R.I.D. Secretary Speaks In Chapel

Opportunity offered to young people in America today was discussed at length and considerable statistics were given by Miss Elsie Watson, secretary of the League for Industrial Democracy in a talk before Lawrence College students in conversation Wednesday morning.

Miss Watson raised several objections to the notion that factory employees charged with a long while had little opportunity for individuality. While our wage levels are too low and our statistics are being heard, streets are filled with nations and hungry doctors.

Unemployment has brought the present situation; and though we have a large amount of talent, we are faced with a serious problem, one of the most serious questions that faces the N.S.P.D., which depression has reduced by 20% of the people of the United States, is the problem of unemployment.

The employment situation has brought to light the fact that the unemployment rate is higher than ever before, and the problem of housing the unemployed is the problem that faces the N.S.P.D.

Let Us Suffer in Silence

Silence in times of suffering is the best—Dryden

When Dryden wrote these words he could not have had the slightest intimation that they someday would be used to furnish a college editorial writer with a plea to his fellow students to be more courteous to conversation speakers. That the indifference and down-right discourtesy to speakers in our conversations has come to a limit it cannot be denied. More lack of attention by stopping or application to opened books has been superseded by general conversation and tete-a-tetes in anything but whispering.

Admitted, some of the speeches which have been given from the chapel platform are of interest to only a few, and some of the speakers evidently have fostered false illusions about their ability to address a large audience. Added to that is the oppressive idea of compulsory attendance, so there may be some excuse and reason for our individual occasional abandonment, but never for a general abandonment exemplified in perfectly audible talk among ourselves which has become so inexcusably loud lately.

While Miss Watson was talking Wednesday we expected her to cease abruptly at any moment and scoldingly say she wouldn't go on in face of the competition. In her place we would have felt impelled to do something or we would have felt that she was justified in doing it had she wished. Whether or not it is too consensational of us, we would have been embarrassed for the whole student body but there are more who felt the same as we did.

The impression of Lawrence students which Miss Watson or any other speaker foreign to the campus carries away with her must be anything but favorable to the reputation of the college, and that certainly is not desirable. One might expect on the expectations of common courtesy, but that should not be necessary to a group of college men and women. When we will publicly accept our compulsory conversation attendance, as the least we could do bear the suffering of that inaudience in silence, if suffering it happen to be.

The Chaplin of Our College Days

College students are at the age when memories of the silent screen pictures are vivid. The name of Charles Chaplin is associated with Dad's dive, a bag of candy or peanuts, and rollicking laughter with our neighbors and acquaintances. We were young then, and we laughed at Chaplin, the comedian, who made us sit through two movies at one time. The humor of the master was as vivid as Chaplin comedies for a Chaplin picture.

When we reached high school age we were perhaps a little too sophisticated to appreciate the skill in living—such is the skill in living which education should and must impart if it is to be effective.

"To this end the colleges must (1) choose wisely among available candidates for admission, admitting only those with aptitude for college studies, (2) teach with full understanding that nothing is learned unless it results in action, (3) give the students the impetus to go out as a perpetual learner, (4) pay as much attention to his emotional and spiritual life as to his intellectual skills, to the attitudes that make for citizenship. Such is the function of the truly effective college education," stated Dr. Wriston.

Specialization Doomed

"Life must be conceived as the organic union of all the elements which comprise the existence of an individual," the speaker stated. "From an educational point of view this means that specialized training which recognizes only the vocational aspect of the individual's life is doomed to certain failure. Man's life is vocational and (Continued on Page 6)
Two Track Meets Are Scheduled For Week End

BELoit FIRST BIG FOUR TEAM TO MEET VIKES

Downstaters Bring Strongest Squad In Years; Porter-Marston Dual, Highlight

PENING the Big Four track meet against Beloit’s well-balanced squad tomorrow afternoon at Whitinger field, the Vikings have been bringing an imposing array of stars to Appleton in a determined effort to crash the championship aspirations of the Downstate.

Although they failed to place in the state meet at Madison two weeks ago, the gold squad has been pushed through intensive drills, pricing for the finals. Fully aware of the fact that the Lawrence has not been a dual meet on Whitinger field in four years, the rest of the Big Four schools would be more than glad of an opportunity to try their team up on the site.

When Beloit does show up tomorrow, it will be in the line-up a few gentlemen of talent who have been officials of the faculty track team. "Dick" Porter will handle it out front, while Marion M. Martin, in the handle, and if advance shape from the evening run means anything it looks as though the Lawrence track will be in for a fast afternoon.

Good Dark Material

Glover in the half mile is looked on as another sure point winner from the down-state representatives, while the men main in the distance is another point. Exton, is looked upon as a no-man-easy. In the dashes, Beloit is counting heavily on first and second place finishes at the down-state meet, while the 100 yard dash duals in the afternoon. Lawrence will again be represented by McDonald, Cartwright, Harwood, and Dukel, while Beloit College is picking up good second place performances who placed third in the state meet last year. It is probable that Beloit will field both baseball and basketball teams.

When "Dick" Porter wins this match it will claim the state meet play match title, and will start intensive practices in preparation for the state meet, which is to be held on the 13th of May at Green Lake, Wis., May 23, 1931.

Elizabeth Plowright Is Elected Head Of W.A.A.

Elizabeth Plowright, ’32, was elected president of the women’s athletic association at the regular meeting of the year. Elizabeth will act as chairwoman.

Numerical Club Officers Are Elected Monday

Numerical club held a dinner meet at Russell Sage Monday. The following officers were elected: president, Mildred Ronis; vice-president, Dorothy Gough; secretary, Helen Wilson; and treasurer, Elise Beck. The initiation of the following new members followed the dinner: Charlotte Peterson, Dorothy John, Idia Nihlen, Catherine Morris, Harriet Barnett, and Alva May Fellers, all ’34; Ruth Brantner and Hazel Pedel, both ’35.

Wednesday at Whitinger field the fresh tracksters will meet the strong Escanaba high school track squad in a dual meet. This will be the first of the three meets on the fresh schedule.

The Milwaukee telegraphic report next Monday and the meet with the Ripon the following Wednesday will complete the fresh schedule for this year. The yearlings have been showing up well in practice during the past week, and Coach A. C. Donley expects to make a good showing at this afternoon.

Escanaba comes here with a strong, well-balanced squad, and with such men as Meyer, Captain Bureau, and Ballinger they are sure to furnish the fresh full-blown platoon of competition. Snyder is the big gun of the Escanaba outfit. He is a good all-round performer, specializing in the sprints.
