Students, Help Meet the Lawrence Quote; Contribute to the Red Cross

THE THOUSAND DOLLARS in the quota for the Red Cross that Lawrence has been asked to give as a group to contribute this amount for the cause that brings relief on the home and foreign battlefields. You are all aware that men are needed in service, and the numbers of other things to help, suffering and sorrow that come to all in this terrible war.

All of you are citizens of this United States, and as citizens it is your duty to do your best to answer the call of the men in uniform to come to the aid of our boys overseas. Many of our Lawrence men are already on the field of battle or have joined the fighting services. It may furnish just enough to buy one more uniform, a bandage that save some! You're best not. If you can't, for the life that you will be able to save, for many of these boys in college to be fighting in battles on foreign soil besides now rear your rolls around.

Everyone in college should contribute, either by dollar or more and certainly quite a few have the means to contribute much more. This will mean quite a deal to those who feel this is too steep, but remember that the Red Cross is doing. If you can get this impressed on your mind, any amount is small.

Snow Sculpturing Provides Larry Lawrence With Early Day

The first rays of the sun struck the peaceful campus, illuminating the busy branches of the Frank tree, and contrasting with the snow-covered ground below. Larry, my fellow classmate, entered the dormitory and said "Hey, did you see the snowman that was build outside this morning? It was quite small and I've heard that Miekey Heuring, Fran and Pat Torson, are working on a snowman. But it wasn't just a snowman. They were also making a snow-sculpturing contest that day.

Larry was quite excited about the snow-sculpturing contest and wanted to get ready for packing.

In the Wind

A new feature of the campus is the wind, which is now being noticed by the majority of students. It is interesting to note that the boys are expected to respect the Wind more than ever before. The wind is expected to be a great asset to the college, and it is hoped that the boys will use it to their advantage.

Green Room Gossip

IF you hear the words "Green upon a three- " being spoken over the Appleton radio stations on some- thing about five, it's probably Jeanne Foster beginning her daily broadcast of a children's story. Jeanne has had this program for over a year and has an ardent fol­ lowing of Appleton children.

The Village Green was Jeff's first appearance in a Lawrence the­ atrical piece, but he starred in several class plays in high school. Besides "she's a braille" and a Billie Holiday thre­ e-point, tidal Mike Beers (a Smartie Party) does a lot of work in radio players. She directs some radio plays and is associated with the "Here's red hair, a low well-modulated voice, makes practically a three- point, and when I asked them what kind of paint to buy to paint snow. They didn't know and I wanted red and blue paint, laughing when I went out, and the clerks all thought me rather queer when I asked them what kind to buy. They seemed interested and said, "I really wouldn't know, " and "Where should I go to direct this to the children's depart­ ment?" And I had to find all the pa­ rents of water paint there for any consideration. But the pastel paint is wonderful and I'm really glad I bought the red and blue paint for his stripes. I can still see that face and I'll buy the paint again."

Interfraternity Ball Tops Social Calendar This Week

The highlights of the spring social season is the Interfraternity Ball Sat­ urday night. Following the same sites as last year, the fraternityes are getting together to have one big informal dinner, rather than following the old tradition of formal dinners of years. The Big "F is making an attempt to sponsor another "big" at the end of the semester. Other plans on the Big ep calendar include a speaker, at the same session next week. The Betas are having one of their traditional Varsity Oases this weekend as an official send-off to those members that will be leaving with the Phi Phis. Maybe the girls are trying to build up a reserve for those nine weeks exams coming up, but food seems to be the most thought for social plans. The Phi Phis have planned a desert supper in the rooms before active Monday Mon­ day night, and the D. G. s. soror­ ityes will serve dessert to their other actions Monday night too. The D. G. s. "served a desert supper in their rooms Thursday to a house-warming for their new dormitory room.

Miss Wellington, Miss Jones, and Mrs. Chandler were guests of honor at the Phi Phis' party in their room last Monday, and some planning a roomful at Phi-Pei Sunday afternoon. Mon­ day night, the Phi Phis gave a party in an 'alumni room in honor of the members who were installed that night. Lynn Billings has been chosen new social chairman of the group. Following the patriotic theme, the Phi Phis have planned an open and packing hall kites for their party next week. The "alumni room" is a place where the students can meet and relax in a comfortable atmosphere. The Phi Phis have planned a desert supper in the rooms before active Monday Mon­ day night, and the D. G. s. soror­ ities will serve dessert to their other actions Monday night too.

Vikes Wind Up Season With 4 Championships

Lawrence Holds Basketball, Football, Swimming, Golf Titles in Conference

Lawrence college is winding up one of the most successful seasons in its history, holding four Midwest conference championships plus state championship in three others. The region's enthusiasm for college football championship for the second straight time, while winning 100 points by 13 in Al Zepp and William Conner. Lawrence had the 20 touch downs in the league and in Rich-ard Miller, had the highest scoring star in the nation, with 23 points in 5 touchdowns and 18 convers-tions. Captain Warman, Lawrence's running back, was selected for the final conference team.

Dear reader;

The basketball season was just as successful in the conference title and playing five games in the Great Lakes and Camp Grant. Dick Miller, with the highest scor-ing average in the league, was the conference stand-out. He was chosen by the Great Lakes R

Paul Maetzler is on his merry way and to follow in his path is no easy job. Mainly because of his strong footwork, speed and overall athletic ability, he has been listed as number one in the nation on the track and field.

Lawrence basketball fans have been watching the World Pro tourney at Chicago with more than ordinary enthusiasm, our own Bill Crossett is playing with the Onan All-Stars and by this time Bill is probably scoring his gold wrist watch with “Watch Champions” engraved on the back. As we go to press the All-Stars are in the middle of their semi-final game with Fort Wayne.

The calling of the ERC boys will have its effects on the coming basketball season. Lee Cooper, 489 man, Elenor Fostendorf, promising dash man, and Bob Whicker, distance runner, will all report before any outdoor meets will be held.

Joe Green, Chuck Klettli, and Paul Maetzler, all members of last year's state championship team, will all be on the list of fine athletes who will be leaving.

We still have Fieweger, though, so all hope can’t be cast aside. Enough can’t be said about Jim’s extraordinary abilities. The best way to describe them is by saying he has the ability to beat any athlete no matter how skilled he may be. Fieweger will be competing with some of the top hurdlers in the nation, some of whom he has not met earlier this year. Among Fiewegers seven opponents will be Charles Dom, former Michigan national star and holder of the Illinois Tech Relays record in the high hurdles.

Without any further ado, we will turn our attention to the track world, has accepted an invitation to one of the biggest track events in the Middle West, The Chicago Daily News invitation-relays. An annual event sponsored by the Chicago newspaper, the Relays will again be held in mammoth Chicago Stadium on a specially built outdoor track on flag.

Gym Classes Take Agility
Tests of Navy
Coaches Give Series Of Tests to Measure Men's Physical Skill

Throughout the official Navy athletic body, which comprises members of the boy's gym classes, are getting a taste of the rigorous physical exercise which their friends on the warships have been undergoing. The tests, which are being given under the direction of Coach H. H. Heselton, are in number and are arranged to give each man an individual rating with which he can compare himself with other members of the classes.

The five exercises are graded individually on a curve according to their relative difficulty and are designed so as to prevent any person from receiving a perfect score of one hundred. These "T" scores are then added and averaged to give him the participant his individual rating.

The first exercise is called the squat thrust, whereby the gymnast must lower to a squat with his knees on the floor, extend his legs backward, then return to the squat, and himself into this original standing position. He is rated according to the time he can do in one minute.

Two Scotch pull-ups, the pull-ups and push-ups, are also parts of the test. The pull-up is, of course, on a horizontal bar, while the push-up is in the floor with the hands on the bar and the feet on the ground. The squat jump is the next exercise. He is allowed to weight on the front or back, but he must come to a full squat again with the weight on his back. This continues until collapse or voluntary retirement on the part of the participant.

The last test, really a study of push-up or squat exercise that would have been considered a "no" in any professional circus, is the handstand on the head. From a seated position with hands behind the head and feet on the floor, the student must raise his trunk and touch his right elbow with his left foot, return to a prone position, and repeat, touching his left elbow with his right foot, and so on.
