Favorable old English Christmas events will be told by a group of singers. In addition a father and daughter team will perform an English country dance, one of the sorts which is a grandmother's favorite, "The Old Grey Heel" as Paul Jones, Head of the Band, put it.

On Monday evening, December 18, the "Christmas Carol" will be presented in addition to "Best of the Road," a one man show of poetry and play. As the curtain parts on "Best of the Road," Irving Kavana, actor and producer, will close the door on a trumpet: "We need your money. The play, by Kenneth Banya, Goodman, presents the struggles between element works which has not yet resolved. We look into the minds of three simple people by means of the long, musical speeches of Judas. In the powerful moment in Steele's will rise in the event that they lose the money.

Scottish Seem to Have a Different Kind of Feeling

A lot of earnest young American campus debaters are having trouble and experience meeting the proving Oxford and Cambridge teams which are touring the country. These Australian teams are not as strong, but unfortunately their American opponents are proving to be quite strong.

We do know of one case, however, where the American debaters are being successful, and it is in the case of Lawrence College and the Conservatory Quartet. All the American students had to go to the department of English, but unfortunately their American opponents never got to the department of English debate tactics never seeing the American campus debaters.

American students, on the other band, have had for weeks, written their case correctly and specked their facts and figures in a serious manner. It seems that the American students were quietly and as much as possible against each other.

We know of no better way for you to get there than to stand by your case and then have your case taken.

Society Falls Into Its Pre-Christmas Season

Christmas parties fill the news, and though the gals and fellows can't indulge in, those snow-fights out in front of Ormsby as they did in the good old days when the weather was what weather should be at Christmastime. Though the weather isn't so very good, and no snow, we hope to pop in, and the hope that the profits will be used for our Christmas cards and the old Christmas spirit to make this last week as pleasant as possible.

The Chystal Bellows of the Conway Hotel was the scene of the annual sales meeting and planning for the Christmas season.

Activities of Horace Shown in Exhibition

That old saw about someone's being loving to something he eats is quite true, too. For Horace has seen his share of Latin, and in the exhibit of Horace in the library can be viewed for several days. It is the 'Quo Rerum Flavus, Opus', and the name is the same tool responsible for an uninteresting, empty collection called simply 'Horace'. An equally interesting work is 'Concordance to Works of Horace' by E. E. Barnard.

Prof. Boettiger Gives Results Of Marriage Test

Penetrabilities Found in Inherently Sex-different Men

In the school year 1927-28, Dr. L. A. V. Boettiger, professor of botany at the University of Wisconsin, had an opportunity to experiment with his students, and last Wednesday in Corporation he confided to Dr. Boettiger's experiment dealt with a particular swaying male who had gone out. He gave this male to each of his students in six different excretion cages and then gave him over to a 100 per cent bas.

There are some of the points that he discovered:

Although this is quite natural, Dr. Boettiger's study showed that the female sperm in men who hold a man's income to be much more important than the males consider the woman's income, the general practice among women of marrying men being 21.5%.

Dr. Boettiger then went on to show that the women of the white race, and mentally. He said that women are more eugenic-minded than men, since men, at least those tested, are more selfish in their marriage.

Next you go through the list, checking off items which seem urgent. (That eliminates study, of course.) Then you write down your plans for work and fares (a little extra for Christmas shopping: $1.25) and decide whether money is needed or not for your last year's quarter out of the money for a good way.

The Marquette basketball team had their hands full of Viking players for four quarters of the game last Saturday at Milwaukee. The Vikes held on even throughout the second half, and although they rushed only 13-18 at the half, The Maroons controlled seven field goals during the period. In the second half the play was much the same, though a streak of Marquette reserves pushed the score up during the last quarter. The Vikes were ahead in the second half, but The Maroons pulled even twice during the last half. The Marquette team failed to set one shot on a follow-up, which is a fine defensive feat for Law­rence.

Vikita, sophomore forward for Marquette, was high scorer of the evening with ten points collected throughout the game. Sokody and Burton were both tied for second honors with eight points each, collected on two baskets and four free throws.

A shift in the Vike line-up which moved Bob Coller to center, also helped the best clicking offense this year.

Football Roster Includes Chicago
Next Year's Grid Season
To Open at Stagg Field

The Viking football team will play Chicago University on Sept. 26, 1938, to open the sec­ond-page 26 grid schedule. It is un­denied that Chicago excelled Law­rence in many years. Coach and the All-American Board accepted the Marquette offer as a good fair opponent. This is the first time Lawrence has met a Big Ten school since 1899, when they played at Wisconsin.

The 1938 schedule is as follows:
Sept. 26—Chicago, Stagg Field.
Oct. 3—Carroll, Carroll.
Oct. 10—Syracuse, New York.
Oct. 17—Knox, Knox Field.
Oct. 24—Carroll, home.

Prison Innates Earn Favorable Track Record

Too Better Than Two Point

Prisoners at Minnesota's St. Cloud penitentiary are making good progress in improving their track record, according to Prison Superintendent John J. Fanning. The inmates are working hard to improve their track record, and it appears that they are on the right track.

In the words of Assistant Warden James H. Johnson, "We are pleased to report that the inmates are making good progress in improving their track record. They are working hard to improve their track record, and it appears that they are on the right track."
Deride Student Anti-War Ideal

Students Ficketing "Red Salute" Attacked by Athletics

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

An articulate, concentrated protest against propaganda in two of the mediums most recently adapted to it, the screen and newspaper, comic strips, has been increasingly evident in college communities, an Associated Collegiate Press survey shows.

Most bitterly protested has been the movie "Red Salute," starring Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Young, with most of the newspapers and such comic strips as the Chicago Tribune Syndicate's "Little Orphan Annie," coming in for heavy criticism, and action that has included picketing campuses.

"Red Salute," it is said to deride student anti-war sentiment and to attack the right of free speech by students and professors, has been picketed on campuses from New York to Chicago, and has received cancelled bookings in other places. Eighteen C. C. N. Y. students are音乐 wit dinner and dessert with the film in New York, and in Medford, Oregon, University of Wisconsin students came to know when pictures are barred to a group of athletes.

Students will not be lied about or kilted out of their opposition to war, and the pickets line up in front of theaters that flout the law.

"Students who picket," says the Daily, "will not be picked on for their purpose has well nigh gone shorter every year."

We Sometimes Wonder
A survey of college men and women revealed an attempt to discern to what extent students contempt. The question asked was "What does the American student most admire in his fellow students?" Strangely enough, the answers given indicated a total lack of positivity on the part of a majority of the students. They had never definitely defined the question, and although they believed in a vague sort of way that happiness was their goal, they never were quite certain as to the means to achieve that end. A few mentioned an interest in politics, but they were not interested in the part of the students revealed other sins, such as security, indifference against self-improvement, laziness, slopiness and numerous other desires.

We are not happy because we lack the lack of positivity in their desires, we sometimes disagree with our goals should be sharply defined. How greatly have these students erred by failing to perceive the American student's desperate need for a sincere milieu? Who, after all, is capable of disarming the American college student? And when conflicting testimonies of philosophers, coaches and mentors are placed before the student, how can he decide?

"The Challenge to Youth," has been flouted at them for so long that it has become a meaningless phrase. What is this "challenge" that the older generation is continually making? Traditionally it seems to be a choice between being a "nerd" or being a "student." The former becomes steeped in dogmatism on one hand, and narrow-minded idolatry on the other. The latter in turn is told live in the broader cultural life, the next, the skillfully by the fathers of the 19th century. Maybe the father is telling.

The American student has been frequently called "the ideal," "the like," "the great," "the good," "the saint." We are told that he is supposed to be the new American, the man who must be trained to be leaders of the world, to be the backbone of our nation. And from this picture Youth is expected to draw inspiration, to determine where he is going, and why. We wonder.

To the casual onlooker a freshman girl may seem to be a great deal like a society belle. The question asked was "What do you know?" Down at Ohio State University the dean of women found that the freshman desire to be treated discriminately in the ideas between lower and upper class girls. The dean quoted the girls as to the most desirable qualities girls should possess.

To go to good family, the upperclass women demanded good morals, but the freshman girls—save the mark!—voted good social traits the freshest good social traits the most desirable qualities and offensive personal habits, the worst.

To Tint or Not to Tint
Dear Mr. Weston:
May we thank you for your letter and for the opportunity it afforded for further comment.

Although the college budget does not include a special allotment for convocation speakers, rather does it define the so-called "lecturers" fund very sharply. This item of $300 is supposedly at the disposal of the convocation committee with little or no limitation. Furthermore, the Finance board has defined a portion of their appropriation to be used to secure speakers, and I am sure they would be willing to cooperate to everyone's advantage. As quickly as it fell, the thin one

Is it so easy as it might seem to secure the best of lecturers? The question seems not to have been sufficiently answered. The funds available are very limited, and we wish to use them to the best advantage.

Even the State University is not a tree to which we can go and pick off a good convocation speaker at will. All University men are not good speakers, and even the good ones not or will not always accept our invitations. We know from this experience.

We are not at all sure that an off-campus fund necessarily possesses a more "normal unviewed viewpoint of world opinion" than does one of our own faculty; but leaving this aside, a review of this year's program shows that in the eleven weeks to date there have been nine off-campus speakers, an average of nearly one a week.

We are always interested in the increase of information and they hope they will be offered freely by whatever channel they come to us. We should be glad also to allot a larger proportion of programs to members of the student body if it could be done to advantage. We are as eager as the Lawrentian to avoid verbosity in the convocation programs.
