sub-task force on curriculum have tentatively agreed on six goals. These include greater coherence of the curriculum, an analysis of college curricular needs compared with those of the Conservatory, an examination of the advantages and disadvantages of a smaller university, an investigation of possible changes in media utilization, clear formulation of a faculty-personnel tenure policy, and the establishment of new innovative programs.

During the past summer, the support staff prepared a report examining the present curriculum of the University. Robert Rosenberg, professor of chemistry, explained that the report was focused on the basis of the assumptions about Lawrence's future. The assumptions were that a tenure constraint regarding faculty, will be instituted and that the Music Department will become a "Conservatory of Music." "These assumptions do not limit what the Task Force could consider," said Rosenberg.

Although the Committee has discussed the effect of size on the curriculum, chairman Leonard Thompson pointed out that, "our task is not size, but curriculum. Possible curriculum additions of the sub-task force has discussed include continuing education, faculty renewal, greater use of tutorials and independent study, and a "kind of sabbatical program for middle-aged professors." Currenty the group is considering the proposed 1400 student model. Trustee Margaret Buchanan suggested that, "We take the size 1400 model and ask for ways of designing the curriculum and look at what is important then. We can look at other size models in the same way."

Extra-curricular Structures

The immediate objective of the Sub-Task Force on Extra-curricular Structures is to determine the Lawrence extra-curricular activities and their important financial aspects of the sub-task force on extra-curricular interests.

Two proposed survey questionnaires, one for freshmen and another for upperclassmen, will ask students to define the extent of their extra-curricular participation. Sub-Task Force member Margery Arkin, professor of piano and theory, suggested that the questions determine what extra-curricular interests, if any, students have not pursued during their Lawrence career, and the reasons they have not. The committee hopes that the poll results will indicate why students follow interests outside the academic, and how these interests are encouraged or discouraged.

The committee agreed that students could be made aware of the many extra-curricular opportunities open to them through faculty advising. Two recommended instituting an extra-curricular transcript. In addition, faculty advisors can be shown a record that complements the academic transcript.

In an interview Monday, Don Taylor, head of the Sub-Task Force, said the committee is "definitely going to establish an extra-curricular transcript. Things are new, a student may be involved in twelve different activities and there is no record of it anywhere." Making a permanent record of each student's extra-curricular activities could help to entice future employers to hire Lawrence students.

Gary J. Parker, '77, who has a "right to know" in the opinion of President Wobril, '78, hopes to achieve this. The other sub-task force's four reports will include continuing education, faculty renewal, and a "kind of sabbatical program for middle-aged professors."

18 year-olds, their SAT scores, and their ability to pay.

However, a number of surveys remain optimistic about the future started by Charles Simpkins and Nancy Taylor, a Lawrence graduate

The lack of faculties.

Taylor stressed that the committee "would like as much input as possible from the Lawrence community." Anyone with suggestions, criticisms, or ideas regarding the extra-curricular involvement in the community. The lack of a student shows leadership in extra-curricular facets, it will pay off on the job market.

Taylor, a Lawrence graduate ’63, is enthusiastic about the opportunities for involvement at small school as opposed to a large institution, but feels that many of Lawrence's extracurricular facilities do not meet the needs of students. For example, his cited examples of service women taking part in the Y.M.C.A. as evidence that the gym facilities are inadequate and inconvenient.

Taylor went on to say that students enrolled to 1000, the committee organized that open on campus be used for pilot groups, dance and dramatic classes to mitigate the lack of facilities.

Taylor stressed that the committee "would like as much input as possible from the Lawrence community." Anyone with suggestions, criticisms, or ideas regarding the extra-curricular involvement is urged to contact Taylor or a committee member.

Inter-Institutional

"Does it make money for the University? And or does it bring in students?" were the two questions used by the support summer staff of the Inter-Institutional Sub Task Force in examining Lawrence's relationships with other institutions. Peter Fritsell, associate professor of English, expressed a difficulty in obtaining objective reports on these inter-institutional relationships because often the only source of information is the faculty member involved. "You can understand why it is their baby, their project. They want to protect it," he said.

Several possible relationships might be worked out with the University of Wisconsin state system. However, presently not enough material is available to enable the committee to make a definite statement.

Fritsell feels that there is a need for a University wide policy concerning individual memberships to professional and community related associations. Fritsell explained "For example, I'm the Vice President of Youth Ice Hockey and if I want to serve on a copy of a newsletter of something, I have to pay a nickel." He stated that this is the policy for all of the Main Hall and Conservatory faculty. As a contrasting example, Fritsell offered "The President can have his secretary do work which is involved in non-university organizations. It might be a false assumption, but I doubt it."

Fritsell personally complemented Marvin Wishdal vice-president of financial affairs for his involvement in the Highway 8 project. The state of Fritsell's comments was to emphasize the need for a complete accounting of extra-institutional activities of the faculty, administration staff, and even of the students. He added the "If we don't increase the support of these things by evaluating them, we might do some advertising and we should feel bad about ourselves."

Similarly, Fritsell explained that the extra-curricular employees have their membership dues to professional associations paid for by the University, while the faculty do not. "It seems that we have joined tens to hundreds of professional associations without looking to see if we are getting our money's worth. For instance, the annual membership to the Association of Collegiate Admissions Officers is $15 and (reading from the summer report) 'professional benefits are minimal.' In conclusion, Fritsell again stressed the necessity to establish "a uniform University policy."

Other money-saving proposals include removing the $5,000 donation of bound periodicals in the ACM library in Chicago, and pursuing larger donations from businesses and individuals who are donating to the Wisconsin Federation of Independent Colleges as well as Lawrence. Both Fritsell and Jack Stanley, associate professor of religious studies, stressed careful and diplomatic approaches in asking for more money. "We don't want to do this," they said several times.

Size Constraints

How many and what type of students will Lawrence serve in the next 10 years? This is the question faced by the six Constraints Sub Task-Force. The committee was charged by the Long-Range Planning Task Force to give a size estimate within the next two months so that the Sub-Task Force on curriculum and finance can make their recommendation. However, the members of the Sub-Task Force including chairperson Charles Breuning, professor of history, Cissy Ask, assistant professor of economics, Sherman Howard, assistant to the president, Harriet Tipton, reference librarian, Gilbert Swift, director of alumni relations, Anne Toomey, alumna, David White, director of admissions, Paul Schoewl, 79, and Steve Gheba, 78, fear that they have incomplete information and too little time to make proper evaluations.

Last summer this group compiled a three inch high stack of materials including demographic studies, surveys of SAT scores, and ability to pay college costs. These studies indicate a decline in the number of students interested in the University at large. Lawrence students possess could make the difference between carrying or not carrying the election at the congressional level. "Even in the presidential race," he added. "Pennsylvania is still a marginal state with Republican and Democratic polls calling the race a tie at this point."

Students desiring more information concerning the local Democratic Party are encouraged to stop in at the Democratic Headquarters located at 96 W. College Ave. or call Lynn Broydrick at 739-4668.

The Intruder

Potential vote

by Sue Davies

A group of Lawrence Democrats met in Riverview Lounge on Wednesday, October 6, to informally discuss upcoming campaign activities. Students will be canvassing door to door in Appleton from now until election day, in small presigned areas, asking three Gallup Poll questions and dropping off a Carter brochure. This campaign strategy has already been administered to over half of Appleton.

Bill Broydrick, Congressman Correll's campaign manager, and Doug Berman, 89, with Congressional District Mgr. for Carter, led the meeting. According to Broydrick, "the 1010 potential voters. Lawrence students possess could make the difference between carrying or not carrying the election at the congressional level." Even in the presidential race," he added. "Pennsylvania is still a marginal state with Republican and Democratic polls calling the race a tie at this point."

Students desiring more information concerning the local Democratic Party are encouraged to stop in at the Democratic Headquarters located at 96 W. College Ave. or call Lynn Broydrick at 739-4668. Your help is still needed for canvassing and other types of campaign work.
Take a bite of the Big Apple

by Sue Davies

Believe it or not, most parents will not be satisfied with sitting in stuffy dorm rooms this weekend. To keep them entertained, the Lawrentian offers this brief guide.

First of all, parents can provide an excellent excuse for a meal away from Decrease. Yearning for Chinese food? Luck Joy on College Avenue, or House of Miracles on Midway Road can provide the Mein Chow. Tippy’s Taco House or Taeo Bell, both on Richmond, can satisfy your “hot food” cravings. If you want seafood, the Hot Fish Shop serves a whole of a dinner. If your needs are a little more basic—where food is concerned, J.W. Puddy’s on College Avenue claims the best deep dish pizza in town. Another good pizza place is Butt’s Pizza, which according to one Appletonian, is located “west of Poppzy’s across the crick.” Great hamburgers can be found at Cameron’s on Wise Ave. And Jacquie’s is a quaint place to enjoy sandwiches and soup—next to Plantain’s in the “flats.” The outside looks like it will collapse at any minute, but inside it is very classy. How about combining lunch with shopping? Across from the YMCA is the Tiff, which contains a little tearoom connected to a small Scandinavian import shop. The Little Mermaid.

For evening entertainment, there are a number of options you might want to check out: The Fire Station, Mr. Robert’s, Captain’s Steak, Jayzt, The Thirsty Whale, just to name a few. Appleton movies for the weekend include “Happy Days” (X), at the Viking Theater (W. College); “W.C. Fields and Me,” and “Guile & Lombard,” will be shown as a double feature at the Cinema I (Wise Ave.); the Marc II will be showing “Gum” and “Man Called Horse Returns” will be continuing at the Marc II (N. Oshkosh).

Other recreational opportunities in the Valley include bowling, (Sabre Lanes—Midway Rd., Super Bowl—Ballard Rd. are the two largest). The ice is now at the Fox Cities Indoor Arena—County Trunk U east of Rt. 41 in Neenah, and if you get the tennis urge, besides the Lawrence Courts there is the Fox Cities Indoor Tennis Club if the weather turns bad.

If the sun does favor us this weekend the recreational choices increase (from 2 to 4). Reid Municipal Golf Course is across from the YMCA in the Tiff. The Green Lakes Golf Course is across from Lawrence’s own Worcester Art Center. For parents with artistic aspirations, the Paine Art Center boasts of the second largest collection of antique and modern glass paperweights in the world! Karl Priola and John Wilde’s work is currently on exhibit at Bergstrom as an added attraction with watercolors, portraits, and mixed media.

Saturday morning get an early start and pick up your reading material for next year at A.A.U.W.’s GIGANTIC Book Sale in the Masonic Temple—one block west of the Conservatory on College. Take time for lunch at the Old Post Office Restaurant next to Appleton’s. The Lawrence football game starts at 1:30, and you won’t want to miss it! If the sun is shining, take in the Fox Cities Indoor Arena – County Trunk U near New London. If society dances in Darby’s, you can’t miss the Fighter’s Dance at the Park Plaza in Oshkosh for the Fall Art Fair with displays and sales of local artists. There will be paintings, pottery, macramé, and other media by midwestern artists. Park Plaza is also a great place to shop. Have an elegant dinner at the Crown on S.卓t. and you will still have the enough to dress up for one of Appleton’s biggest events of the weekend — The Annual Fox Fighter’s Dance at the Dunkin’ Club.

If society dances in Darby’s, you will impress your parents. Lawrence Film Classics will feature two Hitchcock films on Saturday night—“The 39 Steps” will be shown on Friday night at 7 p.m. and “The Lady Vanishes” on Saturday night. Admit Free, and get a free ticket for Saturday’s activities. Either come, or go with a trip to Happy Jack’s, the 24 hour Dairy. Appleton’s West Wisconsin Avenue, this cream pucker is very similar to Farrell’s, with free shakes on birthdays.

Sunday morning look at your shapes! Great trades can be had at a Mosquito Hill Nature Center, minutes west of Appleton. The Country Trunk 5 near New London. If it snows this week, snow shoes can be rented for $2 per pair-per day. Then, of course, you won’t want to miss the Packers versus the Philadelphia Eagles on Channel 2.

Entertaining parents is next easy. But with an agent this, you can’t miss...
SAFAP and survival

By Carol Rees

Student Activists on Food and Population, known as SAFAP to its members, is one of the more active but least publicized volunteer activist groups on campus. This year's coordinators are Patti Behn '77 and Doug Honnold '79.

Behn was the author of SAFAP's booklet, "Survival Guide to Downer and Nutrition." The booklet sold for 25¢ third term last year. Although SAFAP sold only a few of the booklets at LU, Behn received over 40 requests from other colleges and universities during the summer. Behn explained this saying, "Frank Duchow of the Public Relations Office ran an article in the Chronicle of Higher Learning and then I began to get feedback from college presidents and activists all over." She continued, "all this information was coming out of Lawrence and going right over everyone's heads. It was like it was never coming back to Lawrence." She concluded, "I was beginning to wonder if anybody gave a damn.

Another Survival Guide is planned for this year. The second edition will contain updated material about vegetarianism and food additives. SAFAP will seek a grant from LUCC to fund this second edition. Behn felt that the major problem SAFAP faced in publishing the Survival Guide was getting help from other students. She was quick to note "SAFAP is no place for martyrs. Doug and I ended up with SAFAP as a fourth course; it was taking up so much of our time."

About $40,000 is wasted at Downer every year. In an effort to illustrate the volume of food waste at Lawrence, SAFAP has sponsored several "Waste Weighs" at Downer. Honnold stressed, "We want to make the students aware that waste is directly relevant to board rates."

Honnold also feels that leaving so much uneaten food is a bit cold and unfair in light of world hunger. He is quick to point out, however, that "I personally don't blame anybody. "It isn't anybody's fault, they don't know. We're simply saying, think about this." Honnold explains that "even if we all ate like the Chinaman," the world hunger problem would not be resolved. He feels the solution will come through the political process.

Behn pointed out that the change in political processes could only be effected if people change their attitudes. "What else can I do? I have my own personal integrity," she said. Finally she added, "and that money shows up in your board rates is da.

Behn and Honnold were hesitant to comment on the Downer partition, but they admitted that they were for constructive criticism of something rather than the snide and cynical comments which have been made. Behn offered, "there is a better way to do things, which is what this group is all about.

Washington Semester
Lawrence University usually nominates and sends upperclass students in the Washington Semester Program in the Fall Semester; applications and information concerning next Fall's students will be available during the upcoming Winter term. It is possible, however, for qualified upperclass students to be nominated by Lawrence for the Spring semester; which runs from January 3 to May 7. Four and one-half Lawrence credits are given for the Washington Semester, and specialized offerings are available in National Politics, Urban Politics, International Politics, and Political Development. Upperclass students particularly interested in the upcoming Spring program should see Mr. Longley, room 407 Main Hall, by October 25.

Political interviewees wanted
WLFM needs interviewees interested in conducting taped interviews with several political figures who will be visiting the Lawrence campus in the next several weeks. Among the visitors are Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado and Congressional candidates Cornelius and Frelich. These interviews will be used as an integral part of WLFM's election coverage. If you are interested or would like additional information, please call Keith Spurgeon, news director at WLFM, ext. 334, as soon as possible.

Presidential Election Simulation
The presidential election simulation involves students drawn from various government courses. Those who have participated in past simulations are, however, welcome to participate again this fall "just for fun." The dates of simulation are Saturday afternoon, Nov. 13, Sunday afternoon and evening, Nov. 14, and Sunday afternoon and evening, Nov. 21. Persons interested in receiving more information about the simulated world of presidential politics, contact Mr. Longley, ext. 415, by Monday Oct. 25.

General Announcements

Parents' Weekend will be held on campus the weekend of Oct. 16. Because the Conway Motor Inn will be fully reserved at that time for remodeling, your parents may save white by using the following hotel rooms if they do not make reservations in advance. Please make sure your parents know the Conway Motor Inn is closed. There are, of course, many other fine hotels and motels in the area.

Circle K

Whether you are aware of it or not there is a hard working service organization on the Lawrence campus. The organization is the Lawrence Circle K and it is comprised of about fifteen Lawrenceans. Circle K is an independent organization which involves itself in a multitude of projects and is supported in their objectives by the downtown Appleton Kiwanis Club. The group has sustained its initial organizational and growth pains and is currently looking forward to tackling a greater range of community projects available in Appleton. During the past year the group was involved with Casa Clare (painting the women's refurbishment home), Outagamie County Hospital dances with the patients every other Thursday and fund raising on the Lawrence campus by such projects as selling caramel apples for Halloween. The objectives of Circle K are involvement in the community and campus activities which are beneficial to both Appleton and Lawrence University. The projects selected is related in such a way that they will not interfere with academic work, will conform with group interest and will effect a service effort by the group. The group is always looking for new ideas and invites all interested Lawrenceans to its weekly meetings on Sundays (4:45 p.m.) in the grille.

Al-Anon chapter opens

Alcoholism is as much a problem for those who must live with an alcoholic as it is for the alcoholic himself. The pressures facing families and friends of a alcoholic are numerous and difficult to handle alone. Al-Anon, a new organization on campus, seeks to bring together people who live with alcoholism," claims Amy Holcombe, student organizer of this new group.

Many Lawrenceians, Holcombe pointed out, encountering alcoholism in the home are left frustrated and confused, feeling their problem is unique and unanswerable. "The main goal of Al­Anon, therefore, is to bring these people together in a situation where they can talk freely about their individual problems, share their frustrations, and obtain a new outlook on the situation. These new attitudes, Holcombe, hopes will be conveyed in the trying situation and "indirectly prompt the alcoholics, will be available to Al-Anon on a strictly non-directing basis." Olsen emphasized that the "key" to the success of Al-Anon will depend on whether or not direction will come from within the group it­self," from the seminar community and common cause. Al-Anon will hold its first meeting on Thurs. Oct. 21 in the conference room of the counseling center. All Lawrence students concerned with alcoholism are strongly invited to attend. These sessions are strictly confidential, and stress anonymity. Those interested or who have questions may call Amy Holcombe, ext. 326, or inquire at the Health Center, ext. 555.

New CML has a better idea

Whether you are a freshman with ailing study habits, or a Main Hall senior preparing for the GRE's algebra questions, College Methods Lab, CML, may just be the thing to pull you out of the depths of despair. CML is a service designed to match up students who feel they need help in a particular field with a qualified student tutor in that field.

This year some minor changes in requirements for tutors should make CML more effective than ever. Although the selection process has not been substantially altered, a few steps have been taken to ensure that the tutors are completely qualified. "We are being more careful about whom we choose as tutors," said director of CML, Thomas Dale professor of English.

Last year most of the tutors performed well, Dale claimed, but there were some who just wasted the job for the money and turned out to be unsatisfactory. Now all the prospective tutors must have a recommendation from their major department. CML also prefers to interview prospective tutors. Mrs. Barbara Hardbank held an orientation meeting with slides, a tape program, and a question and answer period yesterday. The meeting was suggested by some of last year's tutors who felt more preparation would help them in their jobs.

CML does not, however, set any guidelines or restrictions for the tutors, since each student has very individual problems. The tutor together with the student diagnose the problem and then develop a helpful program.

Through the CML, students can salvage courses which might otherwise be "a lost cause." Rather than withdrawing from a course or perhaps even failing a course, a student can receive partial credit for CML related work.

Students who discover they need help at any time during the term - perhaps after mid-term grades are back - or upon discovering Econ 24 is not enough background for Econ 20, or even if one's rate of reading Shakespeare is not up to par - are welcome to come into CML for help. Those interested in tutoring should contact Dale, Tank, or Sue Kueh, ext. 72 at CML.

Morton House Cribbage Tourney

The First Annual Morton House Cribbage Tournament has come and gone, surprisingly. Lawrence remains the same. Two weeks ago yesterday, the largest number to date, began after dinner last Friday matching skill, luck and drinking capacity for the ten dollar pot.

Each crubber played six games, the two with the most wins were to meet in a final match. As the evening progressed, and the pots jumped around the boards it became evident that Peter Beck '77 and Tim "Bruno" Browning '76 were to face off for the cherished tee spot. A buzz fell over the crowd as Heil and Bruno prepared to play.

After being released from a half section (they struggled to deter mine who would cut the deck first, house rules: Heil cut the cards and they were underway.) Taking a lead in the first game Bruno jumped off to quick lead. Full of playing confidence Heil soon had his pegs hopping. With three big hands he was born on extra. Heil's "boys" skipped ahead without looking back. Taking his victory completely in stride, Heil merely shrugged saying, "Where's that quarter he said?" At the other end of the scale, Charley Kreis '78 won the not-exact-score Dear Prize by losing six of his matches. Kreis insisted that, "I wasn't really trying to win," but we know better.

Many thanks are in order for the wonderful service rendered by Morton's own alumnus and the competence of the bookers who kept most things under control. It almost goes without saying that a good time was had by all.

The Lawrence soccer team established their position as serious Midwest Conference Championship contenders this past week. Winning three straight, their conference record is now 3-0 and overall they are 6-1. They won 1-0 over Beloit, 4-2 over Steven's Point, and 4-0 over River. Over the three game span John Laing, 79 scored four goals and Charley Kron, 78, Ralph Bornhoret, 78, and Geoff Meader, 79 scored two apiece. Against Beloit, on Saturday, Lawrence had extreme difficulties creating offensive stability throughout the first half and much of the second. Coach John Keiderman felt that "the way we played we were lucky to be in even at the close of the first half. Kelderman felt that "the way we played we were lucky to be in.

Beloit demonstrated a knack for gaining possession of the ball that frequently forced Lawrence to the defensive. Most fortunately for the Beloit defense, well led again by goalkeeper John Melzer, an important cause of the difficulty of the Lawrence offense was the failure to make the link from the fullbacks to the forwards. In short, Lawrence failed to control the crucial midfield area.

The first Lawrence goal was scored by Ralph Bornhoret fifteen minutes into the period. Bornhoret took a pass from Jim Jacobs in the right corner, and from fifteen yards in front shot to the left of the goalkeeper and into the net.

The first goal relinquished by Lawrence this season resulted from a mixup at goal. A Beloit shot from 41 2 out sailed over the defenders and bounced in on goal. Grant Hartup had turned and was giving chase to the ball, confusion between McGee and Hartup ensued, and the added element of the pressing Beloit attack resulted in an unguarded goal. The ball rolled in the net and the score at halftime was one goal apiece.

Honored by the language play of his team, Keiderman substituted frequently for the final two Bailey tallies. Shortly after the opening of the second session Kevin Kettelback, 79 quickly and adeptly reacting to a sharp release of a direct kick by Laing, slammed home a goal from fifteen yards in front.

Other than this the Lawrence attack did not show noticeable improvement until about midway through the half when the passing became considerably more crisp and decisive. With six minutes remaining and but a one goal lead, give and go passing to the left of the Beloit goal preceded a Mark Taylor, 79 pass to forward forward Kron in absence of forward. Kron utilized all the plinth of Odysseus in calmly chipping the ball over the goalkeeper moving towards him, and the insurance goal gently floated in.

At Stevens Point on Sunday Charley (the iceman) Kron became Kron the strong, scoring in the initial goal. Fifteen minutes into the first half Kron pounced on a loose ball and shot from fourteen yards in front. Lawrence scored once more in the first half on a two on one break by Meader and Laing. Meader scored and Laing got the assist. Lawrence scored four times in the second half, twice on penalty kicks by Laing. McGee missed a third attempt, a second goal by Reader, and one by Ralph Bornhoret.

Kelderman was pleased by the 6-2 victory over Stevens Point. "It is time that we played better in the second half of the Beloit game. Saturday," he noted. Captain Penn Ritter commented on the development of the team. "We've gained a lot of confidence. We are a young team, we're playing together now, we're learning."

Again, Lawrence started slowly against Ripon on Wednesday afternoon. A scoreless half hour featured a lethargic Lawrence defense that had few scoring opportunities and a scrambling defense that held off Ripon attacks. Credit is due in this game, as well as the season as it stands, to the defensive unit. Fullbacks Penn Ritter, 77, David Neubauer, 77, Grant Hartup, 76, and McKeen in goal are primarily responsible for Lawrence's unattainable record.

The Lawrence tennis team is not trying to fool anyone this fall. "we are out to win the conference," asserted Head Coach Larry Fish.

The women are practicing on a regular basis that this year the team is being coached by both Gene Davis and former snapping Cyndy Battlewrench who managed the team last year and who has had much experience coaching AAU teams in the past. Not only should the grueling practices improve the team but the number of returning up perclassmen and new freshmen talent will strengthen the men's side. The team only lost one letterwinner, last year's captain and most valuable member, Dorothy Yung, who often this year are Sherry Frier and Melanie Johnson.

Other members of the team are Aeroplane, Murly Shum, 77, Nancy Johnson, Amy Weatherly. Carol Scott, 79, and Coran Morris, 78. Freshmen on the team are Paul Hurelt, Jennifer Sines, Sherry (Greenberg), Margie Bartlett, Andrea Messer, Kathy Middleton (the team's only diver) and Elba Farinella.

By putting a stop on their backs in the senior class, Lawrence has wasted but minutes in cracking the son as well. Coach Keiderman centered a kick in Tayllor and then Laing on the right for the Lancers scored against twenty minutes later on a penalty beating the goalkeeper at the left corner. Lawrence played their soccer of the year in the ball of the second session, play was almost exclusive confined to the Beloit goal area, giving goalkeeper Melzer a deserved rest. Although, there was no more scoring on the ball closed in a rather haphazard manner as several players dangerous spells and as others were selected for the game. Keiderman do seem outstandingly, coach didn't single out Steve Mc推介 for his fine play.

Lawrence plays next at Milwaukee Area Tech College at Milwaukee Saturday, Milwaukee Ripon 5-2 earlier in the season, Keiderman said, "no better game would be a good cause sure."

The Lawrence tennis team is not trying to fool anyone this fall, head of all themselves. Winning only one of their first five meets, the newcomers will not be easily discouraged. In defeating Parkside 63-34 several bright prospects occurred. In the 50 freestyle with a 30.33; Doug Cady, 79 snared a win in the 100 backstroke. Beloit demonstrated a knack for the defensive. for the second straight week. In a game where both teams painted a combined total of twenty-one times, credit must be given to both defenses and the 3-0 score is indicative of the efforts on both sides.

On Lake Forest’s first series of downs, linebacker Tom Lindfors, ‘78 intercepted a Dan Cantanzaro pass, setting up the Viking’s first scoring opportunity. The Vikes were thwarted however when a Reitz 63 yard field goal attempt hit the uprights and fell short.

The Lawrence Vikings traveled to Lake Forest last Saturday where they defeated the Pioneers in a lackluster affair. Lawrence hosted a Jeff Reitz, ‘78 highlighted the play by kicking a 24-yard field goal midway through the third quarter to prove the difference.

The Vike defense, led by the exceptional play of all-conference middle guard Tom Hughes, ‘77, highlighted the play of the entire defense.

The Lawrence Bowl. The Muskies lost to the Forester two, but a holding call moved the ball back to the nineteen. From there Reitz converted a 24 yard field goal and Lawrence remained undefeated four games into the season.

Lawrence hosts Lake Forest this Saturday in the Lawrence Bowl. The Muskies from Shoborgan will be looking for their first win of the season following six defeats.

The Parent’s Day crowd can expect to see not only an exciting football game, as the Vikes play the second straight week. In a game where both teams painted a combined total of twenty-one times, credit must be given to both defenses and the 3-0 score is indicative of the efforts on both sides.

Overall, the team finished 3rd out of ten teams at the Beloit Invitational. Illinois Benedictine College won the meet and Beloit bested LU by one point for second place honors.

Gary Kohls finished first for LU and fifth in the race with an excellent time of 22:22 for the 3 mile course. Kohls, who finished fourth in last year, received a huge plaque for his efforts.
Digging into Costa Rica

The Associated Colleges of the Midwest offers two programs in Costa Rica for undergraduate students. The first, during the fall period from February to May, is strongly oriented toward field studies in the social and natural sciences. The second, during the winter-spring period, is more oriented toward Spanish and literature of contemporary Costa Rican society within the broad Latin American context. While students during the fall are placed on mini-research projects to put them in contact with the various segments of contemporary society, there is no strong research emphasis line that is carried out during the winter-spring period. Additional opportunities in Anthropology-Archaeology are available through the National Museum of Costa Rica, which is in cooperation with the ACM program during the period June-August when the ACM program is not in operation. For technical details (tuition costs, travel costs, medical requirements, etc.) concerning the winter-spring and fall ACM programs, interested students or faculty should contact their campus ACM representative, or the ACM Costa Rican Program Associate, Associate Colleges of the Midwest, 60 West Walton St., Chicago, Illinois 60610. For additional and up-to-date information on curriculum projections and independent research opportunities during the June-August periods, write directly to Dr. Frederick W. Hart, National Museum of Costa Rica, Apartado 749, San Jose, Costa Rica.

ACM offers programs in Asia

While there is no "pre-trip" orientation program for the Japanese or Chinese programs, the Indian studies program is preceded by intensive language and cultural study at one of the ACM colleges. Orientation for the Japanese and Chinese programs takes place on location. A variable degree of language proficiency, however, is required for all of the programs. Structured and independent courses are combined to form a program where the student may "suddenly comprehend something that he has previously understood only academically." In addition to taking language courses, the ACM participants are offered courses in history, art, music, political science, anthropology, literature, religion, and philosophy. Estimates for travel are allowed during the term vacation times.

In many respects, the program gained from a year in the East coincides with the goals of liberal arts education. "One often asks me," concluded Trautman, "how a year in Asia can help a student get a job?" The belief is that the final job a person arrives at is usually culmination of all that person experiences. In which case, a year in Asia can be so enriching, getting not only a good job, but the job one desires as any formal schooling.
