Frosh 'Golden Apples'

It's apple cider time, almost, and Lawrence's own is always the best. The apples are a fraction of the price and are just as good. The serene apple atmosphere makes the perfect backdrop for a good time. The apples are a perfect party dish. At the end of the night, when the guests have eaten of the bell apples, the hostess can serve her guests applesauce and allow for a perfect end to the evening.

The apple is a symbol of abundance and plenty. It is said that the apple tree was planted in the Garden of Eden, and Eve was tempted by the fruit of the tree. The apple has been a symbol of fertility and abundance throughout history. In many cultures, the apple is associated with the goddess of fertility, such as the Greek goddess of fertility, Demeter.

Rushing Methods Need a Cleaning

First, let me say that the campus has enjoyed the blessing of the administration for some time now, proof enough that they are cooperating in the program which the college has set for itself. They have seen and superintended themselves as significant units in the entire fraternity movement, as evidenced by their continued (or non-dismissing) station.

For these accomplishments, they are entitled to some pride, but they have still a great deal to accomplish in local interfraternity cooperation.

The reference above is to the sociably petty men which grew out of this year's rush activities. A rush action taken may have done more damage to friend­ly relations between these groups than can be repaired during an entire year. It is true that these groups have, in some measure, betrayed the administration and their members. They have betrayed them with pride.

If the informal, unplanned place, every fraternity group on the campus has some­thing to say about the dirty rushing tac­ lot which has grown during the last year. These accusations may or may not be true, but the fact is there is plenty of evidence floating around to at least partly substantiate the accusation. The end of the semester is every every esoteric fraternity man that unless he gets his oar in too, he will be left in the ruck, and his fraternity will suffer. It takes only one violator of the rushing code to create this feeling, and the effect is utterly demoralizing on freshmen, upperclassmen alike.

If the rushing rules had been handed down from above by some authority who was unaware of the misunderstandings and violation of them could be understood, but the rule making has been limited mainly by the fraternities themselves, and every breach of them has been a breach of the fraternity men's honor. The use of the tongue over a regrettable situation, falsification, or whatever it is, and begin to make plans for a Homecoming program such as they thought of in order what they were freshmen and before they first experienced the thrill of seeing a movie or nothing. (Prim et al permitting.)

Homecoming is just one month away. The stir of preparation for it has been extremely annoying, but perhaps that has been because the windmills of rushing have been in full operation so much of the time, but however that may be, one month is surely too long a time to overcome the tradition of haste of several years standing.

Just as a matter of good psychology, the program ought to be wholly different from last year's. Not only would a bad precedent be avoided, but the fresher men have had a chance to see the fraternity's condition.

As a by-product, the book should also contain a list of the scholarships available to freshmen during the previous year. The activities employed by every other group. An account of the activities of all fraternities during the previous year should be listed—athletics, fes­tivities, homecoming, and all fraternities student government.

But let us get back to the fundamentals of all fraternity parties for that lasts long enough to provide the flashiest cars so as to "show the Freshmen what they've got" in the line of cars. The sad part of it is, some poor fellows are influenced by it.

Freshmen, again you've had a rather unfair deal. Greeks, again you've given it to them.

As one survey the last week's rush­ing activities, you will see that many persons are laboring under the delusion that nothing has been done to curb­ noun any withdrawal from the present rushing system, i.e., give the new man a fair chance to select the fraternity which he desires. This is perhaps one of the best or flashiest cars, nor the one which promises to bring the most prestige.

Many changes can be made in the rush­ing system at Lawrence to give it a fairer man square deal. One of the first that comes to mind is changing the distribution of a handbook on all Lawrence fraternities when rushing begins. This should contain provisions such as the following:

A. An article by the Dean of Men outlining the general fraternity situation at Lawrence and a caution to all freshmen to avoid choosing any fraternity which they have been to every fraternity—ex­

Viking Gridders Tip Northwestern College, 21-0

Novoskold and Weidman Score; Rushing Slows; Well on Passes

By A. T. MILLER

Scoring the first touchdown of the season by returning a punt 4 yards, Novoskold started Viking season off with a bang late in the first quarter against Northwestern College. The boys from Watertown, although coming up a game fight from the whistle to the final, failed to even threaten the Lawrence goal line. The final score was Lawrence 1, Northwestern 0 courtesy of Novoskold and Weidman. Practically every man on the squad new action for at least a few minutes as Coaching Paul Doty and Ace Johnson trimmied the team up for the upcoming match. The continuous action is bringing out all good things, however, there was a nuthatch in the game. Er Vande­man was forced out of the game late in the fourth quarter with a badly bruised ankle. This injury will probably keep him out of the line-up for several days if not more than a week.

On the offensive Lawrence showed some exuberance in the past two years, but this was especially in the first period. The boys scored a touchdown, but were off the line for the second period. The loss of Cliff Olsen is surely missed in the lineup. Olsen and his long nose, however, are not the only loss. Ken Carpenter's sister Marj. sister Elizabeth, as well as Red Joe Maertzweiler can keep on call­ing season off with a bang late in the season by returning a punt 105 yards.
