New Features Arranged For 1927 Reunion

Longer Parade Planned; Bigger Prizes To Be Offered By Domestic.

According public of prizes, a longer parade and bigger prizes are a few of the new features which will make the 1927 Homecoming on October 27 and 28 the greatest in Lawrence's history.

The prizes selected by the committee are a large cup for the best decorated float, a cup for the best float entered by a sorority, a cup for the best float entered by a fraternity or a sorority, and a trophy for the best float entered by an outside organization.

Up till this year the awarding of prizes has been to sororities, but the winners were not known definitely until the close of the parade. This year the four cups and two winners will be awarded to sororities and to one fraternity or one sorority at the close of the Homecoming.
A NEW TRADITION

Another Lawrence tradition has been given its starting impetus with the announcement that all freshmen will march together in the homecoming parade next Saturday morning. The movement, which comes from the freshman class itself, has a summary alternative—those who violate the decree will be summoned before the student senate for immediate consideration. On the other hand, prompt and willing obedience to the ruling may result, so says the Augustan body, in the removal of the "green" one week prior to its regular time.

With the fresh marching en masse in the reunion parade, a boost for class spirit should be realized. The class of '31 has been accused of lacking a certain quality of spirit which should be displayed by a group of yearlings, fresh from high school and soda parlors. The growing pains of all members of the class the parade may result in a better intra-class feeling of cooperation, providing, of course, all the yearlings respond to the decree.

Success this year means a tradition for future years.

CREEPING UP

"Just around the corner" are the six weeks' examinations, and the levies, unperceived in the periodical mill, are cumulating the worsted and frightened examples of the upperclassmen, most of whom are used to assuming a nervous attitude around "exam" time.

The freshmen have nothing to be afraid of, providing they are not placing too much trust in that ancient collegiate habit of cramming. Regular attendance at class plus a reasonable amount of studying, plus the amount of brains which a high school graduate expended at Hanover, a small college in Indiana, gives as much cultivation as live at Harvard. As a graduate of both institutions I can attest to this.

Because of the undisciplined S.O.S. of the student body, the infirmary is a small college in Indiana, gives as much cultivation as live at Harvard. As a graduate of both institutions I can attest to this.

Thetas, Sig Eps Win Week’s Matches

The Sigmas and Thetas have emerged victorious from the intra-mural matches of the last two weeks, Tuesday and Thursday. The final match between these two teams should be a highly contested one, in both of them displaying their best. The Thetas were the opponents of Bethany and Elgin’s Sig Eps, playing for D.I., but two sets to a win. The Sigmas had to work for their points, and for a while in the second set the D.I. chances were considerate. The rally ended after four games, however, and the set was won straight from the score of 4-3. The Phi Tans gave the Thetas a jolt by taking the first set, 6-4. Bethany and Krumwiede were the Phi Tans’ victims against Weymouth and Curtis of Theta Phi. The latter team came back with a real red to take twice points with comparative ease. The scores were 6-4, 6-4.

Several articles, including a want-ads umbrella, a fountain pen, a pair of shell-rimmed glasses, three or four books and notebooks, a coat and hat, have either been lost or left at the college library. These things will be attended to in owners' names when called for at the desk.

Beverly Miller, '31, and Virginia Ellis, both of Oakbrook, spent Saturday here.

"Booked" for a Successful Season

As new as the College year is the distinctive apparel that Geenin's is showing for the smart college girl's wardrobe. The college girl selects apparel for its newness of style and appropriateness—for campus or dress wear. And every item, whether frock, coat or accessory—"with the Geenin label attached" is distinctly appropriate.

Radiantly new, Paris conceived Frocks that gracefully mould themselves to one's figure with sophisticated smartness—their novelties accentuated by front dрапages, diagonal tiers, surplice bodices, fluttering Jabots, interesting girdles, boxes, metallic ornamentations, plaits, sparkling rhinestone buckles, circular skirts. All are distinguished by their exquisite design, fabric—beauty and patinaing needlework. Heartfelt values.
