Register Provinces of League of Nations—Greece Must Be Invaded

The highest ideal, the ultimate end for which the League of Nations was established, international peace and security, was discussed before the student body yesterday by Rev. Henri Vilhon of the Roman Catholic church in Paris. He stated that the League was the most important institution of its kind yet established, and that its success would depend upon the willingness of all nations to obey its laws.

The League of Nations, he said, has been a failure. It has not prevented any wars, and it has not brought about a lasting peace. But he also pointed out that it has brought about much good, and that its failure has been due to the fact that it has not been strong enough to enforce its laws.

The League, he said, is not strong enough to enforce its laws because it is not strong enough to make the nations of the world see that they must obey its laws. He said that the League must be made stronger, and that this can be done only by making the nations of the world see

Opinion and Comment

To the Student Body:

Last Friday at student chapel it was announced that the Senate Playe­ry were to present a play and had kicked them out of their approval. The initial vote in the case, as was to be expected, was two to one against the proposal. Following this, the Senate Playe­ers had not been satisfied by the senate action and, therefore, the failure of the Senate group to present the play last Friday was due to a misunderstanding on the part of the faculty and student council, and to my ingeniousness on the part of the club.

Lawrence Debate Schedule Arranged

Decisions of considerable importance were made, and debate schedules were arranged at a conference of Wisconsin college debate coaches at Madison last Thursday. Albert L. Franck, professor of public speaking at Lawrence, represented Lawrence College at the conference and all debates will not in any sense speak against prohibition, the final ability of which is conceded; but the debates will center on the best method by which a successful enforcement can be achieved.

The following schedule, subject to change, is to be carried by the Lawrence debaters this year:
- Cornell at West Allis and Waupun
- Beloit at Lomira and Kaukauna
- Ripon at Kaukauna, Ripon Boys' Academy, and Beloit at Lomira
- Carroll at West Allis and Waupaca
- Beloit at Lomira and Kaukauna
- Carroll at West Allis and Waupaca

Some important debates are expected, including one with Cornell College, Iowa. From all appearances, the schedule will be unusually heavy.

“Demands of the Pedal” by Frampton in Etude

That the main difficulty of playing the piano—most of all, the depression of the pedals—was admitted by Professor H. B. Frampton of Lawrence Conservatory of Music, in a talk at the November Etude meeting. He said that the regulation of pedal work often lies in the manipulation of the hands, using the pedals causes important effects, and makes it possible to achieve an apparently impossible effect, not possible if “the time which according to Professor Frampton is required to play the pedal.”

“Proper accomplishment of pedal work is not impossible,” Dr. Frampton pointed out, “but it requires the right kind of training and the right kind of practice.”

Prey Marston gives one of his best character portrayals in the role of “Easy Money.” Charlie is “The Street of the Forgotten Men,” which is Herbert Brenon’s newest production for Paramount. The story is about a petty pusher who adopts a little girl and brings her up in ignorance of her profession, only to see the one fine thing in his life destroyed with each step through the well-peeling of one of his fellow workers.

George Kibbe Turner, who wrote the story for Liberty Magazine, has created an unusual and exceptionally interesting character in Easy Money. Most of the dramatic action of the story is laid in a dive near the Bowery to which flock the hopeless, battered wrecks whom life has forgotten—a small background against which Charlie and the girl stand out appealingly.

February, 1925, completed the program.
