The economic welfare of our country is dependent upon conditions in foreign countries in spite of the fact that many extremists and nationalists seem to believe otherwise.

To enforce payments at this time, as the United States is going to do, will probably retard world recovery to a considerable degree. Each of the debtor nations claims that the validity of the agreements they have made at Lausanne depends upon the actions of the United States. If payments are required, Germany will lose all that it has gained. Certainly now is no time to upset the attempts being made to rehabilitate that country. The benefits of such a plan are many. Instead of forty-three cents on the dollar, the debtor nations will be obliged to decrease their imports from the United States.

The ultimate gains apparently so far outweigh the advantages offered by repudiation of the Lausanne treaty.

Wager Hamburger On Wordsworth To
Desecrate His Almost Sacred Name
By Elizabeth Coleman

A controversy argument is being carried on in various universities to consider the world of English literature. Something is being done in schools to try to make the writers’ names more popular, and it is not clear who is to blame or what is to be done.

A certain class was going through a usual and entirely unessential assignment. The assignment was to read Wordsworth. And then, Miss Waples there in a few minutes, she decided to misread Wordsworth. She朝阳 mentioned that nowhere in Wordsworth’s poetry could Nature be found present without its relation to men, or women, or both.

“Why,” she continued, “if our society were aware of its true meaning! How could one doubt the immortal words of Wordsworth with such association? These authors deserve, perhaps, a year or two, never a hurbanget.”

Statement Challenge

Just to be argumentative, one boy, who has been known to read the prompt, said, “No, I don’t think so. Wordsworth is not a great poet.”

Another student, who was engaged in the discussion, said, “If you don’t think so, then you haven’t read his poetry. Wordsworth is a great poet.”

Some Professors Imbued With Real Holiday Spirit

Why debate college could afford to drop the Big Three conference, and some reason as to why Lawrence should remain in the Big Three. Debate is within easy travelling distance of campuses in Illinois, and the matter of scheduling games does not bother them, Lawrence, on the other hand, to persistently played basketball because other schools are situated such a great distance from Appleton that it would be a hardship on the Vikes to schedule them.

Geographical Position

The claim is made that if Lawrence dropped Big Three relations it would free Carroll college from the Big Three conference rules and no Lawrence would be at a disadvantage in playing college which had no conference conditions of any kind. The question was asked was: “Why must Lawrence play Carroll?”

The answer was to the effect that our geographical situation almost demanded it.
