Gertrude Johnson Presents Reading
At Conservatory
Secretary-Treasurer of National Col- legiate Players Institutes Special Lecture Chapter On Saturday
Before a large audience, Gertrude Johnson, National Collegiate Players' Entertainment Director, spoke at the University of Wisconsin about the activities of National Collegiate Players, presented over the radio, etc. She told the listeners about a new series, "The Wise Man's Sayings," and men and women interested in membership were asked to come.

On the occasion of the performance, Miss Johnson met many aspiring dramatics from the university, who discussed with her the problem of dramatics.

Last Saturday, October 26, Miss Johnson was at the installation of the local chapter of National Collegiate Players, Lawrence, V. P. and faculty. The initiates saw the inauguration ceremony and took over as members, eight students, two alumni, and two of the faculty.

Opinion Classes In Appleton Classes
Twenty Lawrence students are at present observing in the public schools of the city the functions of the position of the city superintendent of schools. Nearly all of these are seniors who are preparing to teach next year. There are seventeen women and six men in the class.

The favorite classes for observation are those of eight students. These eight students are in charge of four different classes. So far there are being observed in the public schools, industrial arts, two in music, and one in elementary and junior high school work.

The students in the observation classes are very busy. They are attending classes in the high school and the normal school. In addition to this, they must attend classes, to which they have been assigned, in various public schools.

At noon the students take a free conference to talk over their work and are given suggestions for further observations.

In the class on which one of these students observed he has a twelfth day. He goes only one day in the week, reading the text and preparing the lesson just as he would in his own course. He is also the teacher's assistant. In this capacity he may help solve a difficult problem, help a student grasp a new idea, and even teach the class to the extent that he is an expert in his subject.

The experience is being planned for the appearance of Bell, Walter Brown, who will be the keynote speaker. Mr. Brown is an associate professor of law at Harvard University, who will take the students on a tour of the national capital. The students will be given an opportunity to observe the workings of the government and to discuss with Mr. Brown the problems of law and government.

The purpose of this experience is to enable the students to see the changes that have taken place in the government and to compare the old system with the new. The students will be given an opportunity to discuss the problems of government and to consider the different systems of government that have been tried.

Lawrence Receives
Harmon Loan Fund
To Assist Students

Students Are Enlisted To Borrow Money From Members of College Education

Lawrence college has again been chosen by the Harmon foundation of New York as one of the fifty-eight American colleges and universities to receive a fund from which loans to students may be made during the present academic year. This is the fifth year the opportunity has been given to Lawrence students to borrow money under the Harmon plan, which requires only evidence of good character and readiness for a loan and provides for repayments is small installments that do not begin until a year after graduation.

Already forty-five young men and women from Lawrence college have received a financial blessing by borrowing from the Harmon funds, and so released an energy for studies and participation in college events that might otherwise have been too closely applied to "working a way through."

Throughout the division of student loans of the Harmon foundation at 15 East Forty-sixth Street in New York in 1924-25, $6,230.62 in 1925-26, $7,380.00 in 1926-27 was available to student loans in amount of $680.00 or less.

Since the organization of the division of student loans in 1923, the amount of $680.00 has been borrowed by 1,061 students with colleges and universities scattered throughout the United States. They have had both the principal and interest of a fund which they themselves have safeguarded from default among their number, through careful management, to those of a mental or moral group. This agreement was first placed at ten per cent interest and has been increased to seven per cent. It can be used in banks as a "degree" in his credit and character for the rest of his life.

The majority of the student body are of the opinion that the loan is the Latin library. There are some rare old Latin books of the imitable value. BORED OR RUDE?

Because you are bored does not necessarily imply that you have to be rude. Lately some one asked that some college students think that the moment

...of being bored is the same as being rude. If you have ever been near two people, one bored and the other not, you plainly see the difference.

The person who is bored gives at least a semblance of attention, and does not distract from the speaker or the program. The person that is rude is ignorant of the refinement which is necessary to a well-ordered society. Constant chattering, the obvious singing of some through the drooping of downs, or any thing to distract, certainly is a plain display of ignorance and thoughtlessness.

If a speaker or a part of a program does not happen to interest you, don’t become oblivious to all the people around, because you obviously make a pest of yourself. When you are bored, the most considerate thing to do is to interest yourself mentally in some thought, or in some good employment which will not make those around you a side-line. It is just thoughtlessness for the most part, because college students do have better, it is your duty to become thoughtful when the lack of which makes your bored nuisance.

The tour will include all of the principal cities of the United States.

Homecoming.

Homecoming with the principal members of the Lawrentian)—the director, Mr. Mumm, unable to conduct a rehearsal was held.

After much investigation we find that the reasons was prominently one thing—lack of initiative on the part of the band members. The director, Mr. Mumm, unable to conduct a rehearsal, instructed Carl Schrader, one of the most versatile members of the band, to call a rehearsal to prepare for the Lake Forest game. The players were notified, but not enough of them showed up to make it possible for the band to appear on the field Saturday.

Some few people held the opinion that the Lake Forest game was one of the unimportant games on the Lawrentian schedule. The way the "Fighting Blues" played, the enthusiasm of the members, and the perfect football day all combined to make this a great game one of the best home games of the season. Perhaps the band members thought the team didn’t need bowling on that particular day. Or perhaps they thought the spirit they showed at Ripon was quite in excess to lose for铭ville. A more plausible assumption is that the band members have not yet awakened the spirit they showed at Ripon was almost one hundred per cent the list of the unimportant games on the
