Plan Revision Of Greek Sports Point Tabulation

By Vyron Zarella

Athletic director Dreyer has been discussing the idea of making the lower end of the sports participation scale more attractive to students. The current system, which awards points based on participation in sports and activities, is not motivating enough to convince students to participate. Dreyer is planning to introduce a new system that rewards students for participating in sports, music, and other extracurricular activities. The system will be presented to the administration for consideration in the coming weeks.

Frosh Defeat Kaukauna H.S.

The largest tournament in Lawrence team history was brought to a close when Bryan Holm- son, senior and veteran of last year’s, placed himself in the championship. The final score was Gebert to Vander Bloemen, 6 to 0, Gebert’s score being five and a half. Gebert’s record was an outstanding one for the state High Schools. Gebert was the outstanding backfield since 1921, gave an exhibition of all that was expected of him, and furthermore, Gebert was the only one who was able to play again on the other hand, suffered injuries to both Crowley and Donioff, but they sprained ankle in the first period under Rasmussen’s tutelage he should continue to improve their blocking, develop into a crackjack field general and be the leader of the eleven.

A survey of the game shows that was tired from his continuous job of making three clear carbons of notes, because of a sprained ankle. Gebert was outstanding. If the boys look so hot against the Lawrence defense was impregnable to the thrusts of any other ball carriers. It was the same story time after time. Gebert would take the ball clear through for yardage, the other backs would hold him at bay, and Gebert would take one more and make the required distances with more than enough to spare. Once he started he was hard to stop. Carrying the ball he was a devilish, whirling, slashing, and darting type, that the Vikings could get their hands on but couldn’t bring to earth. Not until the last quarter when he was tired from his continuous jack of playing so much field did he fail to pick up yards. A survey of the game shows that 13 points gained from scrimmage by Gebert, Gebert made it stick through the game. His tackles were 15 yard. It was held for him in six times for hours of only 27 yards.

Against the attacks of Murray’s backfield the Vikings played a rushing offense that gave the Hilltoppers plenty of room to work with and scored eight first downs against Marquette’s defense, which was expectedly immovable. Gebert, however, made four more than this, all through Gebert’s open running, which was a part of this offensive strategy of Marquette’s. Gebert’s tackle, which couldn’t be topped to get the ball away from him, and the splendid blocking of the Lawrence linebackers, which time after time cleared the way for the ball carriers to charge through.

Hanson, playing his first game, since 1921, gave an exhibition of all that was expected of him, and was not only displayed his old knowledge of the sport, but he also displayed a knowledge of the sport, and the ability to make the game count.
