Report Goes to Faculty, Perhaps Trustees

FATS' Report Delineates Essential Rights of Students

President Curtis W. Turr will formally receive on Monday the report of the Faculty-Administrations (FATS) Committee on Student Freedoms. The committee, appointed by Turr last fall on the recommendation of the academic affairs committee, has seven members.

They are John M. Stanley, assistant professor of religion; Carl P. Wellman, associate professor of philosophy; Francis L. Brod- erick, dean of Lawrence and Doster Colleges; Mrs. Richard W. Carter, a trustee for the term expiring this year; Emery J. Anson, a trustee nominated by the Lawrence alumni for the term expiring in 1969; and Dan Lethaberry, junior in winter ticket, both members of the class of 1967.

The Lawrentian has obtained a "pre-publication" of SDS, "its nature and activities." This is "SDB," which recently appeared in the Appleton Post-Crescent.

The report is "The Dilemma of Modern Humanism." It was originally to be sent to the board of trustees for its consideration, but last week the decision was made to send it instead to a faculty committee before there is any consideration by the trustees.

Sources indicated that the report was considered "too thorny to be presented directly to the board of trustees without the strength of a faculty endorsement behind it.

If the FATS report is turned over to a faculty committee to be prepared for presentation to the full faculty, it is doubly unlikely that any form of the report would reach the trustees before next fall.

In an interview with the Law- rentian, Bradenick, the chair- man of the committee, expressed great satisfaction with the re- sult of the committee's special interest in the problems behind it.

"The report will provide a standard with which to measure student freedoms for some time to come," the dean stated.

The committee feels that the report has been more than academic. In this field the report is, and will be, read to five basic student freedoms.

These are the freedom to choose a major and course, freedom from improper disciplinary action, freedom from improper evaluations, and freedom from improper consideration.

Discussed in this area are student organizations including fraternities and sororities, student publications, WLFM, art censorship, and various uses of the campus.

In the field of art censorship, the report recommends that there be none except that consistent with public opinion.

PHILO CLUB TO HEAR TALK ON PERCEPTION

The next meeting of the Phi- losophy Club will be Monday, April 25, at 8 p.m. in Youngchild Hall when Professor Fred L. Dretske speaks on the topic "Seeing and Knowing."
Lawrence's First Lady Evaluates Past Four Years With Affection

By NANCY KAPLAN

Mrs. Curtis W. Tarr, wife of Lawrence's president, has now been the first lady of the university for almost four years and looks back on her time here with warm affection and a keen eye for the progress Lawrence has undergone since her husband took office.

Mrs. Tarr points out that her main duty as a university president is to entertain a wide variety of visitors and students. She is especially conscious of her family's desire to remain a "close foursome," and considers herself "first a wife and mother," and secondly a busy hostess.

Her enthusiasm for entertaining groups of people in her home is an energetic one, as evidenced by her estimate that 2,700 people have dined in her home since the Tarrs have been in Appleton.

The Tarrs came here in 1963 from California she found "noisy" of the cycles was disfrusted by her. "We're used to quiet," she noted. "We miss it here, but we know we have a great school and it's worth living with some sacrifices in things we don't want to live with in California."

The "hearing" presented by Lee Sternal and Judy Keen, vice president of the Student-Faculty Committee, might occur. They especially enjoy having student groups for dinner, and they regularly entertain faculty members, trustees, prospective faculty members, visiting speakers and members of the community.

The Tarrs spend "literally all our waking hours trying to help Lawrence become a better place" and they try to attend as many school activities as possible during the year.

Mr. Tarr plans all the menus himself and does a good deal of the preparation for the dinners and luncheons she gives. She finds entertaining groups of twelve at a time the best arrangement and entertains almost every evening Mr. Tarr is in town.

The progress Mrs. Tarr notes that Lawrence has achieved in the time she has been here illustrates improvement in the physical plant of the university, its expansion through the merger with Milwaukee-Downer College and the institution of the overseas campus which will begin in June.

She sees the addition of eight members to the board of trustees and the increased endowment of the university as further advances.

Mrs. Tarr sees her job as "a lonely one but with many wonderful opportunities to meet people and help Lawrence."

She seldom has a chance to do personal entertaining and finds her friendships in California becoming more meaningful with time.

She enjoys the size of Lawrence very much compared to her former affiliation with Stanford University because here it is easier to "try to meet as many people as possible."

She feels that "one of the joys of Lawrence is its size" because the student-faculty relationship can be close and because exchanges between the various branches of the university is facilitated by its size.

In comparing Lawrence and Stanford, Mrs. Tarr sees that "as freshmen the Stanford student has had more varied experience, but the quality of work and performance is similar in the two schools."

In reference to the community of Appleton, Mrs. Tarr feels that it has "real advantages for raising small children," although she finds it considerably less sophisticated than the San Francisco area.

The Tarrs have many connections with the community through the trustees, memberships on various boards and through the faculty. Mrs. Tarr is on the board of the Fox Valley symphony and enjoys helping to organize its concerts.

One accomplishment which goes entirely to Mrs. Tarr's credit in the organization of activities for Lawrence faculty wives.

The Tarr family makes an effort to travel every other summer and to remain interested in each other's work. Mrs. Tarr thinks President Tarr has changed since he has been at Lawrence only by virtue of the fact that his concern for the school is increasingly serious but he is still available to his family.

Mrs. Tarr concludes that is reference to their close alliance with Lawrence, the family "loves it."
Faculty Absences of Leave Announced For Next Year

Announcement has been made of leaves of absence to be taken by Lawrence University faculty members for 1967-68.

William M. Scherer, professor of English, will travel to England to study Shakespearean production, following a period at the Shakespearean Institute at Stratford, Connecticut. He will also spend some time in France and Germany.

Sumner Richman, associate professor of biology, will be visiting scientist at the Institute of Marine Resources of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography at the University of California in La Jolla.

Swatantra, a major opposition party, has been invited to participate in a colloquium in the French Language at the University of California in Los Angeles.

Faculty Leaves of Absence

Margaret P. Jones, associate professor of history and government, will be in India next year, working principally in Bombay and New Delhi on a study of Swaran Singh, a political opposition party.

A faculty member since 1963, Patricia Sayre, a teaching assistant in music, will present a public recital, "Flutist Kristin Webb, faculty committee which would oversee the student activities fee."

FATS Report

The committee recommends that a review of the university's policies and procedures concerning the student activities fee be held at the beginning of the 1967-68 academic year.

Miss Jones Attends Malraux Meetings

Miss Anne Jones, professor of French, has been invited to participate in a colloquium on the role of the artist in education to be held April 27 at the University of Kentucky in Lexington.

She will take part in a panel discussion with three of Mal­ raux’s "witness to our age."

Edited Book

Two years ago, Miss Jones edited a collection of Malraux's writings which was published by the Macmillan Co. for a series of modern French li­ terature for the intermediate student.

In preparing her book, Miss Jones met with Malraux at his villa in the Ministry of Cultural Affairs in Paris and consulted him on the work.

On the program also Malraux will include the largest exhibit of his work in the United States, derived from the student's collection of records.

Miss Webb will be presented at a recital in the Zuelke Building on Tuesday, April 27, at 8 p.m.

Miss Webb to Play Prokofiev Sunday

Pianist Lillian M.HideInInspector faculty member at the Conservatory will present a public recital at 8 p.m. Sunday, April 25, in Hooper Hall at the Lawrence University Music-Drama Center.

Miss Webb, an instructor in music, has prepared a program of the Blessed Spirits (Oyhe), by Gluck; Sinfonie, by E. Dulac, a round flute solo, by Delibes; and Sonatas in D Minor, Op. 9, by P. R. Y.

She will be assisted by pianist Patricia Saper, a teaching assistant in music.

Her program will feature the Prokofiev sonata, composed in 1947. First performed in Moscow, the work was later transcribed by the composer and published by the Sonatas No. 2 for Violin and Piano, Op. 96, bis.

The violin version has since become even better known and more often heard than the original flute setting.

A faculty member since 1959, Miss Webb is currently chairman of Lawrence's department of music.

NOTICE

The third and final schedule and the correct calendar for next year will appear in the Lawrencean next week.
The LAWRENTIAN newspaper published by interested students of the university primarily as a service to students. The opinions and policies of the weekly are those of the editorial board of the Lawrentian and do not necessarily reflect the views of any other group or individuals associated with Lawrence University.

From the Editorial Board

The FATS Report

The Lawrentian heartily endorses the general substance of the report of the Faculty-Administration-Trustee Student Committee on Student-Freedom, but we must express our concern that this comprehensive and carefully prepared document may not be presented to the university trustees. The argument is made that it is the faculty which establishes the regulations for the university and not the trustees, but this reasoning is rather simplistic since the faculty holds this power only at the pleasure of the board of trustees legally hold ultimate power in the university.

It is extremely important that this report not be relegated to some faculty committee where it may be convened when forgotten. The document covers so thoroughly and, for the most part, so well, the subject of the relation of the university and the student that there can be no reason why it should not be presented to the trustees so that they may consider incorporating it into the official policy of the university.

The Lawrentian is particularly gratified to see that the report calls for an end to religious discrimination in campus organizations, an action which we advocated in January when the trustees approved this form of discrimination.

The only major disappointment in the report is its failure to take any real stand on the issue of student privacy. The report that this section was "watered down" following the faculty vote on open dorms would seem to be true, but if this seems to be a "sell-out" of sorts, at least it shows the committee has not departed from the realities of this campus in preparing its report.

In spite of its drawbacks, the report is probably the finest articulation any group could have formulated of what the general policies of this university should be in the area of student life. We urge its careful consideration, in the future, by the board of trustees.

PREGNANCY, THE LAW AND RESPONSIBILITY

The Pill And The Lawrence Woman

According to recent figures, twenty-five per cent of all first-born legitimate children in this country were conceived before the marriage of their parents. Student marriages at Lawrence almost seem to indicate this figure is too low, according to an administration source, in over half of the more than twenty student marriages here in the past year, the bride was pregnant.

This startling fact is evidence that the so-called "new morality" has arrived on the Lawrence campus. If sexual intercourse is not increasingly frequent among students, the only explanation of the figures is that the students are increasingly careless of contraception, an untypical situation in the light of the increasing availability of birth control devices.

Wisconsin is one of the states in the nation making it a misdemeanor to provide any unmarried person with birth control devices, labeling such articles "indecent" and forbidding that they be advertised.

In spite of this, the most convenient, effective, and esthetic means of contraception, birth control pills, are readily available to the Lawrence women.

Newswomen doctors, representing the general medical profession, prescribe these for therapeutic purposes, but research by the Lawrentian revealed that they are as probably obtaining them for contraception in spite of the law and traditional standards.

Several Lawrence women, representing college students wishing to prevent pregnancy from pre-marital intercourse, all succeeded in obtaining prescriptions from local doctors.

In each case, only a single office interview was necessary on gradate schools on Friday, April 14, carried away at least one of the taken impressions. In my remarks I said that the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation was discussing its program of selecting outstanding college students for awards.

Actually the truth is more complicated. The Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Foundation will no longer have funds available for extramural work on its own, while in most cases it will continue to seek out and to indirectly publicly seminars who are seriously looking at college teaching as a career, however, and it will seek to find funds for Woodrow Wilson Fellows who do not succeed in performing this honor into an appropriate award from the graduate school at which they wish to study.

The moral of this account to Juniors, apply for a Woodrow Wilson if your record gives you any reason to hope. It is still an important honor, not just in prestige but in cash.

Librarian Brubaker Retires, Praises Lawrence Collection

Following 30 years as librarian at Lawrence University, Professor Richard Brubaker retired last week at the end of the academic year. Brubaker, who was hired by President Nathan Pusey, came to Lawrence in 1937 after teaching summer school at the library school of the University of Michigan.

From Michigan A native of Michigan, he completed his undergraduate work and received his degree in library science from the University of Michigan in 1937.

"In the twenty years I've been at Lawrence, the library has expanded by 100,000 volumes," said Brubaker. "This includes the thirty thousand volumes from the school of the University of Michigan that were recently reclassified in three years.

Brubaker also cites the initiation of a micro-print plan in the University library system as an important advancement during his time as librarian.

"The program involves large sums of money and has been subsidized by federal grants. It will be vital for the conservation of original records and should be full use by next fall," stated Brubaker.

Additions Involved

He predicts that an addition will be inevitable in about five years, when the library outgrows its shelf space.

"It won't happen, however, until conditions become so unfavorable that everyone starts to scurry by the fall. It will be doubly painful because we have been in no new additions in the past few years."

A teacher of university literature from 1937 to 1938 and a professor of students from 1938 to 1940, Brubaker feels that a librarian in an institution such as Lawrence should be able to stand the job has grown so that this is impossible.

End of Probation

Removal from Probation. Any student on probation must earn the stipulated average on the minimum full-time program of two and one-half courses, two of which must be full credit courses, to qualify for removal from probation.

The student is first grouped according to grade point average and then compared with others of approximately the same standing.

He is automatically on probation if he doesn't fulfill minimum point requirements.

Miss Draheim noted that "although the presentation of grade point averages by the computer is automatic, the action of the committee are not automatic."

Committee's Option

The committee has the option of either dropping the student or advising him to withdraw.

Lesten with freshmen, the committee expects more of underclassmen for two reasons: one, because the student's work may become critical as graduation approaches and the individual

3. including Physical Education, to remain in good academic standing. A student on probation who fails to achieve a .75 average on the work of the first three terms, or a 1.0 for the third term only, will be advised to withdraw or drop out from the university.

Sophomore and Juniors Advised to Withdraw. The student who chooses to remain in the university after having been advised to withdraw must earn better than a 1.5 average for the next two terms, but not less than a 1.8 either term.

"The same applies to the student who chooses to remain in accordance with this advice and subsequently returns." To Enter the Junior Year, Any student must normally have a cumulative average of 1.8 to enter the junior year.

Future System

Formerly Lawrenceans were dropped and thus given the chance to appeal their cases. Under the new system withdraw student has several advantages.

Miss Draheim cited the three-year term system for enabling the administration to deal better with people on the borderline, making rehabilitation easier, and giving the student a firmer chance.

Advice to withdraw gives the student a measure of determination leaving him the privilege of deciding whether he's capable, or more likely, whether he wants to succeed in the following term

Advantages

Another advantage of voluntary withdrawal is that the student has a better chance to appeal elsewhere, considering that there are other colleges probably more than willing to accept his academic credentials and tuition.

Perhaps one less than previously, but there are such schools.

As Dean Vonderheide remarked, it may be "too quick when you're a little afraid" rather than to wait to be dropped.

In summary, while the methods of jeopardizing one's academic standing are insurmountable, the modes of administrative discipline number three: probation, advisory to withdraw, and dropping.

Next week—How to get back into Lawrence. (If your draft board hasn't got you.)

"I think the fact that I lost contact with the student body is a major reason why I have to work so hard to preserve the tradition that is what I have resented most." The Lawrence library has, according to Brubaker, "a good solid collection of books."

"It has been increasingly apparent to him he looked through backsheesh's catalogues and found "everything I wanted, we already owned."" When asked how he plans to spend his retirement, Brubaker said he has no definite plans yet. "I will probably stay in Appleton. I haven't really decided...

Miss Draheim Discusses Open Dorms with Alumnae

Domestic Violation was the theme of a talk given by Regina Miss Drähm, Lawrence's Advisory Committee on Administration advisor, at the second annual Lawrence and Milwaukee-Donner alumnae association luncheon held last Saturday in Colman Hall.

Nobility Anomaly

Miss Draheim viewed the open dorm controversy with a novel anomaly as she outlined the issues and the background of the Committee on Administration's program, a plan that was struck down during the faculty last March.

"As I look at this state of affairs, and its manifestations at Lawrence, I see both the urgency which this appeal represents, and the responsibility they believe themselves ready to assume, and the admission that with which those who are now responsible for the educational drive to preserve the values they fought for so long," the register noted.

"I see the difficulties of maintaining some kind of continuity, some kind of balance between what was good in the past and what we're going to be left with in the future," Miss Draheim warned.

"The idea of building which concerned Miss Draheim was the Committee on Administration's plan of making the dormitory a cumulative institution."

The committee had engaged in a series of lengthy meetings to produce a plan that would provide for an acceptable expansion of the open dorm program.

"Of course, the bridge was put on the first strong tile," she told the alumnae, "just a few of the reversion of the plan by the family."

"But some of the foundations were laid: piers that rose from rocks of barely sound principle may still fail.

Miss Draheim then gave the alumnae a summary of the thinking of the Committee on Administration on the open dorm movement, including both her own opinions on the subject of student freedom.

Inner Growth

"In order to experience their own freedom, students should have the maximum freedom consonant with their own optimum development within the academic community."

"We therefore must set some limits which define our aspirations and even reveal our understanding. Each of these values is the integrity and quality of life and must be added."

Miss Draheim concluded her lecture talk with a note of reasserted optimism as she presented the situation of these dolls beneath the moving waters.
Appletonians Discuss L.U. Image; Long Hair Raises Most Concern

By CAROLINE DOWNS

In a recent series of men-on-the-street interviews, a number of Appleton residents indicated that contrary to the fears of many university officials, Lawrence’s image remains virtually unaltered by the controversies of the past year.

The people interviewed revealed that, although they knew little and were asked about what happens at Lawrence, their main concern with the university is the length of many students’ hair.

Every person talked to agreed that Lawrence is a good influence on the Appleton community, although most seemed rather panic-stricken when asked about how this influence was felt—many mumbled something about “vulture and business” and then tried to change the subject.

As one young woman put it, “I really don’t know why, but when I come from a college here just seems to give this place a little class.”

The only strong feelings expressed in these interviews came when the people were asked what they thought of the Lawrence students in general.

Nearly all said, rather perfunctory, to the effect of “I’m sure most of the stu­dents are very nice” and then launched into a vehement disser­tation against boys with long hair.

Most felt that it not only look­ed “drivy and boozey” but that it probably reflected upon the intellect of the students who wear their hair in this manner.

As one man stated, “I don’t think these lads’ lives are prob­ably good students; probably it’s the nice kids, who do poorly of the studying.”

Another man, who got quite up­set just thinking about the shag­gy hair business, declared that “That college should make these kids sign an oath to keep their hair short while they’re here.”

If the findings of this survey are at all representative of prevail­ing Appleton opinion, and if the faculty and administration are truly serious about Lawrence’s image in the community, they should be more concerned with swellingly long hair than with student unrest.

To bolster the school’s reputa­tion, perhaps the Honors Code could be amended to include a class requirement for all male stu­dents to report to a barber at regular intervals to be determi­ned by the faculty.

Once the people of Appleton can see the ears of the Lawrentians, they will remove their unqual­i­fied approval of the university. Then the students, faculty and administration will be able to work out their disagreements without having to think, in the words of one man, that “Lawrence is a real good school.”

Few were at all aware of any controversies taking place this year, and most of those who were were, vaguely mentioned someth­ing about “that speaker who was here last winter.”

Only two people, both of whom seemed well-educated could remember the name Beekvold.

Only one person mentioned any other of controversy, she said she had heard about “a lot of demonstrations going on ever­where,” but had no idea what they were for.

Nearly everyone interviewed admitted that he really knows and understands what goes on at the university.

Groups to Sponsor Students

In Summer Volunteer Work

In cooperation with VISTA, State Youth Volunteers and the St. Croix Valley Community Action, and the Appleton Community Action directional, a number of VISTA volunteers.

They will live in conditions com­parable to the people with whom they will be working—often with running water, plumbing or other commonly accepted facili­ties.

The pay will be equivalent to that of VISTA volunteers and will be 10.05 per hour, or $21.25 for the sum­mer.

Prior to the summer’s activi­ties, volunteers will participate in a week-long orientation pro­gram beginning June 12. This VISTA summer program con­cludes August 20 following a two­day summer orientation.

Volunteers with many points of view will be accepted into the pro­gram for their special skills in various areas such as health, carpentry, recreation, music, community de­velopment and education.

The only prerequisite for ser­vices are that the volunteers be at least eighteen years of age and have been enrolled in a col­lege or university for one acade­mic year prior to June 16, 1967.

Applications for the program must be submitted before May 1. Notification of acceptance will be made by May 15. Prospective applicants should contact Miss Marie Dehr.

Schroeder Conducts Chicago Band Clinic

Lawrence band director Fred G. Schroeder was chosen by the Chicago Board of Education to conduct a clinic for the Chicago high school band festival this weekend, April 21 and 22.

Schroeder, a professor of mu­sic, was asked to conduct workshops for secondary school instrumentalists and their directors prior to a city-wide band competition to be held on the second day of the festival. The clinic is one of several which Schroeder has led this season.

Two future clinics are also on the agenda: one on Marimba Schola­tude, on April 29 he will adjudi­cate and conduct a clinic at She­boygan for bassetmen from that city. Manistee, Fond du Lac and Menasha.

On May 6 he will take his col­lege band to the San Francisco area for a concert and workshop presen­tion.

Schroeder holds a Bachelor of Music degree from the University of Wisconsin, Mil­waukee, and a Master of Arts degree from Teachers College, Colum­bia University.

He also studied under the Chicago Conservatory.

Schroeder, the Lawrence faculty in 1961 has participated in the San Francisco music festivals as an adjudica­tor or clinician.

Campus Called ‘Good Influence’

Strong flavoring by Milton Col­lege players stopped the Law­rence baseball team in a double­header at Milton Thursday as the Vikings dropped 9 - 1 and 7 - 2 de­cisions.

Ron Spicuzza hurled a 1 - 1 hitter for Milton in the first game while Tim Gilbertson and Bill Bech combined to limit the Vikings to five hits in the second tilt.

Ron Spicuzza fanned 13 Vikes and had a no-hitter going until two out in the sixth. Dick Blegen finished a single. Don Brozek and Dennis Kitchell each sin­gled in the seventh when the Vikings scored their lone run.

Larsen, a freshman, led off in a 24­lead in the first inning of the sec­ond game, but Milton rallied to tie the score in the fourth and then wrapped it up in the fifth and sixth.

Lawrence now has a 2 - 3 record for the season and will open the Mid­west Conference schedule against Carleton here in a double­header today.

Lawrence baseball has had its ups and downs in the first two weeks of the season.

The Vikings opened their sen­ses against a tenacious St. Nor­wood team in DePere. The Law­rence batters came up on the end of the stick in the hard fought contest, losing 4 - 2.

Co-winner of the game was the pitching hitter in his opening debut.

Lawrence bounced back from their initial defeat to beat Lake­land in a double header last Sat­urday on the new Lawrence base­ball diamond. The first frame was something of a pitcher’s duel in which Chris Olson was the winning pitcher in his opening debut.

The second game was anything but a pitcher’s duel and after seeing the lead backhander back and forth, Lawrence emerged vic­torious in 10 - 15.

DI CK SCHUTTLE, the holder of the Lawrence record in the long jump, works to better his mark of 23.7 feet. Not only an outstanding track athlete, Schultz also holds the mark as second highest scorer in the history of Lawrence track.

Golfers Meet Ripon After Losing Two

The debut of the 1967 Law­rence grid team was by no means an entirely unsuccessful one. Although they dropped two close games to Cornell and Ripon, Lawrence’s players showed initative and enthusiasm in a sound team.

Facing the Northerners was cap­tain Larry Newman with a 74 over a short but demading par 72 course.

Closely following his leadership were Tom Hudson with a 73, John Schenfeld shooting a 75 and Dave Riesen adding a 78.

Unfortunately, Ripon and Car­nell also played well with Kip Johnson and Tom Delong leading their teams with a 68 and 71 respectively.

Coach Bernie Heselton optim­istically conjectured that with these wins over the Vikings, “Corn­nell and Ripon might become over-confident in their more im­portant future contests against Lawrence.”

He was basically referring to all important conference meet which will be held at Ripon’s home entree in the latter part of May.

Meanwhile they will have to contend with the Vikings again the third of April along with the Wisconsin from Oshkosh. It should be an interesting season.
