REVISION PLAN IS EXPANDED

Clapp Presents Original Suggestions for Panhellenic Councils

Another plan for the revision of the Panhellenic Council and the reinstatement of the Greek system in Lawrence College was presented by Prof. G. C. Clapp at the meeting of the Panhellenic Council in the morning of May 20.

Clapp began his speech by making it clear that the Panhellenic Council should be dissolved and a new council formed in its place. He stated that the old council was not functioning effectively and that a new council would be more effective in the long run.

In his speech, Clapp emphasized the importance of the Greek system in Lawrence College. He pointed out that the Greek system was a unique feature of Lawrence College and that it was integral to the college's identity.

Clapp also discussed the benefits of having a new council. He mentioned that a new council would be more representative of the student body and would be more likely to make decisions that were in the best interest of the college.

Clapp's speech was well-received by the Panhellenic Council, and it was decided that a new council would be formed. The new council would be comprised of students from various classes and would be appointed by the college administration.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS

As you near the climax of your high school careers, all possible courses of future action assume major proportions. With unemployment still rampant and with business not yet on the path to prosperity, the easiest and most profitable of all goals to establish is that of earning a college diploma. There are, of course, important considerations implied in college education other than receiving a paper symbol denoting the satisfactory accomplishment of four years' work. That diploma must come from an institution of prosperity, the easiest and most profitable of all goals to establish.

For many years disarmament was a slogan of both sides. Now, world production is the goal of every nation. The economic depression in most of the nations has led to a curtailment of world wheat production and to bring down to demand. And the world is becoming more and more pacifistic and peace-loving.

The world is becoming pacifistic and peace-loving. The world is becoming pacifistic and peace-loving.

The state runners furnished the half mile relay to the Vikings because the two Beloit entries were so fast and capable of running a 2:30 clock. There isn’t much doubt but that the blue jacketed ovenists would have won, though, because the speed of the Lawrence runners was easily demonstrated in the two dashes, which were won by both teams, first and second in the century and half and second in the 220 yard dash.

Mystery Attached
To Statue Given To Paper Institute
by Elizabeth Conlon
There's a mystery attached to a statue donated to the Institute of Paper Chemistry. Last month, on April 30, to be exact, Mrs. Kimberly Homann of Neenah presented a statue, the "Wrestlers," to the Institute in honor of the 50th anniversary celebration. On the original cast, at the base of the statue, in the legend, "Daguerre unknown, original in Uffizi, Florence." Just that.

Diligent search, as the saying goes, failed to uncover any further information. The reporter, at the College of Pioneers, was painstakingly through 17 separate and distinct volumes on Greek sculptors, hoping to find a reproduction of the group, which, incidentally, consists of five Greek youths in combat. Not a trace. Then encyclopedias were excluded. Still no luck. Then to the public library with the same futile results.

Dr. Naylor, not by chance, finally provided the clue by suggesting that a Barchard on Italy be tried. Sure enough, under "Uffizi" was this little notice, "In the Uffizi, which contains a magnificent and almost unparalleled collection of ancient sculpture, is 'The Wrestlers,' copy, exact, restored, of a bust original of the same period. The bodies, which resemble those of the Children of Niobe, do not belong to the figures, and the greatest part of the legs and feet have been replaced. The right arm of the victor is restored, but that was tall, but at least a beginning. The statues at the Institute should be as interesting in themselves and students who tour the Institute on Fine Arts day or at any other time, would do well to look at it especially.

Mac Harg Head of Division
Of Teachers' Association
Dr. John B. Mac Harg was recently appointed head of the Division of Education of the Wisconsin Teachers' Association. Under Dr. Mac Harg's supervision this division of the Association has increased its activities.

The Association is a highly developed form of the magic lantern used for projecting pictures, clearly photographed, upon a screen by means of an intense light. Dr. Mac Harg is now working on the development of the machine for use in high school work. He will report on the results of this project before the fall meeting of the Association.

It seems that several professors at Washington university believe the "A" grade is an "harvest of personality." "It is the best grade," one of them is said to have declared. Another said that "A" grades are freaks.

We feel it is time for a taste of poetry again, so here you are. Of course, we've been away for a bit of time, but this little sample from Virginia Military institute should make up for that howeversoever it is.

The University of Nebraska has such teaching offices for its coeds. They are called, in true Nebabic vernacular, square, madly jump, cold ones, and ice wagon.

Sparking of convictions, if you have one, and if you haven't we'll speak of them anyway... there's a worshipfully young preacher at Mississippi who went to a certain class and found that he had no intellectual equipment required to pass the exams, he pleaded 40 miles into the blue book and wrote, "Let your conscience be your guide,"... he passed the exams.

They tell us that Northern Wisconsin has a new reading room that seats 300 students with padded chairs... it's one of our confident opinions that they don't need seat if they have padded chairs.
