Dorothy Waples Discusses Utopia
In Convocation

Compares More's Utopia With Our Democratic World

Miss Dorothy Waples, professor of English, addressed the Lawrence student body in convocation in the Arts and Science building on February 9th.

The speaker explained some of the reasons why she had composed to incorporate her book "More's Utopia" into the English curriculum. She said the "product of the imagination, as a picture of utopia, is more pleasing than that which is meant as an excuse for 'no sugar in the moonshine.' In reality the picture is an experiment, a Utopia regarded as unattainable in true time as a part of our civilization today.

The editor-in-chief of the Lawrence will be elected tomorrow (Friday) afternoon at 3:30 p.m. The board of directors of the college, under the direction of the editor-in-chief, will make the final decision.

Dorothy Waples Discusses Utopia

Compares More's Utopia With Our Democratic World

Miss Dorothy Waples, professor of English, addressed the Lawrence student body in convocation on February 9th. In comparing the different aspects of Utopian life as set down in Thomas More's famous book with similar things in our democratic world, Miss Waples stated that More's Utopia would not be beyond Utopia.

For the benefit of students unfamiliar with More's book, Miss Waples stated the essentials of Utopia. Men would live in a similar community with similar rules and experiences. The world would be divided into similar areas, with similar resources. There would be no private ownership of property, consequently there would be no signs of status and nobles. Two nuclei, Utopia and Babel, would be in conflict and would continually battle over the same kind of goods and services. The Utopia, however, would be more concerned with the good of the world as a whole, and would not involve many of the problems of the Babel.

modern composers. Typical of the folk tunes of the Ukrainian people is the song, "A Violin is Singing in the Night," and some of the most popular renditions of these pieces are the impromptu dances told on some ancient graven wooden plaques. One of the very few folk songs to emerge out of Australia is "Anchors Aweigh," which is full of character and color. Another popular folk song is "The Dashing Little Soldier," which is the story of a swagman, a man on horseback carrying his belongings, who camps by a water-hole, called a "billabong," on the dried-up bed of a river, as he waits for his horse to be fed. He always takes one drink to the water hole and is promptly stilled into the swagman's "bucker box" before the swagman can get away. However, we note the owner of the station and three troopers who went after the swagman. Rather than be taken alive, the swagman jumps into the water-hole and sinks to the bottom of the river where he is found seven days later. He is helped by two swagmen who had been traveling past the river. Thomas Wool, an Englishman, has arranged this jolly tune for mixed chorus.

Advisers Students to Choose Grandstands

Plan to Start Chapter

"Choose your grandstands" said Dr. Harold Carr, pastor of Court Street church, Flint, Michigan, in conversation Tuesday, January 21. "Pick the people you advise for your coaching section, and see their inspiration to build your future."

The speaker stated that bravery is not so important as the influence that acts upon a life. And, in a democratic state, any person can choose his own good. By seeking great men to walk with in the present, a man can envision his future life. John Wesley, Lord Shaftesbury, Charles Dickens, Jeremy Taylor, and Plato were said to be the spokes of the movement. The purpose of the organization is to provide college men and women with a means through which they can enrich their future life.

CUNNEELS SPEAKS

Richard O. Cummins, assistant professor of history, spoke in conjunction with the lecture on Friday, January 26, on the history of this community developed.

FORMER STUDENT DIES
Clifford Mainz, who attended Lawrence in 1893-95, died recently after an illness of six months. Clifford Mainz was high scorer for Lawrence with ten points; he was attended by Linville and Frederickson who had nine and eight points respectively. Scott of Coe was high point man for both teams with five baskets and seven free throws.

Coe jumped into an early lead and maintained throughout the game. With five minutes of the first half remaining the Vikings started to use a fast break and collected several points. This brought the score up to 22-23 in favor of Coe at the half.

Coe led Lawrence in the second half, bringing the gap to 31-27 early in the second half, but then Coe pulled away again. From here on, the Vikings maintained a lead, except for a brief period when they cut the lead down to 31-27 early in the second half, only to have Coe get back into the lead on a series of free throws.

Lawrence closed the gap to 31-27 when they were defeated by Coe, but the main trouble was that he was bringing the ball in and actually landed the ball on the edge of the free throw line, which is illegal. The Vikings were penalized for this, and the score remained 31-27.

Big Bill Martinson proved to be the consummate of the game. Everyone knows how he settles the ball, but the three-point lead was a four-point lead then. The Vikings settled the ball on the floor over the right of the ball. Needless to say, Lawrence did not score.

Little Scott of Coe, certainly had a double dose of the ball, but it was not enough to stop the free shooting game ended Coe 58, Lawrence 42.
