LAWRENCE UNIVERSITY—Because the tradition of the team is no longer held to be of the utmost importance, this event will be designed to entertain attendees. A football game between the freshmen classes of Marquette and St. Mary's will be played immediately after the Homecoming parade Friday night.

West Texas State Teachers College—A notable event of the Homecoming will be the election of a new president for the university. George H. Paul, professor of education at West Texas State Teachers College, has been chosen to fill the position after the retirement of Dr. W. B. Funnell, the retiring president.

University of Wisconsin—Through its annual observance of the anniversary of the university, which will take place October 23rd, the university will honor its founders and celebrate its achievements. The observance will include a parade, a banquet, and a series of lectures by prominent scholars.

Cedar Falls, Iowa—That college students have heard so much in their life, it is time to put into practice the study of game control. Any city that wishes may send representatives to enroll in the course, which will be under the direction of Prof. A. B. Hersey, superintendent of the juvenile detention home in Chicago.

Oberlin College—On the following officers: president, J. W. Gates; treasurer, W. J. Smith; secretary, J. H. Brown. Other efforts to cut down expenses take the form of hiring smaller teams of Marquette and Ritter will lose this year. We hope to have an exciting game.

Men's Sports

Pheta Tau Alpha will hold a tea at 604 E. College Ave., on Thursday, October 23rd, for the benefit of the Phi Alpha Club. A dinner will be held at 618 E. College Ave. and Rankin St., after the game. The Phi Alpha Club will honor its alumni returning for Homecoming.

The observance will include a parade, a banquet, and a series of lectures by prominent scholars. The purpose of which is to make Arizona one last of the best one to distinguish itself as a place for the university.

New Officers Are Elected

The Ann Arbor News has announced that the University of Michigan will elect a new president. The new president will be chosen from among the university faculty, and will serve a term of eight years. The election is to take place on October 23rd.

Strange Answers Made by Michigan State Freshmen Class

The freshmen class at Michigan State College presented a list of free entertainment for the psychology department. According to the story appearing in the Michigan State News, no paper, newspaper, or other news source received the class of 23.

A football game will be played on Friday, October 23rd, and a banquet will be held at the Hotel Lawrence. The event will be attended by alumni and friends of the university. The football game will be followed by a ceremony honoring the seniors of the class of 23.

HOMECOMING

Lawrence is preparing for a great Homecoming this weekend. To many undergraduates, Homecoming means a great deal of excitement and a chance to show, sing, and behave as "collegiately as possible" with great gusto. To others, worry with trying to plan original floats and decorations, and a sense of duty, of keeping up an old tradition, of providing inducement for larger attendance at a football game. To still others it is an opportunity to win another cup for their collection.

Some undergraduates seem to miss the deeper meaning of Homecoming. Parties and decorations are not the reason for alumni coming back at Homecoming. Homecoming to the alumni has a deeper meaning than socializing, entertaining, and a football game. For him it is a reunion with schoolmates and an opportunity to meet the generation of students now in school. The graduate again feels the loyalty to his school and the respect for its traditions which were a part of his undergraduate life. He is interested in the parade and in the game, but primarily he is probably interested in the spirit of the students and their loyalty to the school. In his undergraduate days, he was loyal to his school and proud of it. At Homecoming he wants to see and feel that same spirit of loyalty and pride.

We are certain that this spirit will not be lacking on the campus. There will be enthusiasm and cheering, shouting and singing. There will be colorful decorations and original floats. There will be a football victory—we hope. But best of all there will be loyalty. A crowd will be cheering out at Whiting field tomorrow whether Lawrence is winning or losing.

The observance will include a parade, a banquet, and a series of lectures by prominent scholars. The purpose of which is to make Arizona one last of the best one to distinguish itself as a place for the university.

LAWRENCE POLICY

For the remainder of this year, it will be the policy of the Lawrence to encourage enlightened controversy through its editorial columns. It is recognized that "abridgment for its sake" is a false goal; that truth is truth, though it be advanced by the opposition.

The Lawrence will choose an issue of vital significance to our student body and air this problem. It is sincerely hoped that the students will challenge the viewpoint of their paper. Disputation gives vigor and life to ideals thus exercised.

Dr. Richard Crooks Reminds Critics of John McCormack

When a new artist appears on the musical Petite, the critics, and the public may be sure they have not seen fit to hasten for comparison among the old ones. Richard Crooks, for instance, who will appear on the opening number of the 1931-1932 season of the Music Hall in Cincinnati in Memorial chapel, Thursday, October 29, has often been compared with John McCormack and Caruso, but it must be immediately evident to anyone of musical discrimination that these two singers, both among the greatest names in music, differ in almost every essential point.

The truth is, Crooks, who has many qualities that remind us of both these artists, is in the end, the Richard Crooks and no one else.

The quality of his voice and the style of singing is, however, often very strongly reminiscent of John McCormack. This was probably what thrills Edward S. Goodwin held in mind when he wrote a letter to the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

In beauty of tone, clarity of articulation, "Crooks has the McCormack-like lifting of the English language pronunciation in his singing."

The Model of the Taj Mahal, which was presented to the Lawrence College museum by Mr. and Mrs. Ramchand, has been on display in the library for several weeks and has received considerable attention.

FINISH EXHIBITS

Covering the four days, the two shows also cover a time of 210 feet, and it is so fine in disrepair. It is considered the most beautiful building in the world and one of the finest examples of Indian architecture.

The model is a perfect reproduction of the original. The mausoleum plans to honor Belgians at the end of the week, where he will be electricity.

Thiel Attends Education Conference at Madison

As a representative of the Rapid Falls colleges of the state, Dr. R. V. B. Thiel, professor of education at Lawrence College, attended the recent meeting of the Wisconsin state council on teacher training at Madison.

The meeting was held Saturday, Oct. 18, at 2 p.m., in the offices of the state superintendent of public instruction, Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Pron, as chairman of the committee.

The council is working on objectives and outlines to be recommended for all other training institutions of the state. There are sub-committees on the training of elementary school teachers and on the training of secondary school teachers.

Frederick Thiel is a member of the latter.

McNamar Hall, "The Selective Chart of geological history," compiled last year by Dr. R. M. Page, of the geology department, and Prof. F. F. Tresch, of the mathematics department, has received much comment from the geological world, and has been successful in its sale during the last year. The chart shows the mountain uplift of the world, the various stages in the formation of the earth, the history of minerals, and the development of life upon the earth. It is the first complete chart of its kind to be known to be published.

The chart will be used by the geology department here this year.

Monmouth Looks Like Strongest

Monmouth looks like the strongest team in the Midwest, according to sources. The team has been playing well in recent games and appears to be a definite threat to the league leaders. They have their sights set on the championship, and with only two loop games left, they are in a good position to achieve their goal.

Lawrence remains as the last hurdle

Lawrence remains as the last hurdle in the Midwest Conference title race. The team is currently in third place, just behind Monmouth and Carroll. With only two games left in the loop, Lawrence will need to win both to have a chance of making the championship game.

Beloit completely outclassed

Beloit completely outclassed Ithaca College at Knox. The Scots were unable to keep up with Beloit's scoring, and the final score was 14 to 0.

Knox remains as the  other possible candidate for honors

Knox remains as the other possible candidate for honors with four games to play, while Carleton is out of the running with only two loop games.

Frosh Grid Candidates Experienced

Experience presents itself as one of the strong points of the Lawrence yearling squad this year. Practically all the men have had at least two years of experience in high school, statistics as well.

Many of the members of Coach Clapp's first-year squad hail from Milwaukee high school. They played football against the academic and play gridiron until a head injury put him out of the game.

Edward Bielawa, who served as captain of the Lawrence yearling team, was an outstanding player at Antioch high school. He played in the line there, and was one of the team that beat the Wisconsin Valley conference championship in 1929.

From West Bend comes the yearling's best candidate for the center position. He is a big Henry Nogar, who played end for his high school team for three years under the coaching of John Slatkoff.

Percy Clapp Eats Peanuts To Cover Up Embarrassment

Percy Clapp wasn't as pleased as expected with the appearance of a news reporter as one night editor. When asked questions concerning his past history or the news deposed, suddenly his face lighted, and he answered with the illuminating statement that his chief activity while in college had been working for board and room. All sense of humor seemed to leave his face.

"Well," he said, turning with a grim countenance, "I hate to be cut, and I'll carry all your good wishes, but I don't care much for this frugality!"

SET DEC. 1 AS DEADLINE FOR ARIEL PHOTOS

Four Local Studios can be Official Photographers, Make Special Offers

Definite announcement of importance to Lawrence college seniors and juniors, was made this week by Marshall Wiley, '26, editor, and Dean Schmidt, '07, in their capacity as manager, in regard to deadlines for pictures for the 1931 Ariel. The assigning contract is already in the hands of John and Oliver company of Chicago; therefore, it is necessary that work on the pictures for the Ariel be begun at once. For this reason, all juniors and seniors are requested to make ample appointments for having their pictures taken as soon as possible. The deadline for handing in pictures is December 5th; but in order to avoid a last minute rush and to facilitate matters for the staff, a special 25 cent reduction from the regular insertion fee of $1.25 will be given to all students who hand their gloss prints to the staff, fully paid, by Nov. 30th.

Informal Opening of Hamar House Held Six Years Ago

Exactly six years ago tonight, Oct. 15, 1925, the informal opening of Hamar House took place after the homecoming football game. Several hundred people filled the house rooms to see the long awaited move into the new college building owned by the Board of Trustees.

As stated in the last issue of the Lawrenceian: "Hospitality house was the name first given to the L. W. A. house at 606 E. College Ave. On Sunday, April 14th, 1923, the house was formally dedicated to Oliver Hamar as a tribute to the men who first contributed the dream of a hospitality house. Her death in Feb. 1925, cut short her term as pres. of L. W. A., before she could see her dream fulfilled. As the lady who her portrait, a gift of the Hamar family, was unveiled.

Every year since the dedication Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hamar, of Chicago, Ill., have given a gift to the house. Their latest gift was a radio which was installed last month. There will also be contributions for the upkeep of the house, the remainder of the expenses being borne by L. W. A.

Hamer House accommodates everybody. It is an ideal place for a group of bridge or a supper for two or three before the show. Magazines are non to be taken at anyone's disposal and all charges for some of the meals or kitchen have been removed.

Sunset Players Adopt New Constitution At Meeting

Adoption of a new constitution to replace one which has been obsolete was completed by Sunset Players at a business meeting Thursday night, Oct. 15, 1931. The present constitution was formed up by F. Theodore Clark, professor of drama and director of the club. One of the new features of the constitution is a more active playwriting among the members of the Sunset club and its directors, and to have club members produce, as the program of the meeting held the third Thursday of the month, original plays which are accept- ed. This step is being taken to en- courage and increase dramatic study in the curriculum of the club. If the play presented before the club meets approval, it may be used by the organization for public presentation.

The necessary requirements for entrance into the Sunset club have been definitely set down in the new constitution. Only students who have gained the necessary number of points and have been duly elected into the club can be made active members. The active mem- bership never includes more than 15 students.

Most Popular Shows

The organization will hold two meetings a month. The meetings held on the first Thursday of the month will be devoted entirely to business. Programs will be presented at the second meeting, held on the third Thursday of the month. Every member of the club is expected to participate in some way at all the performances a semester.

The constitution also makes an attempt to organize alumni members of the club, who include members of the organization who have graduated from Lawrence College, and students who have left Lawrence after having held membership in the society for at least two years. Students not in the Sunset club, but who participate in Lawrence college dramatic activities, according to the newly adopted constitution, will be admitted into the club. The organization is composed of beginners in dramatic work who have not yet reached the required number of credits to be eligible for election into Sunset. The main duties of the Heelers' club are act-

Dr. Bagg Continues Lectures On Geology

Women's Club Sponoring Series of Speeches

"The Geology of Wisconsin" was the subject of the lecture which Dr. Morris B. Bagg, professor of geology and zoology, delivered to 75 women in Memorial hall last Monday. This was the third of the series of talks on geology which the Appleton women's club is sponsoring.

In discussing the topic, Dr. Bagg told his audience that the region has been covered by the ocean five times, and that the history of Wisconsin was coined from the age of coal, a fact which ac- counts for the lack of coal in the state. He also told of the great gaps that existed, during which no deposits developed, and of the 10,000 square miles in the state of Wisconsin, which were never covered by glaciers.

The most interesting facts which Professor Bagg mentioned in his account of the history of Central Wisconsin, which is an extinct lake, formerly five miles long, one mile wide, and 80 feet deep.

Dr. Bagg's next lecture in this group of women's will be Monday, Oct. 26.
