GETTING INTO POLITICS

This morning's political talk on the platform and ability of one of the presidential candidates, to be followed tomorrow and Thursday by speeches for the candidates of the two major parties, and culminated Friday in a straw vote on the presidency, has aggravated something new in Lawrence circles. While straw votes have been held in the past and the Lawrence has speculated in the field of politics in other campaigns, this is the first time, as far as is known, that a serious effort has been made to place the candidates and their platforms before the student body. It is hoped that the program will revive interest among students who have the right to vote and will also be instrumental in bringing out their actual vote on election day. The straw vote is merely a reminder that there is a more important duty facing these students and that it is their duty to fulfill it.

In Lawrence Platonic Society

Lawrence Platonic Society is an organization for the purpose of discussing and debating the various problems relating to the college and the world. Its members are students who are interested in these topics and meet regularly to discuss them.

The substance of this editorial is the urging of Lawrence students to vote in the coming election and to support the candidates who they believe will best represent the interests of the college.

The straw vote is merely a reminder that there is a more important duty facing these students and that it is their duty to fulfill it.

The pledges of Phi Sigma Tau announce the pledging of Herbert Vanderlinden, Fred Ogilvie, and Llewellyn Lassen, all '32.

Beloit Wins Its Homecoming Game By 7-6

Rally Spells Viking Loss

Krehn Injured; Brunett "Out" For Season

By Jack Rudolph

It was homecoming at Beloit last Saturday, and to those old grads who came back for the day the celebration was a successful one. For a fighting field eleven, with defeat staring it in the face, rallied in the last five minutes of play, and with the combination of flashy aerial work and a break through the Vikings by the narrow margins of 7 and 6. It marked the third time the Gold has triumphed over the Blue in a quarter of a century. Over 2,600 people saw the game.

Until the last minute offense launched by the home team, Lawrence held the edge, and had fans to crack up its first game in the Little Four conference. As it was, Beloit was on the long end of a Midwest score of 10-3, thrice the score of the last two years. Lawrence substitutions—Rasmussen, Bloomer for Gelbke, Barfell for Barfell, Kinneil for Brussat, McNair for Bloomer, Johnson for Kinneil. Lawrence wins its first game in the L ittle Four this year.
