THE LAWRENCE

When Shirley wrote that old wise man... When he ran on the north wind, he was not merely a carrier of news, but he was a drug for the sick, a balm for the wounded. He was a friend to all men, a father to the fatherless, a teacher to the young, a comforter to the sorrowing. He was a light in the darkness, a comfort in the time of trouble, a hope in the hour of despair. He was a friend to all men, a teacher to the young, a
