In this, the eleventh hour of the semester, the students of the Lawrence University Career Center are scrambling to find a job. The Career Center's library was far and wide last year, with its doors open to every student. This year, the Career Center has set aside six separate workshops each week for students to attend. The workshops are held on Tuesday evenings and are designed to help students develop their job search skills. The workshops cover topics such as resume writing, networking, and interviewing techniques. The Career Center has also partnered with local businesses to provide students with job opportunities. The Center's counselors are available to provide one-on-one guidance and assistance. The Career Center is located in the basement of the Kellner Center, adjacent to the Student Union. It is open from 9 am to 5 pm Monday through Friday. The Career Center can be reached at (920) 836-2300.

Social Responsibility & Divesture

by Amy Wacks and Mike Edmonds

With just a few months left in the academic year, Lawrence's investment portfolio is facing a major challenge: the growing pressure to divest from South African investments. The University's endowment currently includes significant holdings in South African stocks and bonds, and many students, faculty, and alumni believe that these investments are unethical and immoral. The University's investment policy, which has been in place for over a decade, mandates that the University's investments must be consistent with its mission and values. This includes avoiding investments in companies that engage in activities such as apartheid, human rights abuses, and environmental degradation. The University has been active in the divestment movement for many years, and its investments in South Africa have been a focus of attention. The University's Investment Committee, which is responsible for making decisions about the University's investments, has been under pressure to divest from South African investments.

Lawrence University's investment portfolio is managed by a third-party investment management firm. The firm is responsible for making investment decisions on behalf of the University, and the University's Investment Committee has no direct control over the firm's investment decisions. The University's Investment Committee has expressed concerns about the firm's investment policies and practices, and has asked for assurance that the firm will continue to follow the University's investment guidelines. Despite these concerns, the firm has continued to invest in South African stocks and bonds. The University's Investment Committee has been working with the firm to address these concerns and to ensure that the firm's investment policies are consistent with the University's values.

In the coming months, the University's Investment Committee will continue to work with the firm to address these concerns. The Committee will also be considering other potential actions, such as the possibility of divesting from the firm itself.

Lawrence's investment portfolio is currently being reviewed by the University's Investment Committee. The Committee is expected to make a recommendation to the University's Board of Trustees in the coming weeks. The University's Board of Trustees will be responsible for making the final decision about the University's investments in South Africa.

The University of Wisconsin-Madison has recently announced plans to divest from South African investments, and Lawrence is not alone in the divestment movement. Many colleges and universities across the United States and around the world are considering divesting from South African investments. The University's Investment Committee is committed to ensuring that the University's investments are consistent with its mission and values, and will continue to work with the firm to address these concerns.

Lawrence University

by Chris Krueger and Frank Masa

The Lawrence University Career Center is hosting a Career Fair this spring, featuring employers from various industries. The Career Center is working closely with the University's admissions office to promote the event to students and ensure that they have a successful experience. The Career Center is also working with the University's alumni office to provide networking opportunities for students.

The Career Fair will be held on March 10th, and will feature employers from a variety of industries, including finance, technology, and healthcare. The Career Center is working to ensure that employers from a wide range of industries are represented, and that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from fields that interest them.

The Career Center is also working to ensure that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from the Lawrence University Network, which includes alumni and friends of the University. The Career Center is working with the University's alumni office to provide networking opportunities for students, and to ensure that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from the University's network.

The University of Wisconsin-Madison has recently announced plans to divest from South African investments, and Lawrence is not alone in the divestment movement. Many colleges and universities across the United States and around the world are considering divesting from South African investments. The University's Investment Committee is committed to ensuring that the University's investments are consistent with its mission and values, and will continue to work with the firm to address these concerns.

Lawrence University

by Chris Krueger and Frank Masa

The Lawrence University Career Center is hosting a Career Fair this spring, featuring employers from various industries. The Career Center is working closely with the University's admissions office to promote the event to students and ensure that they have a successful experience. The Career Center is also working with the University's alumni office to provide networking opportunities for students.

The Career Fair will be held on March 10th, and will feature employers from a variety of industries, including finance, technology, and healthcare. The Career Center is working to ensure that employers from a wide range of industries are represented, and that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from fields that interest them.

The Career Center is also working to ensure that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from the Lawrence University Network, which includes alumni and friends of the University. The Career Center is working with the University's alumni office to provide networking opportunities for students, and to ensure that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from the University's network.

The University of Wisconsin-Madison has recently announced plans to divest from South African investments, and Lawrence is not alone in the divestment movement. Many colleges and universities across the United States and around the world are considering divesting from South African investments. The University's Investment Committee is committed to ensuring that the University's investments are consistent with its mission and values, and will continue to work with the firm to address these concerns.

Lawrence University

by Chris Krueger and Frank Masa

The Lawrence University Career Center is hosting a Career Fair this spring, featuring employers from various industries. The Career Center is working closely with the University's admissions office to promote the event to students and ensure that they have a successful experience. The Career Center is also working with the University's alumni office to provide networking opportunities for students.

The Career Fair will be held on March 10th, and will feature employers from a variety of industries, including finance, technology, and healthcare. The Career Center is working to ensure that employers from a wide range of industries are represented, and that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from fields that interest them.

The Career Center is also working to ensure that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from the Lawrence University Network, which includes alumni and friends of the University. The Career Center is working with the University's alumni office to provide networking opportunities for students, and to ensure that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from the University's network.

The University of Wisconsin-Madison has recently announced plans to divest from South African investments, and Lawrence is not alone in the divestment movement. Many colleges and universities across the United States and around the world are considering divesting from South African investments. The University's Investment Committee is committed to ensuring that the University's investments are consistent with its mission and values, and will continue to work with the firm to address these concerns.

Lawrence University

by Chris Krueger and Frank Masa

The Lawrence University Career Center is hosting a Career Fair this spring, featuring employers from various industries. The Career Center is working closely with the University's admissions office to promote the event to students and ensure that they have a successful experience. The Career Center is also working with the University's alumni office to provide networking opportunities for students.

The Career Fair will be held on March 10th, and will feature employers from a variety of industries, including finance, technology, and healthcare. The Career Center is working to ensure that employers from a wide range of industries are represented, and that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from fields that interest them.

The Career Center is also working to ensure that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from the Lawrence University Network, which includes alumni and friends of the University. The Career Center is working with the University's alumni office to provide networking opportunities for students, and to ensure that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from the University's network.

The University of Wisconsin-Madison has recently announced plans to divest from South African investments, and Lawrence is not alone in the divestment movement. Many colleges and universities across the United States and around the world are considering divesting from South African investments. The University's Investment Committee is committed to ensuring that the University's investments are consistent with its mission and values, and will continue to work with the firm to address these concerns.

Lawrence University

by Chris Krueger and Frank Masa

The Lawrence University Career Center is hosting a Career Fair this spring, featuring employers from various industries. The Career Center is working closely with the University's admissions office to promote the event to students and ensure that they have a successful experience. The Career Center is also working with the University's alumni office to provide networking opportunities for students.

The Career Fair will be held on March 10th, and will feature employers from a variety of industries, including finance, technology, and healthcare. The Career Center is working to ensure that employers from a wide range of industries are represented, and that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from fields that interest them.

The Career Center is also working to ensure that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from the Lawrence University Network, which includes alumni and friends of the University. The Career Center is working with the University's alumni office to provide networking opportunities for students, and to ensure that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from the University's network.

The University of Wisconsin-Madison has recently announced plans to divest from South African investments, and Lawrence is not alone in the divestment movement. Many colleges and universities across the United States and around the world are considering divesting from South African investments. The University's Investment Committee is committed to ensuring that the University's investments are consistent with its mission and values, and will continue to work with the firm to address these concerns.

Lawrence University

by Chris Krueger and Frank Masa

The Lawrence University Career Center is hosting a Career Fair this spring, featuring employers from various industries. The Career Center is working closely with the University's admissions office to promote the event to students and ensure that they have a successful experience. The Career Center is also working with the University's alumni office to provide networking opportunities for students.

The Career Fair will be held on March 10th, and will feature employers from a variety of industries, including finance, technology, and healthcare. The Career Center is working to ensure that employers from a wide range of industries are represented, and that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from fields that interest them.

The Career Center is also working to ensure that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from the Lawrence University Network, which includes alumni and friends of the University. The Career Center is working with the University's alumni office to provide networking opportunities for students, and to ensure that students have the opportunity to connect with employers from the University's network.

The University of Wisconsin-Madison has recently announced plans to divest from South African investments, and Lawrence is not alone in the divestment movement. Many colleges and universities across the United States and around the world are considering divesting from South African investments. The University's Investment Committee is committed to ensuring that the University's investments are consistent with its mission and values, and will continue to work with the firm to address these concerns.

Lawrence University
In light of this week’s article on the subject, some questions can be raised concerning the Lawrence policy on social responsibility in investments.

Central to the policy is the determination of what constitutes an unacceptable activity. What the Investment Committee determines as an unacceptable activity determines the effectiveness of the Committee’s policy.

According to LUCC, persons associated with the University of Wisconsin after the University of Wisconsin, and the Life Institute of Paper Chemistry have been unjustly granted exclusive rights to use Lawrence's facilities. The major responsibility of procuring information about corporations whose activities might be socially responsible would require an adequate interpretation and effective carry out Lawrence's policies.

Speech on Euthanasia

'Death, Dying and Euthanasia' will be the subject of the final lecture in the Biomedical Ethics, Feb. 27 at 7 p.m., Youngblood Hall. The speaker will be Robert M. Veatch, senior associate at The Hastings Center, Rockville, and his works on the Ethics, Society, Economics, and the Life Sciences, at Stanford University.

Veatch will discuss a number of questions generated by the current financial pressure on hospital systems. He will then probe the question of what it means to be dead in an era when the absence of brain waves is not accepted by some as a sign of death.

The major responsibility of procuring information about these corporations, as if it were effectively implemented, is if it is not, then the policy is a piece of paper, no policy at all.
by Anne Kissick

When it seems that research for a paper or art work is in into historical figures. By textual while trying to searching archival materials is his doctoral dissertation; Charles and including their place (or

G. K. Hall. Among other things the breathing in the past. Professor

Dr. Carter is working on between 1860-1890 that will

as a Federalist in Jefferson's

Brewer Prize of the American figures he is studying.

society). He feels the new regime in value and try to read between the professor dealing with a foreign

His latest book, a study of printed society as opposed to specific individuals. This research of the Russian middle of the

his awakening. The civil war. Professor Carter is considered a "Christian of Church History. The issue will be devoted to viewpoint. Also because the area around kings. He is himself a scholar dealing with the to聚合: America's cultural considered a "Christian Statesman," prophet; he is working on a book about during the

and society. i.e., other social generated, he feels that a

that formed the society as opposed to specific individuals. This research and including their place (or

try to read between the lines.

and Renaissance literature. Hittle feels that a just recently graduated from the having a major impact on the and aggressive participation in civil wars. This inaction had long-run consequences down in and including their place or

of the

value and try to read between the

himself a scholar dealing with the Theological and Terminology. The case of of Middle Eastern culture. Carter feels that he

that formed the society as opposed to specific individuals. This research and including their place (or

try to read between the lines.

of the

try to read between the lines.

try to read between the lines.

try to read between the lines.

try to read between the lines.

try to read between the lines.
Fisher: "Professional Ethics"

Working people have to make ethical decisions as much as students do. Moral questions that occur in the workplace are as relevant as those that arise in the abstract. Business, as practiced by the classroom Students will be finding themselves in the not too distant future.

As an example of the need for an ethical concept in the classroom Students will be encouraged to bring those situations they feel are directly relevant to their vocational diagnosis. The law is that whatever area of expertise these young women eventually make their careers in, they will have to be mindful of ethical questions. The fact that the law is that area professional lawyer, Fisher practical consideration is in Chicago law firm for some years. She is engaged in both federal and local civil service. She joined the agency for the internal development (IAD) as the principal legal officer for that country's foreign assistance program in the Paris East. In 1976 Fisher was regional administrator of the Housing and Urban Development (HUD) programs for 5 Midwest eastern states. After three years she became a special assistant to HUD Secretary George Romney. Before her appointment at Romer she was director of Harvard's Office of Career Services and Off-Campus Learning.

Career Center Poll

Cont. from page 1

This map is really a cleverly designed coupon

Individual but expensive, from $29.5 to

$29.75

Honor Code: do YOU care

The National Science Foundation has awarded Lawrence $4,000 to support research in atomic physics by two students. The grants, announced by Thomas Smith, will support a program entitled Undergraduate Research Participation (URP), which will be under the direction of John R. Brandenberger, associate professor of physics.

The grant will enable two junior physics majors to conduct research at Lawrence this summer. The NSF's purpose is to give two outstanding physics majors the opportunity to test their interest in physics and to show their ability to contribute to a serious research endeavor.

Participants in the URP project at Lawrence will conduct several experiments involving lasers that have been constructed at Lawrence.

The NSF funds will be used to cover the salaries of the students and the purchase of equipment.

The URP project is related to the central topic of the students' work, which is in the area of the laser and its physics. The students will be spending their summer working under the guidance of John Brandenberger, who is a member of the physics faculty. The students will be working on a project that is related to the central topic of the laser and its physics.

The NSF funds will be used to cover the salaries of the students and the purchase of equipment. The students will be spending their summer working under the guidance of John Brandenberger, who is a member of the physics faculty. The students will be working on a project that is related to the central topic of the laser and its physics.
Fiedler: The Advantage of Sex and Violence in Art

by Kenneth Curtis

Violence is preferable to "boredom and greyness of ordinary life.

The fantasy world of books, films and television is amoral, "beyond good and evil."

Fiedler said, "Art permits us an escape from morality, which prevents itself in a supernatural way, but can turn itself into a trap or prison."

To escape the psychological prison or permit us to turn to art, and we must accept the violence as one of its fundamental elements.

Fiedler's address was also significant for what he didn't say. His unexpressed assumptions, and failure to draw clear distinctions, provoked some criticism.

Leonard Thompson, Associate Professor of Religion, thought that the neo-Freudian interpretation "corrupted" all literary efforts to safety-valves to support morality. Looking at ironic distance from his psychological assumptions, Fiedler reduced all art to the functions of sublimation and fantasy.

In the end, Fiedler's arguments were "simple and reductionist" because of his failure to distinguish literary and social criticism. Said Thompson, "I felt cheated."

Mark Dintenfass, Associate Professor of English, is more sympathetic. He acknowledged that Fiedler had omitted a critical point: violence as an aspect of the situation. Dintenfass pointed out that Fiedler's view of violence was only one aspect of art, and though not primary, it is essential. The important observation is that "all censorship is reprehensible," because it impedes the development of "popular" or "folk" culture.

Popular art must be unencumbered if it is to express and fulfill the total psychological pattern of the culture, not just society's moral overlay.

Dintenfass felt that Fiedler was playing the role of "intellectual provocateur" in his emphasis on sexuality and violence. It is difficult to define and control them. They are the only tools that society has to deal with the demands of a neurotic world.

Fiedler's address was also important for its context. Dintenfass pointed out that, while theʃe are little known, Fiedler's arguments left him open to definitions of the situation. For this reason Fiedler concluded that all censorship was wrong, a position with which Dintenfass concurred.

Fiedler's lack of clarity in defining a context for his arguments is similar to some of his negative assumptions. In this case, Fiedler simplified the issues and took his stand against censorship. This position is worthy of consideration. Whoever he is, he succeeded in being provocative.

Dintenfass observed, "The best thing about it is that it caused a lot of talk in the halls." In terms of the Lawrence community, that is the best any conversation speaker can do.

Introducing Cousins from Milwaukee

OPEN DAILY FROM 11:00 a.m. — MIDNIGHT
FRIDAY—SATURDAY: 11:00 a.m. — 2:00 a.m.
SUNDAYS: 4:00 p.m. — MIDNIGHT

Phone Ahead for Fast Service—731-0644
347 W. College Ave. Across from the Viking Theatre
(Wadsworth's rival)

Get your Subs at Trever, Sunday nights at 9:30

We Deliver
734-4567
Ask about group rates for campus organizations, for phone orders at Sammy's.

Free Delivery to Lawrence Student 211 N. Appleton St.

Serving Lawrence for over 20 years.

Soc. Prof. Hired

Ann Leffler will join the Lawrence University faculty at the beginning of the spring term as an instructor of sociology.

Leffler will teach courses in introductory sociology, research methods, social psychology, and deviant behavior.

Leffler, a native of West Point, N.Y., earned her bachelor's degree in sociology with honors from Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass. She holds a master's degree in sociology from the University of California at Berkeley and will receive her doctorate from that school in June.

Before her appointment at Lawrence Leffler was a teaching associate and graduate assistant in social psychology at Brandeis University. She also was an instructor at Richmond College, City University of New York.

Leffler is a member of the American Sociological Association and has written several articles and reviews in sociology journals.

Lawrence Student

Job's Nurse here Tuesday night.

Dean Downwind.
Three Lawrence Art Majors, Sue Choate, Teri Herbst, and Cindy Smith had photographs accepted in Photog ’79, a national combined invitational and competitive exhibition sponsored by Colby College, Colby, Kansas. The exhibition dates are March 11 thru April 30. The exhibition is then scheduled to travel.

Artists invited to exhibit in Photog ’79 include nationally known photographers Judy Dater, San Francisco Art Institute; Sonia Sheridan, Chicago School of the Art Institute; and Bea Nelisse, Rochester Institute of Technology. The exhibition was juried by Calvin Sparks, professor at the University of Denver and recipient of two Ford Foundation grants in drawing and photography.

Sue Choate will be exhibiting three photographs. The pictured photograph is a part of a recent series which explores shirts and their ramifications in various two and three dimensional media. She is interested in the juxtaposition of hard and soft forms.

Teri Herbst’s accepted photographs reflect her concerns for geometrical simplifications and flattening of shapes, very similar to work in her painting and printmaking.

The series of photographs submitted by Cindy Smith all deal with similar subject matter. They reflect an interest in mirror images and a concern for the negative areas created by the way they are mounted.

All three students will be participating in a Lawrence photography group show in the capital building in Madison April 22 thru 28. Cindy and Teri will be exhibiting this spring in the Worcester Art Center for their senior shows.

W E E K E N D  F I L M :
“The Last Picture Show”

The work of Peter Bogdanovich is excellently directed “The Last Picture Show.” This is essentially the story of a group of high school students coming of age. The setting is a small Texas town during the early 1950’s. The film, an incisive look at middle American life, includes an Oscar winning performance by Cloris Leachman as the frustrated housewife. Also starring are Jeff Bridges, Cybill Shepherd, and Timothy Bottoms. It’s well worth seeing.

FREE DELIVERY With This Ad
— Drive-Up Window now available
— Also, Hungri’s will now be open until after bar closing (2 a.m.)

MEAL ON A BUN
TWO LOCATIONS
1408 N. Richmond 145 High Street
Appleton, Wis. (Next to campus) Oshkosh, Wis.
733-0172 235-0223
Phone for Pick-up & Delivery
Open 10:30 a.m. to Midnight Everyday

Beginning Monday, FEBRUARY 26th:
Conkey’s Big Annual Sale

CONKEY’S
226 E College Ave.
739-1223
Connotations

Personal

Beau, Blair, how is it going? I've heard you're dating a girl in the Law School. In fact, I've even heard she's working at the Law School.

Annoyance

The most important thing I heard last night was that Tim Mangan is going to be pursuing his Ph.D. I know it's a big deal for him, but I don't think it's as big a deal for me.

Three Cheers

Firstly, let me say that I'm really excited about the new student government. I think it's going to be a really positive change for the university.

Annoyance

When I see people wearing shorts in the winter, I always think to myself, "What is wrong with them?" Why do they have to suffer through the cold?

Two Cheers

Secondly, I'm glad to hear that the university is finally doing something about the parking situation. I think it's about time they addressed it.

Annoyance

When I see people parking in the no-parking zones, I always think to myself, "What is wrong with them?" Why do they have to cause so much inconvenience for others?

The Lawrence

I think the university should do more to support student organizations. I think they have a lot of potential for growth and development.

Annoyance

When I see people not participating in student organizations, I always think to myself, "What is wrong with them?" Why do they have to miss out on all the fun and opportunities?

Three Cheers

Firstly, I'm really happy about the new athletic facilities. I think they're going to be a huge improvement for the university.

Annoyance

When I see people not using the new athletic facilities, I always think to myself, "What is wrong with them?" Why do they have to miss out on all the fun and opportunities?

Two Cheers

Secondly, I'm glad to hear that the university is finally doing something about the food situation. I think it's about time they addressed it.

Annoyance

When I see people not eating at the university food service, I always think to myself, "What is wrong with them?" Why do they have to choose such terrible options?

The Lawrence

I think the university should do more to support student organizations. I think they have a lot of potential for growth and development.

Annoyance

When I see people not participating in student organizations, I always think to myself, "What is wrong with them?" Why do they have to miss out on all the fun and opportunities?

HOLIDAY TRAVEL SERVICE

CALL COLLECT FOR RESERVATIONS

Daytona Beach
March 17-24, 1979
$279 per person

(Opt 1-800-429-5711)

(Opt 1-800-336-3333)

(Quad occupancy)

(Quad occupancy)

(Triple occupancy significantly higher)

The above price includes all the following:

* Roundtrip deluxe motorcoach transportation from Lawrence University to University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee
* Roundtrip non-stop daytime flight (including in-flight meals) from Milwaukee to Daytona Beach
* Roundtrip transfers from Daytona Beach Airport to hotel
* 7 nights accommodations in beachfront hotel

There are also optional side trips available to visit Walt Disney World, Marineland and Dog Race Track.

For Reservations & Information Contact:
HOLIDAY TRAVEL SERVICE
2117 S. Oneida St., Green Bay, Wisc. 54304
(414) 499-0005
Pick Up Free Brochures at Lawrence University Office.
Dear Friends,

We started off with "Dear Friends" to catch your attention, hopefully now you will read the rest of this article.

We have some good news and some bad news. The good news is that we won Friday's swim meet against UW-Parkside at which we won Friday's swim meet (80-63). The bad news is that we are one of these next two games will determine if we make the WIC-WAC playoffs. The squad will be playing St. Norberts Wednesday evening at 7 in Lawrence. The Thetas trampled Mr. Bill's team with a score of 119-19. We are now up 9-1 in the WIC-WAC.

The Lawrence University basketball team played a close high scoring game against the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point. Both teams played well, however, the Pointers managed to stay on top for the win by a score of 94-80. The Pointers have the momentum heading into these next two games and the WIC-WAC playoffs.

Women still in the race

The women's basketball team played a close high scoring game against the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point. Both teams played well, however, the Pointers managed to stay on top for the win by a score of 94-80. The Pointers have the momentum heading into these next two games and the WIC-WAC playoffs.

The women's basketball team played a close high scoring game against the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point. Both teams played well, however, the Pointers managed to stay on top for the win by a score of 94-80. The Pointers have the momentum heading into these next two games and the WIC-WAC playoffs.

Women still in the race

The women's basketball team played a close high scoring game against the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point. Both teams played well, however, the Pointers managed to stay on top for the win by a score of 94-80. The Pointers have the momentum heading into these next two games and the WIC-WAC playoffs.