LAKE VICTIMS FOUND AFTER LONG SEARCH

Service For Prominent Lawrence Sophomore Will Be Held At Chapel

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Lawrence Memorial Chapel for Carlton Roth, and Edward B. Nelson, sophomore students, who were drowned, on October 22, 1928, the victims of a hunting tragedy on Lake Winnebago, President W. H. Wriston announced yesterday in connection that all 2:30 classes would be suspended today.

The bodies of the two young men were recovered from the scene of the tragedy on Lake Winnebago on Saturday and Sunday, April 7 and 8. Both bodies were found near the spot where it was believed the boys had drowned last fall.

End Long Search

Roth's body was sighted at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon about 300 feet off shore by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nelson, directly in front of the Horace Greek cottage. Roth's body was sighted at 7:30 o'clock Sunday morning by Louis Brown, employee at the Winter Beach, about 300 feet off shore of where Roth's body was found, and only about 25 feet offshore.

The bodies were back for searching for the bodies on the last night.

Individual services over the two bodies were held this morning. Services were held over both bodies by the Congregational church at 9 o'clock. Pallbearers were all members of the Phi Sigma Phi fraternity, brothers of the two former students, will serve as pallbearers at the services at the Memorial Chapel at this afternoon.

Both Roth and Roth were graduated from Appleton high school in 1928 as honor students. Roth was an officer of the Clarion and active in many other school projects during his high school career. Roth was the editor of the Ariel staff and secretary in the department of the V.M.C.A. during his freshman year at Lawrence. Carter was the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Roth, 888 State St.

Bullen, the son of Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Bulen, 888 East College ave., was also active in Appleton high school activities and had one of the highest averages in the freshman class during his first year at Lawrence. He won the current award for the Phi Sigma Phi fraternity of the highest average of the freshmen in the Phi Sigma Phi fraternity 1.3.5.8.7.

Lose In Lake Storm

Both boys were drowned last October 22 when a sudden storm struck the lake, and they were caught in a rough sea, and had pulled off shore from their home, the lake front, and were caught up in the high waves. Both bodies were found by searching parties in the lake, and were then taken to the house by the Appleton Public Safety Department, with the assistance of the Appleton police and the Appleton fire department.

Horowitz Displays His Genius In Concert Here

By Helen Newton

Vladimir Horowitz, the greatest pianist of his time, has amassed millions of music lovers during his three hundred concert tours and added another audience to his list of triumphs when he appeared in the program in the Memorial Chapel. The audience was delighted with his performance, and the result of the concert was a great success.

One of the chief assets of his performance was his ability to handle the chopsticks with such skill and precision. The audience was captivated by his deft fingers and his ability to produce a rich, full tone and a delicate, refined touch. The Chopin symphony was performed with such perfection that the audience was spellbound.

The concluding concert contained two numbers by Schubert; "Grazioso" and "Impromptu 290," which pleased the audience exceedingly.

In summary, the concert was a great success, and the audience was enchanted with the performance of Vladimir Horowitz.
Synthetic or Metamorphosed Religion?

Results of the religion questionnaire, circulated at chapel yesterday, should be interesting. While Lawrence may have a fair representation in the churches of Appleton on Sunday mornings, it is probable that a majority of the students, if marking the questionnaire conscientiously, would be forced to place a check after statement number 27, which reads: "I do not know enough about the church to have an honest opinion." Perhaps this guess is an unfair one, but—

It is an age of comfort and luxury. Hundreds of labor-saving devices have been invented; the efforts of man seem to be expended toward making his life more devoid of work, pain, and anxiety, and it is not far wrong to say that these devices are being applied to religion and morality too.

The philanthropist who gives a few thousand dollars to charity and then expects a clean bill of health for his erring soul from St. Peter, is a good example. In his case he would buy abatement in concentrated capsules.

The golfer who makes eighteen holes each Sunday morning rather than attending church, and thinks he can square himself with himself and the world by donating to the finances of the church, or by inviting the preacher out to dinner, is another. Of course he is not merely trying to dodge church by playing golf on Sunday mornings; he is "putting" the time to better use. He has a thousand and one abilities for his actions. And so it goes. In a hundred different ways people are trying to modify their religion and adapt it to their own way of living.

College students, always quick to take over the customs and modes of the idle rich—and the idle, are attempting to make their religion convenient and "ultra-conventional." Many at Lawrence, after taking the required course in religion, seem to have excused them from church attendance. Incidentally, it gives them the degree of modern in the matter of religion, and so, through a process of religious evolution, these moderns become skeptics; they are religiously enlightened and are privileged to scoff with the elite. Only these weeks ago, on a Sunday morning, a bridge game was in progress at a fraternity house. The radio was turned on and a sermon had been broadcast. Comic remarks and comments had been freely intermingled with the conventional bridge conversation. As the last strains of the music were dying away, one of the brothers vowed a yawn and remarked:

"Rather a good sermon for a boy.

"Yeah, it was," answered another. "I bid a spade."

The D.I.'s took second honors in basketball to increase their total 43 points, while the Theta Phi slipped 200 points since their last performance and 21 for a first place ranking in handball.

Then far in the campaign, the D.I.'s have never ranked below fourth place in any of the six sports, having finished third in tennis, first in bowling, and for fourth in basketball. The Sig Ep have gained a tie for first in basketball, second in tennis, and tie for first in bowling over the Delta Iota, who have tied for second in tennis, and first in handball and swimming. The Theta Phi are still far behind, but they are located second in bowling, third in swimming, and tie for fourth in basketball.

The Sig Ep are hoping for better results, and in first place is the other event. They failed to register any points in either tennis, bowling, or swimming, but came through with a third in handball and a tie for first in basketball and volleyball.
