WAA Bows Out to WRA New Constitution Okay

The Women's Athletic Association is dead and will be superceded by the Women's Association. This new body comes into being in place of the old. The action came as a result of the women's vote taken at the April 6 Assembly meeting. The vote was 1157-73 in favor of the new constitution. The new constitution was adopted by the Executive Board at its meeting on March 18, 1947 and becomes effective immediately. Important changes are: Article I, Section II—The name of the organization shall be the Women's Recreation and Athletic Association. Article II, Section II—By-laws shall be iron to assure a minimum of participation credit in two sports. Article III, Section II—The Executive Board shall have the power of making additions and changes in the by-laws as the occasion requires.

The copies of the new constitution will be distributed among the membership. The new constitution has been reviewed by the wisconsin athletic association and approved by them.

"Let's Do Fewer Things And Do Them Better"

"I just haven't a thing to do. This school's getting so quiet. Suppose you could just get out and do something."

This attitude is widespread among a large segment of the student body, and a segment that finds little time of use to filled but which gives no energy to student extra-curricular activities. We've seen our excuses at Lawrence. At the opposite end of the pole are students who have proved responsible in the past and as a reward for their efforts, campus offices, responsibilities and duties are assigned under their direction. These students are capable; they are the students who enjoy classwork. Yet they bitterly complain and moan about the system that robs them of all time. They are not the any one job competently and a system that leaves no time to apply the study and analysis they think necessary for classwork.

Here we obviously have a dislocation of responsibility. If one considers that there are many of the "big wheels" claim that either students display no interest in the office, and initiate, and devote little time to the work. They feel that under these conditions they cannot delegate responsibility. Yet they indicate little enthi-usiasm of others to help, discourages training, and leaves all the duties heaped on their overworked shoulders.

One of the primary purposes of an extracurricular program is to prepare the student for the classroom learning into fields of practical experience and to add to the enjoyment of everyday life. If the student's extracurricular activities attract only a nominal percentage of students they are falling short of their avowed purpose; if in fact, they demand little of much of particular individuals, the activities are actually harmful to the pursuing of a college education.

We have heard of colleges where students were limited in the number of offices and activities they might carry on at once. In such institutions a concentrated effort is made to create interest in such programs among all students. The colleges also correlate the extra-curricular with the classroom study, the professors and administration fostering after-hours work to extend the stimulation of the office. Here the reverse might be true. Activities are sponsored by many on the administration able to be traditional to the type of intellectual endeavor we want. For that reason they discourage them or ignore them.

Student and faculty ought to work for more meaningful activities. As Mr. Troyer said recently, "We should do fewer things and do them better."

The many little jobs that go into making up a paper. Janet Paucher, Norma Newton, Betty Golin, Teresa Cottle, Bekka Beckley, Mary Ruth Holmes, Carol Butts, Gail Gould, Diane Bartle, Betty Kwany, and others were busy the entire week writing copy for the copy desk. Phyllis Leever and Shirley Lee Dallas supplied all the copy. Wednesday afternoon. Busy headliners writers were led by Col Stowell whose crew consisted of Laure Eiseney, Carl Laumann and Bob Fall. Four typists kept busy.

Now we are through. We will have to build in new jobs or working at the old ones.

Many of you on the paper expect no praise or recognition. The papers are up, the work is done, and no amount of praise.

Letter to the Editor:

It is not often that a group on the Lawrence college campus actually gets too much in the way of social activities, but a horde of nightly activities during this week has proved this to be the case of the Moc-Morter Board.

As the plans went, the affair was arranged and organized nicely, but they produced too much of a good thing. After the first few years of this annual affair has never been a complete success, although it reached its climax Saturday evening.

Heselton Calls Out Huskies
For Spring Football Practice

Coach Bernie Heselton has issued a call for spring football practice, scheduled to begin on April 10. All men who intend to take part in the grid sport next fall are expected to report, except those who are engaged in other spring sports.

Press reports for 1947 were good this fall, with a viable possibility of a 1946 championship team returning. However, it will take a lot of talent to replace Ed Miller, Dean Bartrum, Rich Carry, Joe Groop, George Lucht, John Messenger and Rodney Rupins in the Viking lineup.

At this fall's 11-man squad is the same team the Blue and Gold faced last year, don't forget in the conclusion that the title is in the last. Five of the conference games next fall will be played away from home. One of these games, against the Great Lakes Conference, will be played in the last week that the team would be chosen.

Men who plan to take in spring practice are expected to pick up uniforms and gear from Coach Heselton before spring vacation starts next Wednesday.

Badger basketball fans hereabouts certainly got a jolt during the second half of the CCNY affair in New York. After leading 37-27 at half-time by completely outplaying the fast breaking New Yorkers, Wisconsin fell apart at the seams and lost 70-56. . . . The Badgers made a nice comeback against Navy on Saturday night, though. . . . Incidentally, somebody pulled a political stunt by running to a fifteen minute pregame address of one of the candidates for circuit judge in the middle of WBBY's broadcast of the Badger-Navy game. Audience listening was primarily composed of the basketball game and will probably remember the part he made when he goes to the polls on April 7.

Carl Buback, the old meal ticket, says that all-American Charlie Tripp is "the greatest college baseball player of the past 33 years." Ken Bennett won't be bad, either. . . . Red Smith, in a recent "Saturday Evening Post" article, thinks the trouble with the Yankees is the pitching. Could be! Fashion shows and foot races between man and beast never become as interesting as the sports reading public.
