Winifred Wood One of Fourteen To Be Given
Columbian Scholarship

Winifred Wood, '22, was one of fourteen to be given the United States to receive a scholarship this year for study in the University department at Columbia University. She is taking work in field botany and is working toward her master's degree. Miss Wood is a member of Delta Gamma sorority and Delta Chi Theta, a botany chemistry fraternity. Miss Wood, who was graduated from Lawrence in 1922, taught two years in Knoxville high school.

Rolling-Pin New Aid To Reducing

"Rolling the lines," at Russell Sage's does not mean all that it used to mean.

To click of the ivory sales becomes more important to going on to study the rules, nor was a lively at the last year's "Rolling Pin," so to speak. But, don't tell that rolling pin, suddenly, I'm not Mrs. Jiggs.,

No such effort will be necessary, we believe. Miss Wood says, "We have done all we might have done as at all what it used to mean."

Frederick A. Stock, director of the Wisconsin Society for the Prevention of Blindness, has been elected to the conclusion that Europe is on the threshold of a new clothing worn by the women of the society for the Prevention of Blindness. Mr. Stock will come to Appleton this fall to assume the duties of this new position. Mr. Stock has been with the Wisconsin Society for the Prevention of Blindness for several years and has done much to advance the cause of the blind. He is a member of the Wisconsin State Council of the American Foundation for the Blind and has served on various committees of that organization. He is also a member of the Wisconsin State Board of Education for the Blind and has been active in many other organizations for the blind.

“GRADS” and LAWRENCE

Welcome, alumni and former students! For even though you have graduated, you have a new life and vigor in anticipation of your return to Lawrence. As a matter of fact, the student body has busied itself preparing the stage for the day when you will return. The student body has prepared and is still preparing for your return.

The last decade has witnessed a great change in the growth of Lawrence. The change has been largely materialistic. The old spirit that dominated the campus ten years ago still holds sway today; the traditions of yesterday, about which you were so many fond memories, are our traditions as well, and are becoming more and more sacred with every student generation.

The campus has grown as popular as it was in your day; the campus now is much more the subject of controversy between the lower classmen as it was when you were here; and, the loyalty of the student body in support of the administration is as strong as when you were an active member. About the campus and within the vined chambers of Main Hall, found in an Appleton cellar by himself and others, the student body has prepared itself for your return.

For though you have graduated, you are still a member of the large Lawrence family. Your interest in the Lawrence of today is to be realized, financial support of the Old Main, found in an Appleton cellar by himself and others, the student body has prepared itself for your return.

3—Increased Facilities for Research

LAWRENCE-CORNELL
BATTLE TO 7-7 TIE

Blue and White backs. The Lawrence line worked much better in opening holes for the backs, than they did in the Beloit game. Both teams attempted passes, but because of the uncertain footing resulting from the drizzling rain, their play was uncertain and very few passes succeeded.

Cortell opened up with a red run attack as soon as they received the ball on Lawrence's forty yard line. Two dashes by Lyons put the ball on the Lawrence eight yard line and on the next play Norton-coached Green dropped kick for the extra point.

After a brief exchange of punts, Cortell again got the ball on the Lawrence forty yard line and Lyons dashed around end for a long gain, but was downed by Zussman on the four yard line. Four successive smashes at the line were stopped and the ball went to Lawrence. Kotel kicked out and Cortell never seriously threatened again.

In the second quarter, after the teams had battled in the middle of the field for a time, Kotel punted to Cornell on their twenty-yard line. Green, who received, fumbled, and Cooke who had charged down with the ball, scooped the ball after a lucky bound and ran it to the five yard line. Kotel carried through for eight yards on the first rush and Kotel carried the ball over center for the touchdown. The attempt for kicking goal was blocked, but Kotel saved the situation by running back with the entire Cornell team on his heels and throwing a beautiful pass to Cooke over the goal, to tie the score.

After that Lawrence with the aid of Kinney, Kotel, and Grignon's smashers, kept the ball in enemy territory most of the time.

BAKER INTRODUCES
NEW MUSIC COURSE

Public School Music Teachers Learn to Conduct Orchestras. Be Able to Repair Instruments.

To make the department of public school methods at Lawrence conservatory rank first in the country in two years is the aim of the college conservatory authorities.

"Activities show that with one introduction of a course in orchestral music, the department of public school methods has now made third in the country," says Professor Earle L. Baker, head of the department, and superintendant of public school music in Appleton.

"This course requires that every prospective teacher be able to play a string, wind, brass, and percussion instrument, before she is given her certificate to teach," Professor Baker said. "She must be able to tune and repair these instruments, and lead and direct them in an orchestra. State and high school orchestras are springing up all over the country, and generally every city now requires that the superintendent of music also be the orchestral director. The result is that a girl who goes out to teach unprepared with a knowledge of these instruments must take a mediocre position."

Two Years Needed

"Nothing is too good for Lawrence," Professor Baker went on. "This course is completely installed, which will be in two years more, there is no reason why Lawrence conservatory's department of public school methods may not take first place in this country. We are requiring additional credits in English, psychology, and education, in line with this same program."

The class in stringed instruments is functioning this year, with thirty-four freshmen enrolled. The instruments are furnished by the college, and the students are divided into two classes, taught by Professor Perry Fullam, another of the conservatory. Most of the students are studying violins, but they are allowed to choose among the viola, cello, and the double-bass.

According to Professor Baker, the course in wood-wind instruments will be started next year, with flute and clarinet. The following year the work in brass and percussion instruments will be introduced. This will complete the study of orchestral work.

The horn instrument studied may be either the trumpet, trombone, or French horn, and among the percussion instruments the students may choose kettle drums, snare, side, or bass drum.

Instructor Required

There is a fifty per cent increase in the enrollment in our public school methods department this year," concluded Professor Baker. "Our school has a few professional reputation now, as evidenced by the fact that every one of our last year's graduates are teaching, with the exceptions of Miss Margaret Austin, who has declined more than one offer of a position, but we are not content to remain one of the best—we want to become the best school of the kind in the United States."

Report Athletes' Grades Every Week

Professor Bogers is the originator of an new plan that is being worked out this year by the Athletic Board, of reporting to the athletic committee on the progress of each student whether he is up in his work or not, and therefore eligible to play. Formerly the report was taken every six weeks, and if a player was delinquent, he was forced to drop until six weeks had passed. By being posted every week the players can avoid being dropped.

The Athletic board receives 43% of all money paid in on All College Club tickets. With this money they purchase athletic equipment and supplies, and pay the expenses of visiting teams. Bills, posters, and all advertising matter is taken care of by the board.
