PROGRAM NOTES from Rodney Rogers:

“The first movement, an unfolding quiet, is dedicated to the memory of Paul Hollinger, a colleague and mentor from my days at Lawrence University in Appleton, Wisconsin. Another colleague and friend, Steven Jordheim, commissioned the composition for the sesquicentennial observance of the patent for the saxophone and the founding of Lawrence University. The instrumentation includes the full complement of saxophones with the addition of six percussionists, piano, and double bass. After the meditative opening movement, complicated optimism represents a live reworking of the first movement’s ideas (two views – of the same material).”
