The Editor Speaks
A REPLACEMENT FOR LANDIS
Kennewick Mountain Lands, high commissioner of baseball since 1921, is dead, Lands, well known for his dictatorial rule of the baseball world for two and a half decades, was a man who played the game—no man who let anything stand in the way of justice.

At the meeting of the major league baseball heads, President Landis was present, He recommended that Will Har­ridge of the American League, and the former secretary of the National League, be given the three-man board to act in the place of the high commissioner.

Many years the baseball big wigs have objected to the "handicap" system as an "outside" one, not in telling them how to run their business. By appointing a board of baseball heads which could pass on whether or not the committee had accomplished what they set out to do—they now have the power to do anything that suits their hands.

The new system is not a good one. According to the an­nouncement, the arrangement is only a temporary one until a new commissioner is appointed. However, it is unlikely that the baseball moguls will allow another non-baseball man to come into a position of such power. Lands did a good job—even the men and major league clubs who were rebuffed were not so quick to deny that.

If baseball is to continue to be fairly administered in a just and unbiased manner, it is essential that one man be given the opportunity to meet the fellas in past semesters. Almost all the older Lands had many opportunities to meet the fellas in past semesters. Almost all the older Lands had many opportunities to meet the fellas in past semesters. Vikings Eke Out Win Over Milwaukee Peds

Luedemann Scores 12 Points to Lead Lawrence In Rough 42-39 Victory

The Lawrence College basketball team won their second game in three starts last Saturday night, beating Milwaukee State Teachers College, 42-39, in a game that resulted in a rough football like stage in the last quarter. Behind 29-13 at the half, Roy Hansen's cagers returned to the floor to play spirited ball the last two periods; thus on and with 42-39. The lone defense set up by the Terns lately proved to be the falling point of the Lawrence team. Throughout the first period the Vikings were held almost entirely to long shots, and bombed weak on the tip-off.

Bo Luedeman, of Gillett, led the Lawrence scorers with five baskets, three of which were free throws. Roy Van De Berg and Don Shrack, Lawrence forwards, hit a very fine half, scored nine and ten points respectively. Terry Hall became the target of the referees' whistle five times and was forced to leave the contest in the rough last quarter. Lawrence actually won the game from the free throw line rather than scoring an equal number of goals.

Swamp Gavottes

The current art exhibit on display in the library was procured for the college by the courtesy of Sylvester Jury, director of the Charles W. Wurtz Museum of Fine Arts.

The exhibit includes five graphic prints, the majority of which are lithographs, and a few etchings done by contemporary American artists.

Among the artists represented in the late Emil Ganso, who was in residence at Lawrence for six months in 1943. Ganso was an artist here by the Carnegie Institute as a guest artist and while here he made etchings of the different buildings on the campus.

Together with the graphics are a series of demonstrations and reproductions of the work of contemporary lithographers and etchers.

Following this exhibit will be a one-man display of lithographs made by Robert Martin. The display will be in the library from January 9 to January 20.

Several students of the art classes are now at work designing the fourth floor balcony. It will be used as an art gallery for the display of reproductions and other student works.
