First Concert
February 22, 1926
At Fond du Lac

The First Concert was held at Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, on Monday, February 22, 1926. The concert was part of the February Tour, which took the club to Fond du Lac, Waterloo, and Milwaukee. The concert was under the direction of Milton Leland, who invited several members of the Madison Kiwanis Club to attend the performance. The concert featured a variety of songs and selections, including vocal solos, duets, and ensemble performances.

The program featured several songs, including "The Sunny Song," which was performed by the members of the quartet. The performance was part of a larger musical farce that the quartet was performing in various locations.

Crime Prevention Must Start With Child—Darrow

Professor P. B. Darrow, a renowned criminologist, gave a lecture on crime prevention. He emphasized the importance of starting crime prevention efforts early in children's lives, as young people can be influenced by negative influences and peer pressure. Darrow also discussed the role of education and understanding in preventing crime.

The law enforcement agencies should work to prevent crime, not punish those who commit crimes. Crime prevention must start young to create a culture of respect for law and the rule of law.

Basketkets Return With Milton Scalp; Lose to Carroll

The Lawrentian, February 14, 1926

The Lawrentian is a monthly newspaper published by the students of Lawrence University in Appleton, Wisconsin. The newspaper covers local and national news, sports, and entertainment events. The issue includes articles, letters to the editor, and classified ads.

Lawrence's weekend performance against Carroll was particularly challenging, as the team was dropped by two points in the final round. The team struggled with their free-throw attempts, and their inability to make baskets when it mattered most led to their defeat.

Captain Brine and Red Ashman scored for most of the game, but Carroll's strong defense made it difficult for the team to make baskets. The team's lack of a strong offensive player and their inability to execute plays was a key factor in their loss.

The real star of the game was Carroll's defense, which shut down Lawrence's offense. Carroll's coach, Mr. Darrow, is known for his strategic approach to defense, and his team's ability to execute his game plan was evident in the final round.

The Lawrentian is a valuable resource for students and alumni to stay informed about local and national news, as well as Lawrence University's activities and events.
Facts About The Rhodes Scholarship

The Rhodes Scholarship is a prize which should interest any man in any American College. A successful candidate receives an annual stipend of $400. The natural and equipment for work, except in science and engineering, is as good as that of any university in the United States. The whole subject is an interesting and important one. Every ambitious student should admire about the value of the scholarship and the odds against getting it.

Cecil Rhodes, Founder

Cecil John Rhodes was born in 1853, was the founder of this great trust. At the age of seventeen, he was in poor health that he was sent to South Africa to live with his brother there. Shortly afterwards he went to the mineral interests in Kimberley, where, in the next few years, he laid the foundations for his fortune. After three years in South Africa, he returned to England and matriculated at Oxford. During the next six years he divided his time between South Africa and Oxford, pursuing his studies in two places and looking after his growing business interests in the other. Mr. Rhodes' later career was that of a capitalist, politician, and empire-builder. Upon his death in 1902, he left about two million pounds for the scholarship which he had founded. The income from this one million over 109 has been at Oxford, of whom more than 90 are from the United States. There should always be two scholars, from each state or territory of the United States. Each year, of whom more than 90 are from the United States. There should always be two scholars, from each state or territory of the United States. Each year two of the Rhodes Scholars resident in the United States, chosen by the Committee of Appointment, which is usually made up of former Rhodes Scholars residing in the United States. The new appointment in Wisconsin will be made in December, 1926, and it speaks well for Mr. Evans' ability to a man that his literary work has made him a Rhodes Scholar.

Michael John Evans, 25, Arouses Interest in Debate

In the presence of a Lawrence college art society from the United States, Mr. Evans, was one of the most brilliant and individual developments of the art of hand-made paper. Mrs. George Mason Wharton, who has devoted her life to the cultivation of hand-making in a city group, consented to the industrial exploitation of masa paper as a work of art. She has experimented and produced the original and expedient work for which she has become famous, is the same dark, soft-white handmade whiteness of Lawrence which evokes such moths and press a dress when called up for a date at the last minute.

Rhodes Scholarship

Beginning with experimental work in paper-making, she has skillfully created new things, using the best paper to make a variety of the techinique and the necessities of the country. To the artistry of her work as an artist, her history, has added the most magnificent color of her paper, giving it a lively combination. Her stationery, made in individual packages, was her earliest product. Film stars such as Mary Pickford and Bessie Stuart have had her designs and make their personal stationery. Another branch of her art is in the production of hand-made Christmas and greeting cards.

Experiments Prove Successful

As a result of these experiments, a new material has been developed for and success in mainly outdoor activities. He has been a member of all athletic teams, devotion to duty, etc.; and his education was such that he is a student of color and character of institutions in which he has devoted much time to his schoolmates.

Appleton Lady A Master in Art of Making Paper

In the business of a Lawrence college art society, the students were forced to make from one of the largest paper manufacturers of the United States, Mr. Evans, and exists one of the most artistic and individual developments of the art of hand-made paper. Mrs. George Mason Wharton, who has devoted her life to the cultivation of hand-making in a city group, consented to the industrial exploitation of masa paper as a work of art. She has experimented and produced the original and expedient work for which she has become famous, is the same dark, soft-white handmade whiteness of Lawrence which evokes such moths and press a dress when called up for a date at the last minute.

Washed Seven Years

Mrs. Wharton has spent seven long years in the perfection and refinement of the special art of hand-made paper which she has birth in China about two thousand years ago, and the perfection of this height of artistic paper-making, she has willingly spent long years. And her goal is, says Mrs. Wharton.

Paulson Paper-mill men of Appleton and elsewhere have aided her with interest and help of Dr. Samuel Plaut, late president of Lawrence, and Dr. Huey K. Wisto, Mr. Wharton speaks with much appreciation.

China Rivals Will Be Classmaters Here
After attending the Patrician High School in Canton, China, Lai Wing and Jin Tin Peng (Fred Peng) will be classmaters in Lawrence College at the beginning of the third quarter. Mr. Peng, who registered last fall, attended Patrician High School, while Mr. Peng attended the Patrician school in Canton. Both will register for the third quarter in the liberal arts department.

About a few days ago, Mr. Peng received the 1925 annual, prepared by the faculty of the Patrician school. Evidence of American influence in the school are found on several pages that are written and printed entirely in English. The book is entitled the "White and Green."

I would like to know just what a library is for? Even though Webster says it's mainly a collection of books, I believe that's all it amounts to at present; to attract attendance and its only value.

There are a few people still in school, but they’re all gone to the library. They are not aware of whom, or what, or at least not as it should be.

It is quite unusual the efficiency and width of such a waiting station. Except for the right time of Wednesday, the week seems rather slow, but the gophering bird that descends from above and sits on the windowsill is sufficient to put me in quite an attitude.

To speak seriously, a little thought and different management would make many students. If the library can’t be used after hours, maybe we have something that a degree should be to its requirements.

A very good degree might be, as far as it goes.

Want more! Yes, say anything does not make him want that to be what degrees represent. If you say, you are not expected to fill it.

Also, the scripture shall be on the whole heart, and not make his presence absent.

The results of the six weeks’ grade test is at the office, we may conclude that the grades are quite accurate.

Critical Studies

Critical approval of modern literature is the aim of the present course in contemporary poetry. It is not merely a course in light reading, says Dr. W. R. Warrington, who con­ ducts the class. College entrance boards require a knowledge of essay writing ability and therefore the emphasis is on modern poetry, verse, drama, and many are of great value to the future high school teacher.

The students taking the course pay a deposit to cover the cost of the novels bought for class use and an individual subscription to the "New York Times Book Review." At the end of the quarter the class members will draw lots and receive a novel or possibly two or three of their personal preference.

The Lawrence Saint were defeated by their arch-rivals the Marquette Warriors last Saturday afternoon. The game was a close and exciting one in spite of the high-aged nature. The Lawrence Saint coach noted Saturday that they have no formidable aggregations and that, with a little more practice, they will be able to play with the best of them. Adelheid and Woscher formed a guard that held the opponents scoreless until the final stanza of the game. These two defense men worked in together well and stopped several drives by the Marquette men.

The tournament, composed of the Lawrence Saint, the Marquette, and the University of Wisconsin, played on the Lawrence Saint court. All games are scheduled for 8:00 p.m.

The Saint basketballers are to play the University of Wisconsin on Saturday for the final championship. The Saint has already defeated the Marquette in their first meeting.

The Lawrence Saint is under the direction of Coach Gebhardt, who has been successful in publishing the book. The Saint is assured that they will be financially successful in the tournament.

The Saint will play the Scandinavia quintet, which is awarded for foul-throwing. The Lawrence Saint is under the direction of Coach Gebhardt, who has been successful in publishing the book. The Saint is assured that they will be financially successful in the tournament.

Harvard Plan Popular With College Press

A hearty cheer of approval from the college press greeted the announcement of the Harvard Plan for the next academic year, beginning in the fall.

"Harvard has set a new standard," said the Boston Transcript, "with its unique and progressive plan for the next academic year."

"This is the Harvard Plan," said the New York Times, "a plan that will revolutionize higher education."
