Sororities to Hold Joint Ball in Spring Instead of Informals

Ruth Nick, '32, Delta Gamma, appointed by Panhellenic Council to Take Charge of Financial Negotiations; Seek to Eliminate Undue Extravagance.

Plans for a Panhellenic ball to take place in the spring were made at a meeting of the Panhellenic Council. Eight sororities voted unanimously for the proposal.

With the launching of plans for the affair, a new and distinctive idea on the Lawrence campus. Ruth Nick, '32, Delta Gamma, was appointed to assume full charge of the financial negotiations for the council.

Suitable places were suggested for the ball, but Miss Nick asked following the meeting that it not be selected for several weeks.

Under the present plan, the eight sororities will combine on the basis of a combined budget. This will eliminate the difficulties and inconveniences of the present system of individual group dancing in the spring, the present plan.

A ticket which would greatly assist in making up the losses which generally abound in a Panhellenic council would be sold at a cost of approximately $2.00, in order to be used for parties and the presentation of flowers and medals.

The remaining $2.00 are used for the purchase of honor boxes and metal work of the organization.

In as much as every Lawrence woman enjoys the use of honor boxes, and purchases flowers and medals, the council felt justified in placing a restriction upon those students who do not pay their dues.

L. W. A. Makes Payment of Dues Requisite for Voting

The council of Lawrence Woman's Association, in accordance with the regulations of the association, has voted that all members of the L. W. A. must be eligible to vote on matters discussed at meetings.

The council's action will be of great advantage to the organization.

Dues Requisite

The council of Lawrence Women's Association has voted that all members of the L. W. A. must be eligible to vote on matters discussed at meetings, and also that all members must be in good standing and have paid their annual dues.

The council has taken this action in order to maintain the high standards of the organization, and to ensure that only those students who are truly interested in its activities will participate in its work.

Avoiding a direct answer, the secretary stated that the council's action was taken in order to maintain the high standards of the organization, and to ensure that only those students who are truly interested in its activities will participate in its work.

The council's action will be of great advantage to the organization, and it is hoped that it will help to strengthen the L. W. A. and make it even more effective in its work.

President Beck Addresses Campus Club Christmas Party

Warren Beck, assistant professor of English, addressed the Campus Club Christmas party. He discussed the history and significance of the Christmas season, and spoke of the importance of the holiday in our culture and society.

The meeting was held in the campus club's new wing, and was attended by a large number of students and faculty members.

President Beck expressed his appreciation to the Campus Club for its hospitality, and he encouraged the students to continue to participate in the activities of the club.

The meeting was concluded with a festive dinner, and a program of music and entertainment.

Music for the evening was provided by the Lawrence Conservatory of Music, and the program included a variety of Christmas carols, instrumental music, and poetry readings.

The meeting was well attended, and the students and faculty members present enjoyed the festivities and the holiday spirit.

For more information about the Campus Club Christmas party, please contact the Campus Club office at (507) 356-3844.
Are there any questions on this point?" —A lawrence professor asked his class just a few mornings ago, when the discussion centered around a diagram on the well-marked blackboard. No queries were forthcoming, the professor concluded stylishly that the subject matter was well understood by the room full of boys, and the class discussion went on.

We probably don't need to describe what happened after that class was dismissed, but for the benefit of those few souls who had not had the "opportunity" of watching a really systematic grade-seeker in action we will do so. They day after day, class after class, year after year that type of individual stalks about our class rooms; when a professor calls for questions from the class during a class recitation, these individuals say anything; but just let the professor try to get out the door after the class has been dismissed! There the grade-getter stands, with a questioning, and we will have to admit a very scholarly look on his face, ready to ask individually the same questions that should have been asked in class.

Now, don't get the idea that we're obstructionists, opposed to helpful contacts between those who teach and those who learn; to a certain point this questioning attitude may well be sincere, but when it becomes simply a matter of routine, then it's high time that somebody laid a restraining hand on the shoulders of those folks whose minds are so wrapped up in grades and grade points that they lose all sense of other values.

If these students really have a question of a worthwhile nature to ask, the class suffers when that question is not presented for the benefit of the group, if the question isn't worth while, if the question is self-explanatory—would the pupil think, these individuals are learning nothing in their private confabs with a busy professor. We have seen follow ups tip to the instructor's desk after class, and literally off the day's assignment. There are no questions asked this time, just a few introductory words. —Now, professor, we didn't do anything except ask that question. Why aren't you answering it? —Will you continue to bother him with extraneous questions? —We want to learn, we're not trying to be trouble makers. —You're just asking for the other students' time, it's not his fault. —It's yours, it's not our fault —You have no idea what he's doing, he's not thinking of you. —You didn't do anything except ask that question. Why aren't you answering it? —You're just asking for the other students' time, it's not his fault. —It's yours, it's not our fault. —You have no idea what he's doing, he's not thinking of you. —You didn't do anything except ask that question. Why aren't you answering it? —You're just asking for the other students' time, it's not his fault. —It's yours, it's not our fault. —You have no idea what he's doing, he's not thinking of you. —You didn't do anything except ask that question. Maesch To Play Wagner Symphony In Organ Recital

A symphonic transcription of "Lustigen, from Tristan and Isolde" by Wagner will be presented as a feature of the third of a series of twilight organ recitals by LeVan Maesch at 3:30 o'clock today, at the First Congregational church.

Mr. Maesch presents music heroes in one of the most startling and at the same time most enjoyable recitals of his entire series. "That Franak and Sebastian Bach will also be represented on the program. The Wagnerian presentation from Maesch and Isolde is considered the most intimate of the dreams by this great master of dramatic composers. The death-song has been called the most emotional of the dreams. Isolde, transformed with grief, has her sorrow to her heart and expires on his body; as the song rises to a burst of ecstasy at the end, it suggests that in death the lovers are reunited.

Selection from Bach

The selection from Bach which Mr. Maesch will present in Friday's recital is "Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor." It is considered the most romantically dreamlike of all Bach organ works. Prodigy with an exquisite, dolce, adagio character reminiscent of before Bach's day, chord progressions -of unequalled character unheard of before Bach's time. The selection from Bach which Mr. Maesch will present in F riday's recital is " Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor."

Lighted Christmas Trees Will Reflect in Crystal Ball at Infinal

Lighted Christmas tree reflecting in the crystal ball will be a part of the entertainment at the Alexander gymnasium December 14, as part of the all college informal Christmas dance, it was announced this week by the committee on decorations.

A large Christmas tree in the middle of the dance floor will serve as a manger for smaller trees in the window, the decorative scheme of trees, spangled with colored lights, reflecting in the crystal ball above. The lighting may be expected to lend that for-Christmas atmosphere that adds so to every festivity.

The tickets, which will be put on sale at frequently known and advertised times within the next few days, will be obtainable at a special depression price of one dollar per couple.

UNUSUAL INTEREST SHOWN IN NATURAL HISTORY MUSEUM

An unusual amount of interest is being shown this year in the Lawrence college natural history museum, according to Dr. R. M. Bagg, curator of the museum.

Many classes of students from the preparatory and high schools of the city have raised the museum money and groups of students and teachers from schools throughout the valley have signaled their intention of visiting the museum in the near future.
