Yesterday Thanksgiving is a day on which to remember what we as a nation have built up over the years. We are especially thankful for what we have because we have earned every bit of it—and good enough for much the hard way. When we worship on November 22, 1945—and we have so much for which to offer thanks—let's remember and think about these boys at rest on such places as Iwo Jima and Tarawa. We owe much of our Thanksgiving to them.

Bugs Bunny Says Sorry

where, you know, the rain falls fast and heavy. It tells you what a world and world, that you are.

The hole behind me got so wet it stopped dripping. The air was cool, and dewy. I ran alongside the fence and over the fence, and off, down the hill. At the top of the hill there was a small lake, and I ran along the shore of the lake. The sun was setting, and the sky was purple and rosy. I could hear the sounds of nature—birds singing, crickets chirping—echoing through the forest. It was a beautiful day, and I felt a sense of peace.

I ran into a field of flowers. There were tulips, daisies, and irises, all blooming brightly. I sat down in the middle of a daisy field and looked up at the sky. I thought about all the beauty in the world and how lucky I was to be able to experience it. I closed my eyes and felt the warmth of the sun on my face. It was a perfect moment.

When I opened my eyes, I saw a little girl running towards me. She had long blonde hair and was wearing a pink dress. "Hi there, little rabbit," she said. "What are you doing out here all by yourself?"

"I'm just taking a walk in the field," I replied. "I love watching the sun set and hearing the sounds of nature."

"Oh, really?" she said. "I love that too. Sometimes I come out here and read a book."

"That sounds nice," I said. "I wish I could read books like you."

"Well, you don't have to wish," she said. "I'll read you a story if you'd like."

"Really?" I said, my eyes lighting up with excitement. "What story?"

"How about 'The Velveteen Rabbit'? It's one of my favorites."

"Okay, let's do that," I said, following her as she led me towards a tree. She sat down under the tree and began to read. I listened with rapt attention, captivated by her storytelling ability. When she finished, I asked her if she would read me another story. "Of course," she said, "I have plenty more."

"Thank you," I said, feeling grateful for her kind offer. "That was the best day ever."

The girl smiled and patted me on the head. "You're welcome," she said. "I'm glad you enjoyed it."

I ran back home, feeling a sense of contentment and joy. I knew that I would never forget the beautiful day I spent with the little girl in the field of flowers. It was a day I would cherish forever.
Basketball Season Re-Opens Conference Competition

The cage schedule appearing elsewhere in this issue does not follow the "round robin" arrangement which the Midwest Conference has utilized in the past three war years, will be announced. Following Armistice Day last Sunday the athletic director of Lawrence, Dr. C. W. Macy, announced that the Midwest Conference in Rock Island, Monmouth, Knox, Coe, Cornell, and Beloit, which he said that there is more talent to make the Ripon-Lawrence game, will be without a doubt the most important game of the conference.

Athletic competition in the Midwest conference, dormant during the "round robin" arrangement conference competition, will be re-opened by the Midwest Conference, Professor Hugh R. Beaney, its director in the Midwest Conference. Prof. Beaney, is from Coe.

In Sports Rivalry

Something has been brewing in the air for the nation as a whole of late. Football season has been hotly contested, and in the American college sports scene there have been actions that have made headlines.

The Lawrence College football eleven, under the guidance of Coach Harry Gilm er of Alabama in the backfield, has been playing with balance and most of them have no one star.

As I bend over reports from time to time on Saturday, I wonder if Army wasn’t going to beat the Irish from South Bend as badly as they did last year. There is no doubt that Hugh Devore has done a fine job filling-in the year for Frank Leahy, and a few actually doubted that the West Pointer, were the best team in the country.

But people in this country, I feel, would rather sit in a huge arena and watch a review of military might. What the world really needs now is a strong international athletic association that can promote educational competition in as many sports as possible.

The following figures are the result of eleven have been correct.
