Director’s Note:
We live in a dynamic and turbulent period in our nation’s history. On June 27, 2015, the Supreme Court granted marriage equality rights to all citizens, prohibiting discrimination based on sexual identity. On June 12, 2016, the Orlando nightclub Pulse was the site of the deadliest single-gunman attack in U.S. history. These two events, within a year’s time, give witness to civil rights and terror, to progress and to violence.

Lawrence takes its motto from Goethe: “Light, more light!” Tonight we call for “love, more love!” Our music this evening celebrates love, and acknowledges that the American choral tradition, while priding itself on being a safe space for LGBTQ+ singers, has too often left silent the voices of poets and composers who did not fit into the male heteronormative category. On the day after the attack at Pulse, when Lin-Manuel Miranda could have been celebrating the many Tonys received for his magnum opus, Hamilton, he called America to remember that “love is love is love cannot be killed or swept aside.” So, we sing. We sing for love, more love!

Notes and Translations

Don't Let Go (2009)
Words and Music by Ysaye M. Barnwell
Commissioned by The King’s Singers

Verse 1:
We know - no river's been rejected by an ocean.
That is why I can't get over wanting you but once a river flows down into the ocean
By that ocean, it finds itself consumed.

Chorus:
so let's hold on, all we have is one another let's hold tight. Hold on and don't let go of the air, the earth, the midnight stars, the river.
Let's hold on to each other. Don't let go.

Verse 2:
The midnight sky embraces every shining star that is why I can't get over loving you though each star sends forth its radiant beams of night light by a cloud, brilliant star light can be doomed.

Verse 3:
The earth supplies us with our every need that is why I can't get over losing you we think the earth is boundless in its giving but it's shrinking now, depleted from our use.

Chorus

Verse 4:
The air we breathe is here for every one of us that is why I can't get over missing you each breath we take is searching for the air we need sometimes too thick, too thin, too heavy, too perfumed.

Chorus
Memorial
Words by Kahlil Gibran (1883-1931)
Music by Jane Ramseyer Miller (b. 1962)

And when the earth shall claim thy limbs, then shall you truly dance.

Composer's Notes:
I discovered the words for this piece several years ago when the Names Project AIDS Memorial Quilt was displayed at the Minneapolis Metrodome. It was the first time I had ever seen the Quilt and I was astonished and moved by the number of artists, dancers and musicians remembered through Quilt panels. The words “And when the earth shall claim thy limbs, then shall you truly dance” were included on a panel for a man named Richard Thomas. It wasn’t until several years after I had set these amazing words to music that I discovered they were written by poet, Kahlil Gibran. The music for AIDS Quilt Memorial was created intentionally as a round - symbolic of the cyclical nature of life and earth, sadness and celebration.

Lark
Poem by Genevieve Taggard (1894-1948)
Music by Aaron Copland (1900-1990)

O, Lark, from great dark, arise!
O, lark of light,
O, lightness like a spark,
Shock ears and stun our eyes
Singing the day-rise, the day-rise, the great day-rise.
O Believer, Rejoicer, say
Before Evidence of Day
The Sun is Risen_.
Where
No sun is, come loudly in the air;
Let ear and eye prepare
To see and hear, truly to see and hear;
To hear thy three-fold welcome in the air,
To see all dazzle after long despair,
To see what none may see no, singer, singer fair, so fair.
O, lark alert, O, lark alive,
O lovely, lovely chanting arrow-lark,
Sprung like an arrow from the bow of dark,
O, lark arise
Sing the day-rise,
  The great day-rise.

Io v’amo vita mia
Poem by Annibale Pocaterra (fl. 16th cent.)
Music by Vittoria Aleotti (c.1575-1620)

“I love you, my life”,
Often I wanted to say, and I burn, alas.
Love, shame, and shyness shut my voice within my lips,
And have changed me from a living man to mute stone.
Love, if you but wish that I not speak of my sufferings and that I sigh,
Tell them to her who consumes and destroys me,
And warm her breast with your torch.

“Let Him Kiss Me”, from Four Songs of Love
Text from Song of Songs 1:2, 15
Music by Sven-David Sandström (b. 1942)

Let him kiss me with kisses of his mouth: for thy love is better than wine.
Behold, thou art fair my love.

Unleash the Beauty
Poem by Sappho (c.620-c.570 b.c.e.)
Translation and music by Alexander Campkin (b. 1984)

I stand before you, face to face,
Captivated by your sight,
Your soft laughter,
And your voice most gentle.

When I see you
A dead trembling overwhelms me,
And everything else is darkness.
I am silenced.

Then my heart flutters wildly.
I hear my pulse thundering
With the sweat of emotion.
Fire tingles through my flesh.

Composer’s Note:
The text by Sappho contains so much energy, drive and emotion, which made it an excellent choice to set to music. Whilst we have no record of how Sappho set her texts to music on the Greek island of Lesbos in 600BC, I feel fortunate that we at least have record of these inspiring words. I have reinterpreted this text in a contemporary choral idiom which I feel has the power to move listeners today. This piece explores a range of vocal and colouristic effects to reflect the energy, beauty and passion within this text. I contrast fast lines with lyrical duets in the upper voices, as I create expansive soundworlds by combining singing alongside effects such as whistling and chord clusters.

The Seeds of Love (circa 1689)
Text by Mrs. Fleetwood Habergham (d. 1703)

I sowed the seeds of love, and it was all in the spring,
In April, May, and June, likewise, when small birds they do sing;
My garden is well planted with flowers everywhere,
Yet for myself I could not choose the flower that I loved so dear.
My gardener he stood by, I asked him to choose for me,
He chose me the violet, the lily and pink, but those I refused all three;
The violet I forsook, because it fades so soon,
The lily and pink I did o’erlook, and I vowed I’d stay till June.
In June there’s a red rosebud, and that’s the flower for me!
But oft have I plucked at the red rosebud till I gained the willow tree;
The willow tree will twist, and the willow tree will twine,
Oh! I wish I was in the dear youth’s arms that once had the heart of mine.
My gardener he stood by, he told me to take great care,
For in the middle of a red rosebud there grows a sharp thorn there;
I told him I’d take no care till I did feel the smart,
And often I plucked at the red rosebud till I pierced it to the heart.
I’ll make a posy of hyssop, for no other I can touch,
That all the world may plainly see I love one flower too much;
My garden is run wild! Where shall I plant anew ~
For my bed, that once was covered with thyme, is all overrun with rue?
Love Is a Rain of Diamonds
Text by May Swenson (1913-1989)

Love is a rain of diamonds in the mind the fruit of the soul sliced in two a dark spring loosed at the lips of light under-earth waters unlocked from their lurking to sparkle in a crevice parted by the sun
a temple not of stone but cloud beyond the roar of the heart and all violence
blue permanence

Set Me As A Seal
Text from Song of Solomon 8:6a & 7a

Set me as a seal upon your heart,
for love is as strong as death.
Many waters cannot quench love,
neither can the floods drown it.

I Just Found Out About Love
Text by Harold Adamson (1906-1980)

I just found out about love and I like it, I like it
I like what love has been doing to me
I hold you close in my arms and I like it, I like it
Oh, what a wonderful future I see.
It's a one time only,
It's a lifetime deal
And I know it's real,
I can tell by the way that I feel.
Right now I'm livin' it up and I like it, I like it
Hey you give me a clue
What's love doing to you
Looks like you could be liking it too.
