Mission To Cut Appropriation
Toiled At Meeting Tuesday
After almost two hours of dis­ sion on the appropriation for the Forensic cut, Tuesday evening, the Students senate adjourned without taking any action on the matter. Allen Bradt­ ford, '35, made a motion that the appropriation should be cut to one dollar per person, but later called the assumed motion, and the meeting was adjourned.

The debate divided into two distinct factions on the question. Among the leaders were Bill Frost, '35, John Brown, also '35, David Jeann, '35, and Ted Wilter, '35, who were for the cut, and Robert Keison, '35, who was against it. The other members have had no part in the advertising experience previously.

The final action for members of the Senate to show a majority of majoritymotion, which is in accordance with the By­ laws of the Senate, is one in support of their action which was taken from year to year.

The motion to adopt the cut was carried by a vote of 16 to 10, with 3 ablanks.

Dr. Thiell Talks
In Convocation
Horsea Max, one of the earliest American educators, was the subject of a recent talk by Professor of education, convocation committee.

An Educational Leader
"Despite the development of new methods with the policy of the propers of the Senate (Dr. Thiell), "it is only in the last few years that American history has seen a whole movement in the direction of education. The work of the Senate is now being done in a whole different light.

The first quarter of the nineteenth century was a period of American

The Lawrence

The institution prides itself on the intimacy, not only of its student-faculty relationship, but also upon the intimacy of its student life and the extent of social activities among its non-fraternity members.

Educators have long sensed the worthwhileness of social life in the training of the youth. Look at the "House Systems" so prevalent in England and on our own campuses, and it is evident that social activity is an integral part of the student life. This is not to say that there are no social organizations within the group itself.

The meeting should have been an exceptionally important one. An application to the House Council should have been discussed and offered, with every effort made to apprise the student body of the possibility of the organization. It was discussed, yes, but there was no action, and the matter was left hanging in the air, as might have been expected.

I would not be prepared to state that there had been a good reason for the taking of the matter, but there was a 'no'. It's all true about because our behalf, but let us call Madame X's date and she thought more of her date than did of the responsibility that the student body had placed on her. After the discussion of the House Council and the present board of the students, it did not come to a point where the student body was left with the decision or to what extent the student body was to be affected. Madame X failed to realize that she was also to be reponsible for her date, in order to avoid any further delay she tried to have her motions tabled, but was stopped by the present president.

The Sidelines

Then in order to end the discussion, Madame X made the motion that the matter be tabled until the next meeting of the student body. However, under the heading of discussion on this motion, the rest of the representatives referred to whatever was going on in their own departments and the issue went beyond the meeting, until the next meeting, which is the end of the term, at which time the point may be raised again.

The opposing members disagreedly perceived the problem and rejected the motion. All for the sake of Madame X's date. The House Council was not regularly attended, and it would seem that, in the future, the members of the council will be kept informed of the activities of the student body. And, of course, if the student body wished to discuss the matter at a future date, they would be able to do so in a regular meeting of the student body.

Consider the figures. Thirty-two and one-half per cent of the men in college do not belong to a social group similar to the fraternity, and forty-six per cent of the women do not belong to true social organizations. They are not represented as units upon the campus while the fraternity group, only twelve as large, is represented by seven units which control campus politics. The non-sorority women have tended to organize under the stimulus of a few interested and insistent women. The men, on the other hand, have not made any attempt to get organized, and it seems that the student body is not aware of the existence of the non-fraternity group.

The members of the non-fraternity group tend to become waifs upon the campus from a social standpoint. They have no "frat" pin or insignia with which to impress the girls, no fraternity group to call home, and lastly, they are financially unable either from a financial standpoint or the whims of the fraternity groups to attend any of the social functions.

The government and in our attitude toward the student body, as far as educational pursuits are concerned, is a revolutionary spirit which is believed to exist on the Lawrence campus. While it was intended to express a desire for some changes in order to make the student body a more rational and dignified group, the proposal was not intended to express a desire for some changes in order to make the student body a more rational and dignified group. The proposal was intended to express merely a desire for some changes in order to make the student body a more rational and dignified group.

Swimming Pool Is Opened To Men, Women Last Night

A crowd of Lawrence men and women swelled last night by attending the opening of the swimming pool to men and women at the new Alexander gymnasium. The pool will be opened to all interested against Tuesday night from 7:30 to 10:30.

The opening of the pool is being opened to men and women for utilization as a recreational place. It is believed that the opening of the pool will be beneficial to students and their teams as well as in athletic competition which has been contributed, as first students who were active in other outside activities which are no longer functioning.

The opening of the pool for men and women was discussed last night but no definite arrangements were made to at an early date. The principal interest in the project will be judged by the number of signatures the number and the amount that will still attend next Tuesday night.

Although indoor track and swimming meets have been set up in the near future as the big tests for the interfraternity teams, yet several of the Greek athletes have been set to get in some solid track practice before the league season opens in May. The Haskell-st. kitteners have already been scheduling practice times, one for this coming Monday morning, all working dependent upon weather, course.

Managers Of Swimming Teams Are Appointed

Lucille Carr, '34, Florence Marsell, '34, Ronnie Myers, '34, and Claude Bals, '34, have been appointed the swimming managers of their respective classes.

Squash Tournament Near Completion

Kirby Tink Is Victor In Junior Division Of Interfraternity Contest

As Coach A. C. Denney's interfraternity squash tournament approaches the finish, it seems probable that the champion classes will be determined by tomorrow. The junior champion has already been determined. Kirby Tink, All College handball champion, is in the victor. Finalists in other classes are Fraternity, Women's, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Scholastic, and Omega.

Since the last issue of this paper, play has been as follows: In the senior division Sean Foster defeated Wettstein and Besseer to reach the final, which will be won by Bob Schmid, who defeated Streib and Black, who won the Bruce-Cruck match, to attain the championship.

Bob Schmid, who won matches from Davis and Krimmer to reach the final, will clash with Bob Greer, who defeated Krimmer and Dean, for the sophomore championship.

Omega defeated Densmore and is in the lead to win for Davis for the freshman championship.

A great many of the class tournaments will meet each other for the All Campus championship next week.
So they say

Dear Sir:
The sudden proposal of Mr. Wiley has caused great concern among the present American undergraduates, this being the second proposal in two weeks to curtail the present student activities of the time.
The students, as mentioned by Mr. Wiley, requires the consideration of a number of important problems; namely, "Given that you are signing something which they want you to sign, what is the way of economy these days?"

The "community of interest" argument, which appeared in Lawrence in 1916, is not idle, especially essential crap in the morass of the present. The same logic could be employed, perhaps with the same success, to the proposition that the appropriation for the Forensic Board is in accord with the "will of the majority." The same argument can be advanced to demonstrate that certain things cannot be logically denied. If "quality," "quantity," "agency" are equated together, we speak of the, say, the most substantial conditions of the same system of today.

The answer is idle

And the answer is either too much money or too little formulation of the question. "Psychology does not teach us how to dig," and as many of our debaters have said, "Psychology does not teach us how to be". Even if the adjective "quality" were the right one to apply to this activity, the Forensic Board is in accord with the "will of the majority." The same argument can be advanced to demonstrate that certain things cannot be logically denied. If "quality," "quantity," "agency" are equated together, we speak of the, say, the most substantial conditions of the same system of today.

Easter is not complete without flowers; and with blooms from the MAKERS and FLOWER CO. Of course the security is a guarantee like THE STARRETT RAY BAY hat shop has it. With prices ranging from .85 to .65, materials have never varied. Yarns, baby buttons, and Suzie caps are all popular and lovely.

Imagine that summer's other day when you met a Lawrence student strolling down the avenue and saw a girl with a purse and a smile. She went to her head and inspired just what was sweet and sly. (We've had our own ideas of what it is like to keep them to ourselves.) With an amused and pretty smile she said, "Easter is the time of the year I like to wear a hat." Your friends back in the States would be so surprised to see that alone, and that all of HARLEY's hats are "swell." We hope our happy memories of that day will be preserved for ever. In the meantime, we have just talked of so many hats that we have never seen the end of the stories. (Continued from page 1)
