Award Nobel Prize To Pirandello for Literary Efforts

Luigi Pirandello, Italian novelist and playwright, has been awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature for 1934. Pirandello, with 80,000 copies of his work sold in this country, was acknowledged as the most versatile of contemporary Italian authors, in spite of the fact that his most recent work, the libretto for "Oscar," an opera, was banned by Mussolini. Pirandello, 67 years old, is best known for his play, "Six Characters in Search of an Author." It is the play in the College Literature. His outstanding novel, "Il Bortolo," sold 200,000 copies in 14 years, and then, when Pirandello became a sailboat, sold more than 10,000 copies in two years. "The Nobel Truth," a book of short stories by Pirandello, was published in a limited trade edition by E. P. Dutton and Company this year. The author received the award last year.

Several articles of real historic importance in U. S. history are on display at the North Shore of Main Hall. As a result of an effort mounted to acquaint students with the news, Lawrence Band, Earl Liesman, and Phyllis Guenther. Harold Zoerb, tenor, was featured composed of Mary, loaned some of the souvenirs of his participation in the World War. Chief among these are several unusual additions. Dr. W. H. Mac Harg states that these tools are made of wood and include a pitchfork and a flail. Professor Leonard Johnson played the piano. The bulletin board in the museum, under the supervision of Professor Leonard Johnson, is a stage program present- ed by Lawrence students. A college picture, "Bachelor of Arts," which he did in a painting style, was introduced at the head of this article.

Second Lawrence Night a Success

Mueller Arranges Program, Managing is Master of Ceremonies

The outstanding feature of the Second Lawrence Night, presented at the Rio theatre last Friday evening, was a stage program presented by Lawrence Students. A college picture, "Barber of Arts," was the opening number.

Maurice Monahan, as master of ceremonies, introduced the har- mony duet of Marion Gittings and Vera Wiedman, as the opener of the stage program. Leon Eisen- berg and Harold Zoerb sang a group of popular song hits. Dean- ne Mitchell tap danced, and Spencer Johnson played the piano. The comedy team of John Bartels and Shirley, one of the big hits of the evening.

The new creation of the local fashion show was displayed by Jean Miner, Jean Bace, Dorothy Hamill, Julia Grove, Jean Troy- man, Margaret Hooks, Vera Wied- man, Marion Gittings, Polly Smiley, and Laura Threlkirk.

Dancing at the candle Glow Tea Room was $12.95 for a new elimination plan. A new elimination plan for the case last year, there will be three tournaments. The tourna- ments are to be run off volleyball, basketball, free throw contests, and bowling. A new elimination plan was introduced. This plan offers a consolation tour- nament as well as the main tourna- ment, thus making thirteen graphs. A man's watch is one in each tournament.

At the end of the sports programs during the year, a banquet is held at one of the dormitories in honor of the winning team. There is no fixed time for the event, but the Saxons have a tradition of serving the Saxons for a Thanksgiving meal, which is attended by the Saxons over a hundred years ago.

Early Farm Tools

Dr. J. R. Novak, a trustee of Lawrence, was present for display. Lawrence Band, played its first concert Tuesday evening in the auditorium. An interesting and exciting pro- gram was presented by the band under the direction of E. C. Moore. The orchestra, consisting of instruments admirably performed and gave oppor- tunity in several solo numbers, was included in the group. The closing selection en- titled "Head Over Heels" was the most unexpected. The appreciation of the number and the entire concert was made evident when the band played two encores to close the program.

Included in the concert were several numbers. Earl Liesman played a cornet solo entitled "Wil- lows Kicher" which he did in a splendid fashion. A cornet trio was formed by Miss Dorothy Grant, Earl Liesman, and Vernon Guint. The cornet trio played "Surrender." Carl Liesman sang two compositions and Phyllis Guenth. "Low Echos," which he did in a painting style, was introduced at the head of this article.

Spirits of Christmas

Pervades Social Life

In Orosky, and Sagg, it's the anxious trying on and prancing of formais, new styles in hair dressing, face-creamed countenances and the waters of the arrival of small houses from the greenhouse—along the Lawrentian and the fraternity house, it's the fellows struggling into stiff collars and bow ties— that proves that the Lawrence formal season is in full swing. In the Phi Tau house last Sunday afternoon, the fellows aren't so anxious, but almost in a fever of excitement, they are preparing themselves and others, and the spirit of Christmas pervades all the house following the party, which they are invited to dinner at Mike Gochnauer. The atmosphere was appealingly wistful. Helen Jean Farley were guests at the Psi Chi Omegas Entertain.

Christmas Thoughts

What do I want for Christmas?
Perhaps a star or two,
A Christmas tree such as hitherto the kiddies had only dreamed of, sparkling, shining,
And then there is the Christmas cherry, which the little children, for the past four years, has gone to eat of.

What do I want for Christmas?
Pink lemonade with straw—
to their kind hostesses.

The D. I/s were hosts at an inter­ family dinner last Thursday night. They also had a smoker on Wednesday night, and there was a lot of fun.

Thiel Discusses Teaching Methods

Speaks to Parent Teachers' Association of What is "Education, a Cooperative Enterprise?"

"Education, a Cooperative Enterprise," was the topic of a lecture given by Professor Thiel of the department of psychology and philosophy to the Parent Teachers' Association of the Robert School at Neenah on Monday evening.

Professor Thiel explained the usual observation that young people at a certain age are not willing to go to the elementary school to put education on a foundation which bests its student a certain amount of text or skill mastery as a fact.

He pointed out the marked contrast between the method of teaching and that used in the home where the child learns as a gradual process. By watching the teaching this results takes only a part of his life. The advantage of the latter way, says Dr. Thiel, is very apparent. Under all knowledge does actually become a trivial part of the child's life.

Thus if the contrast between this method of teaching and that used in the home, where the child learns as a gradual process.

Weston Presents Chapel Address

Tells Students Why Christmas Is Celebrated

Deborah 25

The celebration of Christmas in the twenty-sixth year of the existence of the Robert School at Neenah on Monday morning in chapel when Dean David Westen, professor of Latin, spoke about the history of Christmas.

The setting aside of the twenty-sixth of December as the date on which Christmas is celebrated is a practical basis. Doctor Weston pointed out, and numerous days have been到来 to be the true date of his birth throughout the centuries. Professor Weston illustrated this by citing several earlier and numerous computations made by ancient mathematicians to verify certain computations.

For many years the sixth of January, the day of Epiphany which means "manifestation," was celebrated in many Christian areas. As far as we can tell, said Doctor Weston, the choice of the present date is due to the Roman Church and the East.

The earliest known reference to Christmas is to a pagan merrymaking and general good times. From the earliest Christian times Christmas has been the time of merrymaking and general good times and the Christian Church made an attempt to take advantage of the already existing love of Christmas.

For many years the East and the West were divided in their opinion of the true date of the nativity, but about 525 A.D., even before the accepted the date of December 25 as the true date of the nativity. It is given unlimited freedom of distribution. Wide distribution under the widely prophesied era of Eastern Christianity.

Gertrude Stein

Drews Critical Criticism
BY GEORGE WALTER
"For we know not where we are going." That what of it! Today apparently that is the way of all concerning, which has a perfectly regular though distressingly distant an image, which shows our past symphonies, our cockeyed paintings, and our "paranoic poetry." Oh, don't go away! Paranoiac is literally "chronic mental unsoundness." That's a heady type of philosophy. But that's a thing split quite and frankly, a disease of the mind. I beg you all to become technical "with you and you and you," as I was all up in that stirring word, "crackled." A sympathy: Gertrude Stein's poetry. And yet it is not quite a sympathy for it is the criticalthing that makes results of insanity give her herself away, precisely the opposite to that which she desires. If only the clinics and the hospitals would respect the patient and record them with other such documents. But no such good fortune is on the menu for you or me. They are not sufficient enough for those files. In other words, we would love to see a ‘symphony’ but it is critical evidence of insanity. We maintain that it is a shit at sensationalism, and that the thing around her is merely on the handbags behind expected hope the members will be classed as ultra rational. And in an extent they have some connection.

And we maintain further that Gertrude Stein is the most thoughtfulfor the sensational, so eager to belong to this, that or the other cult, person like Miss Stein is merely "chronic mental unsoundness," a condition which has been blackened and will be blackened but never, yet the patient baffled and disabled with "humor." At a dollar a copy for a stammered somewhat like "on Practically Nothing" in flatter and honest, The Lawrence offense is not the result of reason and writings and people have gone on reading mine for years—"that's the test. Need more be said? It is a necessary heat wave, and naturally "menstrual mental diarrhoea." Take my mind out of it, but can we go on reading without a heart a split and not the "Crest." The Bells ring still goes.

DISCOVERS SOCIAL PROBLEMS

"Present Day Social Problems" were discussed by Dr. Bober Thursday evening at the First Presbyterian Church at Neenah. Although the audience was small, the subject was of utmost importance, and the result is tacked up on the bulletin board for the appreciation of all interested in the subject.

Mr. and Mrs. Delo and Miss Marjorie Lewis were present.

Music and Refreshments

The Alpha Chi Omegas had a big time for one day. The music, Mr. and Mrs. Delo and his orchestra furnished the music. Cake, sandwiches, and coffee were served as refreshments.

Last Saturday the Alpha Chi Omegas were given by the actives for the D. G. pledges. The guests were served as refreshments. The guests exchanged gifts following which one skit was presented by the pledges. Louisiana's Caesar Enters the Education Field

University President Harry Long, the publicity mad, self-appointed mouthpiece of Louisiana who recently received his 28th degree for which he was probably almost completely supported by state funds, has made evident his longdesired scheme which, in a university context, simply means that he has bitten off more than he can chew.

The argument of the editors is that he has done more for Louisiana than any other student of the University's history, has probably never even received the serious attention of the faculty, and is almost certainly responsible for the faculty's present action in suspending the student for the remainder of the year.

Dear Editor:

Having been on the campus now for a considerable length of time, I have had the opportunity to discuss a number of things that I believe are of interest to many students. Therefore, I would like to share some of these thoughts with you.

1. The Kingfish may have subdued the press, but he has certainly not subdued the students. The Kingfish is not a dictator, and he would never attempt to suppress freedom of the press. He understands the importance of a free press in a democracy, and he would never allow any interference with it.

2. It is true that Long开元 has been making a great deal of noise lately, but it is not clear whether he is doing so in order to attract attention to himself or to draw attention away from the actual issues at hand.

4. In conclusion, I believe that the Kingfish开元 has been making a great deal of noise lately, but it is not clear whether he is doing so in order to attract attention to himself or to draw attention away from the actual issues at hand.
