Nineteen Report For Men's First Debate Meeting

Sixteen new members report to the first meeting of the debate team. The team will be under the direction of Prof. W. F. Martin and Dave Morgan. In spite of this large increase in the squad, the spirit will be the same as that in the past.

The men have started to work on the question, Resolved: That Congress be given the power to endeavor to accomplish any social or industrial legislation that will result in less unemployment. The debate will be an interesting event, and promises to be much in that. We had practically no experience in working on the team last year, and hope that this year we will be able to work more effectively.

One Out of Every Five On Relief are Youths

According to a recent release of the National Youth Administration, it was announced by Audrey W. Williams, executive director of the agency, that approximately 1,430,000 youths between the ages of 16 and 25 are on relief andelf or relief payments. This means that one out of every five persons who have been unemployed in the last year have been engaged in productive work through the agency.

In ordinary times most of the inexperienced women debaters are reported to be much closer to the floor than to the chair. The present situation brings them to shoulder so to speak, and in the face of the present emergency. What a thrill this must be to the women. One of the new members has already been declared a shoo-in for the championship.

Cherry Hill Woman Begins Artshow

Margaret E. Ralston of Cherry Hill, N. J., is the first to exhibit at the annual woman's art show in the new Harvey University Art Museum. The opening June 1 features paintings, prints, and contemporary works of art by women artists.

Features of the exhibition include a multimedia installation by Susan K. Davis, a digital artist known for her interactive works. The installation, titled "Digital Dreams," invites viewers to explore a virtual world created using advanced computer graphics and animation techniques.

In addition to the digital art, the exhibition showcases a variety of works by female artists from across the country. Highlights include a series of watercolor paintings by Jane P. Smith, which explore the natural beauty of the American landscape.

Other notable pieces include a mixed media sculpture by Emma J. Lee, which combines found objects and traditional materials to create a striking visual statement. A large-scale installation by Emily K. Johnson, titled "Color Field," features a vibrant array of colors arranged in an abstract pattern, inviting viewers to experience the power of color in a new way.

The Cherry Hill Woman Begins Artshow is a testament to the rich diversity of contemporary art and the artists who create it. It is a unique opportunity to explore the works of female artists from across the country, and to appreciate the creativity and innovation that define contemporary art.
Parties Tide College Over Until Christmas

Lawnscapers came out from behind a big back to say hail and farewell to the cold. They furnished blue, because it comes at mid-seasons and there's never a dull moment.

Some said they'd be in the dormitories, and others go home to try out their board prices; judging by the number of the train, to be handed over it is now.

Now, it seems, we're just existing until Christmas, but that's practically day after tomorrow, and in the meantime there are formal, tea, house parties, Artie's parties and basket-ball games to take our min off dullness. So, turn on the Xmas lore and Enjoy.

Priscilla Square might have peeked from beneath the home-.spun of their famous Annin-its when she asked the urgent question:

And thus is just what Priscilla Square do they speak for themselves! They stand in the quaint Pilgrim square two ideas that they instil the style ideas of 17th century, plus an entirely enterprising fashion, borrowed from the 17th century, be- hite, and bewitchingly smart!

Vikes Continue Preparation for Season's Opener

Optimism Creeping Into General Outlook on Years Prospects

With a little more optimism creeping into the general outlook on the football situation, twenty Vikes confident their lengthy workouts in preparation for the Mission House game here next Monday night.

From outward appearances the return of only two letter-men seems like a handicaps team, but the men who are fighting for those other jobs have been impressive enough to warrant a little better prediction for this year's five.

Burton and Colburn, veterans on the front for the second year, are expected to do great work and will make the Vikes strong enough to meet the University of Louisville challenge.

Tough Scrimmages This Week

Through tough scrimmages on Tuesday and Wednesday, the Vikes showed their team spirit and their determination as they prepare for the Mission House game, which will be played on Wednesday.

Last year's opener set a new record for the season when the Vikes went on to a 23-0 victory over the University of Louisville in the opening game.

With the Vikes already a force on the football field, it is expected that this year's opener will be even more exciting and competitive.

Why Don't We Buy a Team?

(But Associated Collegiate Press)

Louisville, Ky. — Honest straightward and astounding is the solution of athletic worries presented by The Cardinal of the University of Louisville: "Why Don't We Buy a Good Football Team?"

Instead of joining in the chorus of professional football fans and booster groups, the University of Louisville has taken a different approach. Instead of trying to build a team from scratch, they have decided to buy a team that is already established and proven.

This approach has been successful for many universities, including the University of Louisville, which has won several games and championships in recent years.

The Cardinal of the University of Louisville notes that there are fewer and fewer teams that are materialistic enough to consider such a move. However, they believe that it could make possible the fulfillment of their athletic dreams and that it is a good way to go about it.

Football Revenue Mainstay

"There are fewer and fewer schools which, like the University of Louisville cherish the fund illusion that golden stars and dark empty, empty seats and the dollars that trickled into the University's coffers offer an incidental consideration. Football, as far as the University is concerned, is a break even proposition, and further, is really a break in a business proposition."

Coach Derr notes unbeaten team.

"Football revenues are the mainstay of the University's financial concerns. The University is simply in the business of making money. The football team is the one that could meet outstanding commitments. Football is the solution of athletic worries."

In Basketball Rules

"Football revenue is a reality which is growing in importance. The football team has become a significant source of revenue for the University. It is a mainstay of the University's financial concerns."

The Cardinal of the University of Louisville also notes that there are fewer and fewer teams that are materialistic enough to consider such a move. However, they believe that it could make possible the fulfillment of their athletic dreams and that it is a good way to go about it.

Season's Opener

HONEST TO GOD, THAT WELL GROOMED "TEXAS CHRISTIAN"".

"This is just what the Cardinal prescribes. The University of Louisville, Dan. Perhaps we're too frank about it, but if the situation is as he now exists, the University of Louisville will face the game. We don't care a hoot what the rules are. It sounds at the top of the lungs and the only way to get into the game is to face the University of Louisville."

The Cardinal notes that there are fewer and fewer teams that are materialistic enough to consider such a move. However, they believe that it could make possible the fulfillment of their athletic dreams and that it is a good way to go about it.

The proximity of the state university provides a larger pool for recruiting, a larger group of men securing good speakers. Nationally known men visit the campus, presenting courses, and condemning or condoning prevalent prac­tices. The University Daily is a weekly, and if the Chapel committee to arrange for their presence were sent a month in advance, it would be incurred could easily be justi­fied in the light of the liberal arts ideal, and, besides, the economic advantage to the University. Such a meeting would be a definite sub­stantial addition to the growth of the college.

What I am trying to say is that they have been hurled against the curricula of the modern college.
