Historical Society

RUTH NICKEL
ELECTED AS MAY QUEEN

Folk Dance Featured Annual Fete Held Saturday

Dr. Porter Gives Talk On Orient

Dr. Gortner To Speak June 10 At Peabody Hall

Lawrence Votes Quills To Nineteen

Eligibility for Awards Consists of Service, Major Position on Staff

Following an established policy, the Lawrence Board of Control in a meeting Monday, voted to award 10 to 20 data for their work on the Lawrence College newspaper. Eligibility for these awards is that the student must have rendered service in one of the major positions. The board saw fit to include the assistant editor and assistant editor-student editor without regard to the years of service.

Those awarded were Jacob Lefrançais, '33, Thomas Ryan, '33, Helen Ruid, '33, Henry Mattson, '33, Betty Haydey, '33, Jeanne Mead, '33, Mary Mattson, '33, and Robert Reuel, '33.

With awards will be given to Sam Smith, '33, Herman Preen, '33, Betty Haydey, '33, John Ross Franz, '33, Haydey, '33, Mary Mattson, '33, and Robert Reuel, '33.

Control of Public Utilities is Subject of Dr. Crowe's Radio Speech

"Always a leader in progressive legislation," Dr. W. L. Crowe, professor in the Department of Political Science, said in a radio speech on June 10, "has always been a leader in progressive legislation."

In his radio speech, Dr. Crowe said it was "a recognition of the fact that the public utility, control by a state commission and non-fraternity boys, Duane Fish.

"It has now become the legislative responsibility of the state to establish a system of public utilities," Dr. Crowe pointed out, "which is consistent with the public interest, and in which the general welfare is attended to by a public utility commission appointed by the state legislature."
The Lawrentian

The Lawrentian Platform

1. Reform the rushing system.
2. Student government.
3. Increase of student interest in world affairs.

Commandments for Our Women

Another ten commandments have been set down and this time by Judge Henry Meade of the Wyandotte County, Kans., Probate Court. They are to guide women. They are:

1. Don't pick a skilk.
2. Don't let a handsome face influence your better judgment.
3. Don't be too gay about the house because the hollies are shy.
4. Consider the man who considers his nieces.
5. Believe not that the man with the motor car has the only vehicle.
6. Let love be the only consideration. After all, nothing else counts.
7. Reform the rushing system.
8. Be it good, bad or indifferent, one is better than none.
9. Demand much character, but be satisfied with a small part of the pay-check.
10. Believer not that the man with the motor car has the only vehicle.

The lesson of the hour is: don't fill the pantry.

Wasting Time

An unfortunate idea has imbodied itself into the mind of the college student. Apparently he believes that as long as he keeps occupied with subjects of any nature, he is doing better than if he were taking nothing at all. Be it good, bad or indifferent, one is better than none.

Wasting time is not the case. For students are wasting time with many of the subjects which they are now taking. They are totally non-consequential. The liberal education permits of a wide choice. "Man and histories make him wise and poetry witty" may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

Newman, however, claimed that a subject should be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. If you rigidly adhere to the modern collegiate belief, your idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

It is too much to ask that a subject be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Newman, however, claimed that a subject should be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Bache may have been responsible largely for this erroneous idea that any subject is better than none. His "reading maketh a full man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty" may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

Bache may have been responsible largely for this erroneous idea that any subject is better than none. His "reading maketh a full man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty" may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

One man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

Newman, however, claimed that a subject should be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Bache may have been responsible largely for this erroneous idea that any subject is better than none. His "reading maketh a full man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty" may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

It is too much to ask that a subject be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Newman, however, claimed that a subject should be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Bache may have been responsible largely for this erroneous idea that any subject is better than none. His "reading maketh a full man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty" may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

One man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

Newman, however, claimed that a subject should be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Bache may have been responsible largely for this erroneous idea that any subject is better than none. His "reading maketh a full man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty" may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

It is too much to ask that a subject be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Newman, however, claimed that a subject should be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Bache may have been responsible largely for this erroneous idea that any subject is better than none. His "reading maketh a full man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty" may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

One man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

Newman, however, claimed that a subject should be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Bache may have been responsible largely for this erroneous idea that any subject is better than none. His "reading maketh a full man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty" may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

It is too much to ask that a subject be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Newman, however, claimed that a subject should be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Bache may have been responsible largely for this erroneous idea that any subject is better than none. His "reading maketh a full man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty" may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

One man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

Newman, however, claimed that a subject should be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Bache may have been responsible largely for this erroneous idea that any subject is better than none. His "reading maketh a full man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty" may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

It is too much to ask that a subject be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Newman, however, claimed that a subject should be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Bache may have been responsible largely for this erroneous idea that any subject is better than none. His "reading maketh a full man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty" may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

One man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

Newman, however, claimed that a subject should be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Bache may have been responsible largely for this erroneous idea that any subject is better than none. His "reading maketh a full man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty" may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

It is too much to ask that a subject be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Newman, however, claimed that a subject should be studied for its own sake, with an idea which is much more easy to agree. Bache may have been responsible largely for this erroneous idea that any subject is better than none. His "reading maketh a full man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty" may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.

One man and histories maketh him wise and poetry witty may have resulted in the modern collegiate belief. But his idea is silly because it generalizes. It is obviously untrue to read much of the literature of the college. Either theoretically or practically, some subjects are useless.
Strange Wins Big Four Tennis Championship

RIPON TAKES CONVENTION TRACK MEET

Carroll Finishes Second, Viking Men Finish Big Four Contest

By Sam Smith

Ripon with a score of 37 won the Big Four meet last night and Carroll fielded the third fastest team last night. Carroll, last year's champion, finished second overall scoring 39-4-9 points and won the doubles crown. In the singles, Byrnes, Carroll, first; Hendricks, Carroll, second; Kemmerer, Ripon, third;—Larsen, Carroll, fourth.

The interfraternity baseball schedule, newly revamped by Jack Bue, intramural sports commissioner, and second games to be played last night and the Greek league continues its history with the following final standings:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>Points</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Phi Epsilon</td>
<td>43</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Phi Epsilon</td>
<td>43</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Phi Epsilon</td>
<td>43</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Phi Epsilon</td>
<td>43</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Phi Epsilon</td>
<td>43</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Each has three games to play this week and the Big Five will meet twice in every game this week, and will finish in second place.

Sophomores Take First in Women's Baseball Meet

The sophomores took first place in the women's interfraternity tournament which they defeated the seniors 12-2. The seniors battled back from behind and made it interesting in the bottom of the ninth. The junior took third place by defaulting the seniors and will meet in the finals.

Fraternity Baseball Ends This Week; Betas Are Assured of Supremacy Cup

Each has three games to play this week and the Big Five will meet in every game this week, and will finish in second place.

Vikes Beat in Doubles by Carroll

After a short first set and a tough second set against the Phi Epsilon, the seniors in the double, John Strange and Bob Call, showed their skill and put the Phi Epsilon in the third set.

The Lawrentian doubles team of Strange and Lewis won the Phi Epsilon's double team, making them the top doubles team of the day.

The Phi Epsilon won the Phi Epsilon's double team, making them the top doubles team of the day.

Betting and Pooling

Phi Epsilon Phi had the hang of things again, and the Vikes were down 6-4 and square the match to place the Phi Epsilon and Phi Epsilon in the finals.

Lawrence's Taus vs. Betas.

Tie for Second

The Sig Elpis and Theta Phi's are tied for second.

Betas Are Assured of Supremacy Cup

The annual Taus vs. Betas match was held last week. The Sig Elpis and Theta Phi's are tied for second, and the Taus won the match by a score of 6-1.

The women's baseball tournament was held last week. The Sigma Phi's and Theta Phi's were the top teams in the tournament, finishing with a score of 6-1.

The Phi Epsilon and Phi Epsilon were the top teams in the tournament, finishing with a score of 6-1.

The Phi Epsilon and Phi Epsilon were the top teams in the tournament, finishing with a score of 6-1.

The Phi Epsilon and Phi Epsilon were the top teams in the tournament, finishing with a score of 6-1.

The Phi Epsilon and Phi Epsilon were the top teams in the tournament, finishing with a score of 6-1.

The Phi Epsilon and Phi Epsilon were the top teams in the tournament, finishing with a score of 6-1.

The Phi Epsilon and Phi Epsilon were the top teams in the tournament, finishing with a score of 6-1.

The Phi Epsilon and Phi Epsilon were the top teams in the tournament, finishing with a score of 6-1.
Cairncross Wins Fourth in State Latin Contest

Margaret Cairncross,'34, won fourth place and honorable mention in the final prize competition of the Latin League of Wisconsin colleges, held last in April. She was unseated by three Mid­west Latin students—Ralph Redel, who won the first prize of $550 and gold medal, Professor Hynant, who won the second prize of $250 and silver medal; and Enie Backert, who won the third prize of $100 and bronze medal.

Second honorable mention goes to still another winner girl, Esther Dress. The trophy donated by Miss Elizabeth Wil­son goes this year to Dress. The Latin League, composed of the Latin depart­ments of Beloit, Lawrence, Milwaukee, Milwaukee-Downer, and Ripon, was expected nearly forty years old this year.

Thirty-Year Old Trophy Given

To Dr. Wriston

A thirty-year-old Lombard typewriter was presented to Dr. Henry M. Wriston through the courtesy of Sylvia-Nic­ kalek's ladies' literary, which has been added to the American History Room, ac­ cording to the report.

Enclosed by a wooden case and bear­ing a large clock which carries the words, "The world's best," the typewriter was declared to be a rare piece. It is one of the few machines of its kind. The wheel bearing the type case can be replaced at will, so that other Greek or Latin letters may be substituted for the English.

Additional notice to the museum is an original call of the Lawrence students to the Columbia University-Downer students—Ksther Berlo­

Present Polish Dance

Grazinski's Polish Dance, under the direction of Joseph E. Grazinski, B.S., had a large program last Thursday evening in the Ballroom of the Hotel Conway. Most of the dance was devoted to Polish folk dances, and was shown by Mr. Grazinski, an expert in this field. The program ended with a Polish symphony, "The Polonaise," Opus 53, by Chopin.

Final Choice of Officers

To Be Made Tomorrow

(Continued from page 1)

Saturday, May 24, 1932

The exhibition, in whole or in part, is a part of the American Federation of Arts collection and is a part of their annual exhibition. The exhibition of the American Federation of Arts.

As a result of the exhibition, in whole or in part, the American Federation of Arts collection and is a part of their annual exhibition. The exhibition of the American Federation of Arts.

The annual announcement of the American Federation of Arts in its catalog of "Traveling Exhibitions," announces a special collection of pictures for college student groups selected by Dr. Wriston. This selection is of the American Federation of Arts.

The catalog announcement states: "3. A complete program of the American Federation of Arts.

The rental service plan and picture rental collection are to be returned to Lawrence college for the selection of the American Federation of Arts.

The rental service plan and picture rental collection are to be returned to Lawrence college for the selection of the American Federation of Arts.

A similar project has met with great success at Lawrence college, under the direction of President Henry M. Wris­

One of the pictures included in the Lawrence rental collection are to be selected by the American Federation of Arts.

A similar project has met with great suc­

The complete program follows:

Prelude and Fuge, No. XXI

Nocturne—Opus 72, No. 1

Polonaise—Opus 53

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows:

The complete program follows: