Lawrence Students Show a Preference for Dance

They may like the fire and their social lives, but the boys like to dance. Lawrence students show a decided preference for the dance as part of their leisure activities.

When the St. Louis Hop holds high coast in the west, the ancient and time-honored custom of the dance becomes a part of their lives.

Spanish custom. Years ago, in the days of chivalry, the young men and women of Lawrence danced in the Lawrence conservatory. She recalled the days of the A.C.C. when she gave the first recital in the history of the conservatory. She expressed her admiration for the work of the Spanish department and commended the work of the students in the Spanish language.

 plays To Feature

Sundays Meeting

A group of plays will be the feature of the programs given at meetings of the Round Platform this year. "Hop O' My Throat", a short play, will be presented at the December 1 meeting. Edna Osgood, '39, is directing the play. On December 14 two plays will be presented during the meeting. They are "My Lady Damsel" and "Lamentation". Miss Miller was asked at a W. S. G. A. party which was to be held December 17. The cost for these plays will be announced later.

OPINIONS

The game that finished the year was Marquette team, the determination that was expected, as was the loss from a gladiatorialclean-up, and the fine football played by the entire law team was the most interesting to me. It showed that Lawrence team really had a good side, and was quite strong, the fact that several new plays were tried.

Willard Hunt, '26, "The game that was Marquette mauniety was the most interesting to me. It showed that Lawrence, the team, was ready to play football. Marquette has formed a very strong university side, and the last game of the season was won by a bigger score than the one in the Lawrence game, which goes to show that Lawrence plays a real brand of football.""

Snyder, '28, "I think the game with Carroll was the best of the season from my point of view. The light and the determination of the Lawrence team displayed in that game was wonderful. The brand of football played by our team was no exhibition of real art. The game Saturday with Northwestern was quite interesting, but the fact that several new plays were tried.""

Elaine the lily maid, whom he meets years later, dies in the stone wall. The two Elaines who come into his life are good, and are made particularly natural that it might be a shorthand copy of some real contemporary action. The character sketches are made particularly prominent by means of context. If you like your absorbent, you can dig a few. Lawrence had a field advantage for women—they permitted him. But Otho P. Fairfield, "I can think of nothing finer in this world without thinking of you. If I have great dreams for you, I'll never love a woman, except as my love for you."

A department is established in the art department, especially since Lawrenn is also head of the Episcopal School of Theology at Cambridge. As a leader in religious education, hearken, and social reform, Dr. Lawrence gained a wide recognition, and his "Memories" is a history of good citizenship for a half-century. Contacts with leading men of his time such as Thoreau, Roosevelt, J. P. Morgan, and President Coolidge have given him wide experience. "Youth and promise has led an active life for over 50 years, and who has been endorsed beyond measure in the way in which Dr. Lawrenn describes the work, which is not a formal biography. It is a revelation of the human, domesticity, and good will of the author."
Now that the mid-semester break is over, the usual wailing and gnashing of teeth among students is evident. To some, the grades, in general, were reasonable; to others, they were discouragingly low. To a few they were satisfactory; that is, they were what they deserved or what they expected.

This problem of grading students is a subject which has worried educators for years. As yet no satisfactory conclusion has been reached, but each year the problem is brought up with a rather startling array of letters, which, combined as he may, do not make an average which is a fair estimate of his ability or his work.

It is a rather startling array of letters, which, combined as he may, do not make an average which is a fair estimate of his ability or his work.

There are two kinds of people— the producers and the grifters— and there are others who, though they may not be grifters, have no intention of breaking away from the book, when in reality they should be free to exist.

The usual long poles, those and notebooks are not merely piled up around us, until we can scarcely peruse them, as deep as we are in work. Some of the students live very close to Appleton and consequently can come home for a change of air. There are those of us who live the length of the college and cannot get home in that short time. This might have given us the chance to show how caring Christmas gifts the faculty at home are planning this year for distributing them.

We have heard a great deal about cooperation. We're ready to cooperate, but, shouldn't there be a recognition of respect, too? L.G.G.

Briese Scores 41 Points in Season's Games On Gridiron

Briese, the big tackle of the Northwestern football team, was the undisputed champion of the Mid-West conference last season, and is expected to continue his fine form this season. He is one of the few players who can claim to have scored 40 points in a season, and his total of 41 points in 1925 is a new Mid-West record.

Harold "Pete" Briese, Lawrence's fingering. This year, the great tackle was able to score on his first carry of the day, and it proved to be Lawrence's first point after touchdown of the season. "Pete" is playing his last year for his Alma Mater, scoring 41 points. This total includes four touchdowns, four field goals, and four points after touchdowns.

To "Pete" Briese, All-conference honors last year, gave the honor of scoring the most touchdowns. Briese scored the first goal five times. This is an excellent record, when it is remembered that "Briese" suffered from a sprained ankle during the greater part of the season. He also scored one point after touchdown.

The rest of the touchdowns were scored by the other members of the team. However, quarterback, and at fullback, and center, each scored one touchdown.

The scoring of two touchdowns by Briese is remarkable since it is very unusual that a center breaks into the scoring column. One of these touchdowns was made on an intercepted pass and a 60-yard dash, while the other was scored on a delayed forward pass.

Joseph, end, and Captain Currall, each made one touchdown. Captain Currall, who played his last game of football for Lawrence last Saturday, was ruled out for plague for the first time of the season. He is one of the greatest tackles that Lawrence ever had, and seems to play his best football during the cold and snowy weather.

Two of the hardest fought games were between the two teams last season. The first game was won by Lawrence, 23-0, while the second was won by Northwestern, 14-13. The first game was played in a snowstorm, and the second in a blizzard.

Battle of the Grid

The game was played in sub-zero temperatures, and both teams were dressed in their heaviest clothing. The wind was blowing at about 20 miles per hour, and the thermometer was at zero.

The game was a hard-fought battle, with both teams playing their best football. Lawrence scored two touchdowns, while Northwestern scored one. The final score was Lawrence 20, Northwestern 7.

Northwestern's centre, in the first half, carried the ball over the line for the only Northwestern tally. Fritze made the drop-kick.

The kick-off of Lawrence was returned to the 35-yard line, while Northwestern lost a pedestrian on the 35-yard line.

Lawrence had the ball on the 35-yard line, while Northwestern carried the ball to the 10-yard line, and Lawrence scored a touchdown. Lawrence scored 10 more points in the remainder of the game, while Northwestern scored no more.
