Navy Program Assumes Active Duty At Lawrence

'All Hands on Deck' Becomes Watchword of Lawrentians As Navy Surges 'Cross Campus

Lawrence college is again under way; this time, however, with "Anchors Aweigh" and "All Hands on Deck." The addition of 300 of "the best navy in the world's" officer candidates have definitely given this campus a war-time atmosphere. Under the command of Lt. A. B. Rothwell, these men are here to obtain as much education as possible before being called to midshipman's training with their ultimate goal the receiving of their commission as an ensign. The present attendance is 300. However, Lt. Rothwell expects to receive a few more men in the unit, making the total around 305.

With this complement of men, organizations such as A Cappella, football and basketball should be well equipped units. Participation in all college extra-curricular activities was enthusiastically encouraged by Lt. Rothwell. In his address to the entire unit last Friday evening Lt. Rothwell stated that men in the Navy have the same obligations and privileges that civilian students have. Social fraternities, A Cappella, drama, and other campus activities are open for membership to all V-12 students. This policy is in direct keeping with a Navy announcement some time ago when these college training units were in the process of being born.

New Members Hired to Fill Staff Vacancies

Brenner, Dearstyne, Dewey, Humber, Voss Join College Faculty

Five assistant professors, three assistant instructors and a library cataloguer have been added to the Lawrence college staff for this year. Richard Dewey is assistant professor of sociology. He holds a BA from Wooster college and an MA from Oberlin. All the work for his Ph.D. except his dissertation was done at the University of Wisconsin. He has spent a year at Western Reserve school of social work and has taught at Oberlin and the University of Wisconsin and Butler university.

Lawrence Voss has been named assistant professor of drama. He holds a BA and an MA from Cornell university where he also did the work for his Ph.D. except for his dissertation. Mr. Voss spent five years as technical director of the Cornell university theater. He has also taught at Iowa State and the University of Wyoming.

Architect
A practicing architect, Howard Dearstyne is assistant professor of art. He holds a BA degree from Columbia, where he did a year's graduate work and spent a year as a medical student. He spent two years in the Columbia school of architecture and four years at

Ship's Company
The ship's company of this unit includes, along with Lt. Rothwell, the commanding officer, Lt. (J.G.) Taylor, executive officer; Lt. Crandall, medical officer; Chief Petty Officer Churchill, Chief Petty Officer Reichert, Yeoman Third Class Hodgskin, Yeoman Second Class Salis, Storekeeper Second Class Gacon, and Pharmacist's Mate Morrison.

The Navy has been well pleased with the facilities and the hospitality of Lawrence college and of the community of Appleton. Lawrence may indeed feel proud to be able to welcome this type of unit.

L.W.A. Sponsors Activity Program For Coming Year

L.W.A. isn't losing any time in getting started this year, and at the first meeting last night a lot of plans were made to make this a year chuck full of L.W.A. activity.

There will have to be, of course, a lot of changes made in the regular L.W.A. program, but wherever some event had to be dropped because of the change in the school calendar, food shortage, etc., there has been a new and better something planned.

As usual L.W.A. will hold open-house every so often, sponsor the Hag Drag (when the women do the asking and the paying!), continue the tradition of Best Loved and the Best Loved Banquet, and the senior May Queen will become a Snow Queen.

So keep your eyes on the L.W.A. members—they're determined to pack a lot of fun and activity into this year.

Give Ripon President Doctor of Laws Degree

Clark J. Kuebler, newly elected president of Ripon college, was awarded the honorary doctor of laws degree, honoris causa, by Lawrence college at the matriculation day exercises yesterday. The honorary degree was conferred by President Thomas N. Barrows.

Preceding the traditional academic procession, the members of the Navy V-12 program marched in formation into the Chapel to take their seats in the middle section of the first floor.

Brilliant Speakers
Dr. Kuebler, a brilliant and captivating speaker, asserted in his presentation of the matriculation day speech that the greatest problem of the whole world is the winning and maintaining of freedom. Some people will get freedom for the first time; other people will get it back again, and here under God that freedom must be maintained.

"We need both enlightened citizenship and even more enlightened leadership. Education is extremely vital. We must continue to grow in enlightenment; the educational experience must become real," the speaker contended.

The speaker beseeched the students to do three things while they are in college. First, to learn how little they know; second, to learn it is fun to learn; and third, to keep learning continuously.

Dean Announces Cutting Rules

Mr. Donald DuShane, dean of students, announces the class absence and cutting rules for this year to be as follows:

Students are expected to attend all class meetings. Absences must be excused or be excusable by the infirmary or the dean.

Students are also expected to attend convocation, held in the chapel once a week. More than two unexcused absences a semester will be considered excessive.

Social Group Plans Varied Activities

Planned social activity of varying types for every weekend of the school year is the aim of the social committee this year, according to Robert Lehman, its chairman. With the increase in the budget the social committee expects a very successful year.

As the committee explains, in addition to its regular work of planning dances, it will act in a supervisory capacity over other organizations responsible for certain weekends' entertainment. When these organizations (such as L. W. A., the navy unit, or pep committee, for example) assume such responsibility they will have access to the social budget for their project. By this extensive and varied program the committee hopes to furnish adequate weekend recreation and entertainment for the navy unit and new students on campus.

The social committee expects to have $300 a month available for this program, and hopes to include at least one dance a month.

Robert Lehman, social chairman, will be assisted by Frances Lattin, Leroy Zick, Jeanne Burke, Ed Nye, and Janet Rike. In the near future, he hopes to add several Navy men to this group.

Counselor Is Named

Lois Rauschenberger has been appointed freshman girls' counselor to take the place of Dorothy Ruddy, who is not returning to Lawrence until November.

Artist Series For 1943-44 Is Announced

The 1943-44 Community artist series will bring to Appleton a number of outstanding musicians ranging from vocalists to duo-pianists. Lawrence college students will be given an opportunity this year as in the past to hear top-ranking artists without having to pay concert-hall prices for admission.

Students are admitted with activities tickets distributed by the business office later in the year.

The concert series this year will include: Thomas L. Thomas, baritone, September 30; Morley and Gearhart, duo-pianists, November 8; Blanche Thebom, mezzo-soprano, February 8; Klaus Liepmann, violinist, March 8; and Robert Casadesu, pianist, April 20.

Hold Convocation Every Thursday

Convocation will be held every Thursday at 11 o'clock. No other classes will meet at that time. This single 11 o'clock convocation will replace the Monday and Thursday convocation of last year. There will be no time cut in classes.

We are Glad to be Here

THE ADMINISTRATION, the staff, and the civilian students of the college have made the members of the U. S. Naval Training unit station at Lawrence college, feel most welcome. We appreciate genuinely this cordial reception.

It is the intention of the U. S. Navy that the trainees assigned to this college shall consider themselves Lawrence college students just as wholeheartedly as do the other members of the student body. Trainees are encouraged to participate in all normal college activities that do not conflict with the routine necessary to complete their obligations to the naval program.

Comments by officers, members of the ship's company, and trainees have been in complete agreement that we are indeed conscious of our good fortune on being assigned to duty at Lawrence college.

A. B. Rothwell, Lieut., USNR.
Commanding Officer.

We are Glad You're Here

ON BEHALF of the faculty, may I extend a cordial welcome to all those who enter our halls for the first time this month. We Lawrentians are proud of our high academic standards, our fine traditions, and our democratic and wholesome student life. We are happy indeed that Lawrence men and women in training for professional and technical service to their country have been joined now by men in the navy unit who are not only in the navy, but are fully matriculated regular students in Lawrence college, and are no less devoted to the educational objectives in which we all believe.

We are particularly happy to have such a fine group of men from the fleet who have been selected for their outstanding qualities for this special training. We are proud of the records they have already made and assure them that we shall do everything we can to help them "get back into the swing" of the academic life.

We are fortunate and happy that Lawrence college has been given its opportunity to serve our country in this particular manner, and we are confident that the college's ideals of high scholarship and sound character will be strengthened by the achievements of our students, navy and civilian, in 1943-44.

Thomas N. Barrows
President of the College

Happy Days Are Coming

According to the Sage statisticians, whose headquarters are located on the first floor sunning porch, there are now approximately 1,680 men to every woman on the Lawrence campus. This ratio is considerably more favorable from the feminine standpoint—and may we be forgiven for our modest assumption that the masculine portion will not find it too disagreeable—and enables every fem to have a change of dates each two and one-half days.

Since there are 16 weeks or 112 days per semester, the mathematicians discovered, by a process of simple multiplication, that each campus belle may reasonably expect 188.16 dates per semester—assuming, of course, that all men will recognize their social as well as scholastic obligations. These carefully checked and rechecked computations allow for something like 1.67 dates per day.

Discounting the number of disinterested males plus the number of attached ones, gives us a total of somewhere around 60 fellows of whose cooperation we despair. (Of course this figure is purely guesswork based on unauthentic records of previous years.) Even allowing for such foolish souls, a pleasant-to-contemplate ratio of 1.395 men to every woman prevails. If this were the case approximately 155.68 dates will be made each semester, or exactly 1.39 dates per day.

Sagittes are agitating for shortened class periods and complete elimination of afternoon scholastic sessions to take care of the increased social demands upon their time. It is hoped that the deans, house mothers and anyone else concerned will lend their wholehearted efforts to insure the success of the new program.

Investigators Find Baffled Sage Women

"Oh, how I hate to get up in the morning—" and find the breakfast parade forestalled by a column of civilian men—filing right past the rooms on first-floor Sage! If this happens to you, gal, there are two alternatives: (1) brazen it despite sleep-laden eyes, tousled heads and barrel-fit pajamas, (2) miss breakfast.

They tell me that there's a side entrance to the building, but what good is a door without a doorknob? About as convenient as a lamp without a bulb, huh?

Well, let's stop grousing and get down to the less disastrous elements of change in life at Lawrence.

The gals are putting on stipple for breakfast now, and that's an improvement; and the men in the dining room are the reason for many a hefty lass's eating more lightly.

Lawrentians are getting a big bang out of the navy boys' drilling on the west campus. "To the rear—march!" the head guy bellows. When the smoke clears, about a dozen fellows are out of step, out of line and out of mind.

And isn't it strange to see last year's Lawrence civilians in uniform? Fact is, it's nice to see the uniforms in Snider's, in class, and on the avenue.

What it all adds up to is a timely suggestion for the femmes on their numerous (these days) trips to Pan-Hel and the Con: If you would oggle at 'em, wear sun glasses! It's subtle.

Gob-Nobbing

Herein lies—(if the printer accidentally put a period after that last word, don't believe it, every word is the truth, so help us)—a few random notes on the goings-on on the west side of the campus, exclusive of Pan-Hel, of course. It is roughly designed to give the non-navy element a gobs-eye view of the gobs and perhaps give the sailors a little picture of themselves. It will be neither brilliantly nor cleverly conceived and it might be your misfortune to see it jump out at you every week. It wasn't our idea to do it, in fact, we are going to quit as soon as we can find out where the editor hid our Esquire, because he won't give it back until we grind this stuff out.

One of the more important changes that the navy is bringing to the campus affects the girls directly—and in the matter of dates too. If one of the boys requests your pleasure, and then tells you he will be around at 1930 telling you in slightly more baffling terms—don't start thinking that maybe all that your mother has told you about sailors is true. He is merely giving you straight navy jargon. To be more specific: The Navy, as well as all other branches of the armed forces, consider the day as one 24 hour period rather than two 12 hour periods. Consequently, 7:30 a. m. becomes 0730, 12 noon becomes 1200, and 7:30 p. m. becomes 1930. Insofar as the 'baffling terms' go, we'll get around to them sometime later. After all, girls, the important thing is not how you got the date, but when the date is.

Well, the uniforms finally arrived, the same arrival of which was subject to a good deal of conjecture. It seemed that the measurements which the uniforms were measured up to and the measurements which the trainees were measured up to were two different figures—in some cases, quite completely different. The procedure for drawing uniforms consisted of three steps: first, to go and draw the equipment; second, to try it on; and third, to take all the stuff back and get something that more or less fit. After spending several weary hours making exchanges, one of the men from the fleet who was helping issue the uniforms turned and stared at the long line yet remaining and remarked (in part, approximately): "What do they think this is?" only he used more typically, but specifically, gob gab.

The companies in Ormsby and Brokaw both eat at Brokaw and this necessitates eating in two shifts. The fellows have expressed great aversion to eating in the second shift or even toward the end of the first. It is not that they won't get as much to eat—taint so—but it is due to the fact that they eat cafeteria style and consequently have to stand in line and watch the rest of the boys eat before they get their tray. It doesn't make much difference when they are sitting on the far side of the mess hall, you can't see what they are eating anyway, but when the room fills up and they are sitting right under your nose, one's morale is horribly bent to see all that food and then not be in direct contact with it.

Perhaps the most grievous hardship wrought upon the usta-was-civilian navy boys is this business of hopping out of one's bunk bright and cheerful at 0600 (which might also be stated: oh, oh—0600). It is not so bad now, the sun being up and warming the landscape at that time, but when the frost is on the pumpkin—oy—!!

Weigh anchor!

Gobnobber.

Sorority Rushing Parties Provide Fun, Entertainment

Social events this week have consisted entirely of rushing parties given by each of the sororities. Rushes will attest to the fact that they have been lively, entertaining and fun. The parties are nearly over now and will end tomorrow night with the last evening snack. Last but not least, there will be the excitement of pledging on Sunday ending with the pledge banquets in the evening.

Early in the week rushes were entertained at various kinds of parties. The DG's had night club party at the "Captain's Hour" with a floor show, bar and all the trimmings. Dancing by Mardi Bryant and a comedy skit presented by Marce Sylvester, Betty Fountain, Rosellen Bergman and Charlene Juergens entertained the girls. Served at the bar were cheese crackers and limeade—intended to be a Tom Collins without the oomph.

The KD's had a timely service party. The rushes were instructed to join either the WAC or the WAVES and to pass their physicals. Finally the girls were given cookies and ginger ale at the club. During the afternoon an appropriate contest took place between the WAC and the WAVES, to see which side could peel potatoes faster. Piano music was provided by Rosemary Halldorson for atmosphere. The KD's will hold their last snack party tomorrow evening in their rooms.

Wednesday the Alpha Chis had a treasure hunt in the city park with sandwiches, cakes and orange drinks waiting for them at the end of the hunt. The way to the treasure was laid out by Shirley Loth, Marge Iwen and Mary Ann Schiller. The rushes were led on a lively chase.

Adopting the traditional atmosphere, the Thetas held a bowery party. There were checkered table cloths and candles on the tables, singing and entertainment with old-time, gay nineties costumes. Peggy Totman gave a rendition of "Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage," and Marilyn Klein interpreted "My Man." The rushes were served root beer, pretzels and potato chips from the bowery bar.

The Pi Phis had a surrealist party with decorations consisting of disconnected arms, legs, and torsos adorned in ultra-modern style. The rushes were given material to contrive hats. Refreshments in the guise of tea and cakes turned out to be punch and cheese sandwiches. A skit was presented by Bea Bolder, Carol Amerman and Joan Green.

The A.D.P.'s had a parlor party at which "Mrs. Pittypat's Precious Proteges" entertained their guests with various skits and songs. Ruth Rossa gave a humorous monologue, and Margaret Heuring, Shirley Fox, Grace Damman, Janet Chapman and JoAnn Casper provided entertainment with a lively ditty called "Twas a Dark and Stormy Night."

From the Editor's Easy Chair

WELCOME NAVY! We're mighty glad to have you coming to Lawrence. From now on you are Lawrentians, and all the older Lawrentians hope that you'll make yourselves at home on the Viking campus as soon as possible. Wherever possible it will be a fine thing to have the navy men participating in campus activities shoulder to shoulder with the civilians.

You men are part of Lawrence now, and we know that you're going to be very busy working with studies, drilling and preparing to do a good job in the navy; however, college is not all classrooms and study. It is far more than that, for in order to have a well-rounded college career, participation in extra-curricular and social activities is vital. The best way to get acquainted and to really know college life is through working with others in the many activities offered here.

Lawrence is particularly fortunate in having a varied program which contains all types of activities from football to journalism. One of our chief activities at Lawrence is the college capella choir directed by Dean Waterman. This ranks with football, and Lawrence was tops in both last year. We want to keep both on top this year. A Capella isn't anything sissy; eleven lettermen from varsity teams were in it last year, and they really enjoyed the experience.

The choir has the reputation of being one of the best in the Middle West. The music critic of the Chicago Daily News wrote, "The Lawrence college choir is among the finest that visits Chicago." And that means something!

Now is the time to contact Dean Waterman at the conservatory and try out for the choir. This is your opportunity to take part in a large and popular college organization where your work will be amply rewarded.

The Lawrentian and Ariel are desirous of adding navy men to their staffs in order to get a full coverage of the news. These and the other activities at Lawrence such as sports, fraternities, dramatics and forensics play an important part in a well-integrated college program. To be sure this is no time to relax in your studies, but a happy social life and a satisfying experience in extra-curricular activities will provide you with a refreshing change that will enable you to return to your books with greater zest.

Sportin' Around

BY DICK McFARLAND

A week ago Bernie Heseltan was one of the happiest football coaches in the country. A navy V-12 unit of more than 300 men had been added at Lawrence college from which the blond-haired Viking mentor could fill in the many gaps left by departed civilians.

But several problems arose this week which leave Coach Heseltan mopping his brow much the same as other coaches are doing.

All other teams in the Midwest conference have army units on their campuses, and, since the army has signified thumbs down to intercollegiate sports, the Vikings will have to play all of their games with non-conference teams. The schedule, consequently, won't be completed until sometime in August.

Another thing that clouded the football prospects was the discovery that freshmen in uniform will be ineligible during their first year in school.

If the classroom schedule isn't too tough and time is available, however, there will be enough navy men on hand to give Bernie one of the largest squads he has ever had when practice begins early in August.

A show of hands this week revealed that 43 upperclassmen apprentice seamen hope to join Lawrence's football squad.

Competitive sports is going to be a big item on the campus here this year, most of it within the navy. The newly - uniformed sailors were given their first taste of running and calisthenics a week ago today, the first day on active duty.

Latest addition to the program was the daily hour of physical conditioning which was initiated Wednesday, just when the fellows were beginning to feel the stiffness from early morning workouts.

The navy students, although they are about 1,000 miles from the nearest ocean, learned this week that they may not have to be dry-land sailors after all. Art Denney of the physical education department has been planning to give the navy boys a chance to act as crews on several sail boats on Lake Winnebago.

Plans are still in the formulative stage, but at least two crews have already been assured of a novel time "at sea" during weekend liberties.

51 Civilians Try New Setup Physical Education Program Is Planned On Individual Needs

The fifty-one civilian men now attending Lawrence will be the first to try the newest innovation in men's physical education program. The new program, which has been approved by the school board, will be in full swing within a week or ten days.

According to Coach Art Denney, head of the physical education department, the students will be allowed to choose their own gym program. The entire group of civilian gym students will meet to express the type of sport they wish to participate in during the summer, whether it be tennis, golf, swimming or most any other sport. At a meeting in the near future men in the civilian gym program will choose several from their own group to act as leaders or organizers, whose job it will be to see that the teams are organized and that games and meets are carried out as scheduled. The extended intramural sports program includes soft-ball, tag-ball, basket-ball, volleyball leagues, tennis and golf tournaments.

There are two reasons for the changed program; first, the summer session, which is the first in the history of Lawrence necessitates it; second, the Navy V-12, which has moved onto the Lawrence campus, has taken over the facilities of the men's gym.

Allot Activities Fee

The budget and allotment of the activities fee which was discussed at the last meeting of the executive committee Tuesday evening will be voted upon by the governing group next week. Complete details will be printed in next week's Lawrentian.

Women's Angle

By Carole McCarthy

Hi all you new Lawrentians! Here's a great big welcome to all you women who are part of WAA, and that means every one of you. Since the plans have been tentatively made for women's sports, here's a brief resume of what they are. The WAA board is waiting for all of you to come out for what is being offered.

It looks as though softball is the first thing on the list. This is not only new to you freshmen and transfers, but it is also new to girls' sports in general. Since school has never been in session in the summer before, there has been no need for the game. Intramural softball will start about the middle of this month and will be followed by inter-sorority games.

The big gym will be open for recreational swimming but not for regular classes this year. It seems that the Navy wants to be sure its boys can swim, and we can't blame them. The exact time for this recreational swimming is still a deep dark secret.

Hockey, volleyball, basketball, archery, tennis and ping pong will be coming up in season. Intramural games are always announced on the bulletin boards in the dorms and girls can sign up if they want to play. They can check in LWA handbooks for the actual dates. Now let's see a lot of you girls out for these games.

Jim Fieweger Brings School To Tenth Place

Lawrence Trackman Is Second by 3 Yards To Cummins of Rice

Jim Fieweger brought Lawrence to tenth place in the National A. A. U. team championship with 14 points, and if he hadn't had to tangle with the best hurdler in the country, he might have grabbed off two individual titles all by himself.

The top timber-topper was Bill Cummins from Rice institute. Fieweger finished second by three yards to Cummins in the 110-meter event and was third behind Cummins and Warren Halliburton, of New York, in the 200. Halliburton just beat him by inches for the place spot because he banged his knee on one of the barriers.

Takes Second

In addition, Fieweger also wound up third in the junior national 110-meter event. But he had the pleasure of coming back to finish in front of his conqueror, Don C. Jacques, of Texas, in both senior events.

After winning his trial heat in the senior 110 in 14.6 the Viking whirlwind picked up the eight points for second place in the final which Cummins captured in 14.3. In the 200 he was second in his trial to Halliburton in 23.4—a heat, incidentally, in which Cummins came in third. In the final, he ranged up to challenge Halliburton for second place until a few yards from home and finally was beaten a foot and a half for the runnerup spot. Cummins took the top money in 22.8.

"But I'm satisfied that I placed in both," Fieweger said later, "even though the winning times were poorer than the best I've done in the past."

Tuberculosis Unit To Visit Campus

The Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Mobile unit will be on the campus Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 19, 20, and 21. During the unit's stay all students and staff members will be given an opportunity to be x-rayed for tuberculosis.

Dr. David Gallaher recommends that all civilian students submit to examination at the infirmary where the unit will be stationed. The deans' office will notify students of individual appointment.

Writer Expresses Critical Opinions On Local Theatrical Entertainment

BY DAN WELCH

We think the persons responsible for the current rumor that vaudeville is "passe" are to say the least, mistaken. Any institution which can provide comely young vocalists to mug with an unsuspecting sailor in front of 800 persons will by sheer perseverance and strength of character survive.

It was with considerable amazement that we witnessed such a spectacle this week at the Rio. After the act it seemed the best thing to find out if the singer, Dotty Dodson by name, makes such carryings on a regular part of her life. After Dotty had seriously unnerved a goodly part of the fleet by her cavortings with one David Jedwabny of Brokaw hall, we rushed backstage to speak with her and caught her just as she was leaving the building under convoy of two band members.

The sight of us bearing down on her with purpose in our eyes caused Dotty some alarm, but everything was straightened out when we made known the nature of our errand. In the hotel lobby, everyone was settled comfortably to a period of interrogation, but before the festivities commenced, Miss Dodson leaped to her feet with astonishing agility, causing general alarm closeby. A feminine oath escaped her as she raised her formal skirt and surveyed the ruin in her hose caused by a runner from here to there.

"Oh yes, sailors are wonderful," Dotty cooed when order was restored. "They are really all right; and that Jedwabny, he was sooo suhweet. Honestly, his knees were trembling so on the stage I thought he would fall. He is a darling, and I'm going to send him my picture," she further informed.

We found that Dotty hails from

Victoria, Texas, and for the benefit of the bureau of vital statistics, is 22 years old, has completed 21 months with Chuch Foster's band, and is absolutely devoid of any ambition in particular.

Dotty advised that her most popular request is an unearthly Latin-American rhumba tune called "Elube Chonga" but we suspect that the usual dance routine accompanying the number may be partially responsible for this popularity. She also told that she finds the reaction in theaters different from audience reaction at Chicago's Blackhawk hotel where she and the band are currently appearing. It seems that theater audiences appreciate things more because they are waiting to be entertained. Dancers, darn them, are having too much fun by themselves to seriously appreciate an artist.

Just when we began to think that the act with Sailor Jedwabny was strictly on the level, Maestro Foster arrived to inform Dotty that she had better spot another sailor for the 9:30 show.

In these days of rationing, it is most gratifying to find that the most precious of all substances, the milk of human kindness, is still abundant especially in Wisconsin and especially in Appleton.

Most of us have been basking reptile fashion of late in the sunny smiles and pleasant greetings of the local civilians who seem to go out of their respective ways to make us feel that Appleton is going to enjoy playing host to this portion of Uncle Sam's fleet. We want to assure them that we appreciate this sentiment and that we shall do all in our power to be worthy of the honor.

There is a distinct psychological impact in donning a uniform even though such an act has been anticipated for a 12-month. One feels sort of alone and strangely different. The best antidote we know is friendliness and a verbal or figurative pat on the back from Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public.

The singing of "Anchors Aweigh" at last Friday night's dance was noticeably weak, especially from the masculine end of the choir. For the benefit of all those who may be hesitant about the words of this, our favorite hymn, we forthwith print the following:

Anchors aweigh my boys, anchors aweigh,
Farewell to college joys
We sail at break of daaay.
