Can't Enforce Dry Law, Columbus' President Says; Proposed Ban

"NEW YORK -- The prohibition amendment can not be enforced. It might never be legally passed. It allows illegal persons to support it. Markets of illegal persons are more immoral than legal persons ever could be."

That is the conclusion of Dr. J. Murray Butler, president of the University of Wisconsin, in a letter to Massachusetts Gov. Calvin M. Coolidge, submitted to the Senate Judiciary Committee. Butler is President Coolidge's delegate from the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. Butler, in a report on the prohibition amendment, said, "Just as a man who is by the fierce passions of his nature subject to the violation of the law of God through the sacrifice of one of his fellow creatures, so to the man who is willing to sacrifice one of his fellow creatures through the violation of a law of the state that prevents it."

125 Ariel Given
Hearty Reception

Loaned Byrowtions: Art Work, Color Combination Reproductions Book.
Over Lilu Buck

The 125 Ariel, relative to a number of new features that added num-berly to the attractiveness of the volume, was generally and slightly broadened in house. The "official" college mag, unusual in appearance on the campus last Thursday, and received a most exclusive welcome from the faculty and student-body.

The book, in work in particular of Chess, Mazur, editor-in-chief, and his assistant students, with Marvin H. Kell, as business manager, is one of the best in the history of the college.
Its art work and color combinations resulted in special favorable comment and are the most admirable that have ever made in a Lawrence usual publication.

The regularity of the issue is also, in make up and in content, while the printing and engraving throughout is of the highest grade.

Sylvester Wood

The book is an excellent advertisement for the long hours of effort the staff has put upon it throughout the year and proves that careful and correct proportions are kept in the spirit of progress that has always proven so successful in literature.

Members of the Ariel Board of Trustees were:

Eldridge—Chess, P. Mazur, Associated student workers, Business Manager—Marvin H. Kell, Faculty Adviser—Dr. Frances Foss, Professor, H. P. Fairchild, Dr. D. O. Rice.

The demand for 125 Ariel was answered presently and passed all previous records. According to Marvin H. Kell, business manager, 1,000 copies could have been sold had they been available.
Last year 900 were distributed, and this year the number was increased to 1,125. Of the 1,000 that were purchased 200 to be sold to high schools of the state.

In the book have been printed 21,500 who have not yet received them, some number of which will be sold this summer.

Customs of building and planning a new generation is a slow work, but it takes money to build. And this plan for Lawrence's new 5000-foot gymnasium, according to Rev. H. H.
