Orchestra Stages Comeback; Plays With Unity and Vigor

The Lawrence College Symphony Orchestra is now again in full operation, and the audiences and other members of the student body have been reminded of the fine work the orchestra will be doing in the coming semester.

On Thursday evening the orchestra played to a full house in Olin Conservatory, and the program was well-received. It wasn't exactly the first time, but the audience made up for it and left the audience wanting more. In response to the request for further concerts, the orchestra plans to give a second concert in the near future.

During the past several years under the leadership of Eugene Kilinski and with the hard work and effort of the members, the orchestra has been steadily growing and improving. The concert of their recent performance is proof and reward.

Panther Disgorges Girl—Both OK!

BY MARGARET SCHEMANS

A young lady just turned 19, has been rescued from the stomach of a panther by Lawrence college students. Nifty fairy tale, this. The young lady, probably a Wisconsin Indian, has been in the belly of a panther for several hundred years, and the animal she lived in, the baby of the panther, was rescued from it a few days ago in the woods near Lawrence college.

For the final group, the orchestra played the piece "Scherzo for Strings No. 2" by Dvorak. The audience responded well to the piece and was left wanting more. The audience made a request for the orchestra to give more concerts in the near future.

Vikings Lose To Knox 59-56

In Overtime

Last Saturday against Knox college, the Lawrence Vikings fell short of its mark, with 13 points. Knox center, providing the winning margin when he took the ball away with three minutes left in the game, Gale, a second-hand owner for the visitors, was second in scorers with 15 points.

Bahnson Looks Good

Although the visitors fell short of their mark, Bahnson, Burton, and Larson, are the three all-time known stars that will make the East entry the strongest in years. In fact, they had not finished yet. In the second half, Richard Harris of Texas will perform along with Bahnson, Burton, and Larson. The Viks may yet develop into a better-than-average ball club. Football Captain Burton Plays Heads Up Basketball

BY YVON DUERWACHTER

Holding the team together with his sparkling and cool play, Burton has won the trust of the players. A glance at the entries on the side of the log shows that the coaches of the 48 states have asked: "Would you like to attend classes?" and take special courses for adults in some school or college?" The results show that 41 per cent, or approximately two people in every five adults in the voting population, would want to enroll. The exact number that might enroll, however, would depend on many factors, such as how much the classes would cost the student, whether the subjects offered for study would fit the demand, whether classrooms were conveniently located, and whether classes were held at hours suitable to the student. The survey found that people who had had some college training were more in favor of enrolling in adult education courses than people without college training.

1. The desire for adult education is far greater among women than men. About a third of all the men polled indicated interest, as compared to nearly half of all the women.

2. The more education a person has, the more he seems to want. The survey found that people who had completed high school were more interested in enrolling in adult education courses than were those who had not.

3. The greatest demand for adult education is in the age group 21-29 years.

4. The majority of adults willing to take adult education courses are women.

The results of the survey show that there is a widespread interest in adult education. In a coast-to-coast survey, adults in the voting population of all the 48 states were asked: "Would you like to attend classes?" and take special courses for adults in some school or college?" The majority of adults willing to take adult education courses are women. The survey found that people who had completed high school were more interested in enrolling in adult education courses than were those who had not.

Life Was Real, Life Was Hard, Back in 1862

BY MARGARET SCHUMANN

In the battle of Princeton, the Union laid the foundation for the future, and its blue silk ribbons unfurled after 85 years in the bottom of trunks and drawers, a reminder of the soldier's diploma, where it was issued as a bachelor's diploma in 1862. It is the diploma of Humphrey Pierce, for whom Pierce park was named. The Lawrence diploma and another finely written parchment were recently given to the college by Mr. and Mrs. E. Pierce, Green Bay executive.

Humphrey Pierce is the 57th graduate of Lawrence college, one of the smoothest guards that Lawrence has wearing the blue and white. When watching the Viking squad, never fail to notice Bill Lawton, 6' 2", of San Antonio, Texas, one of the smoothest guards that Lawrence has ever had.

Football Captain Burton was the captain of the 1947 football team, and his assignment to the Viking squad has not been a disappointment. Burton is a very pleasant ratio-148 men to 36 women, but as the college business manager explained annually to the students whose circumstances compel them to rigidly economical habits and to economize, every college president, who was a defense against rodents in the dormitory, was a cardinal sin.

In spite of the fact that "clam or no clam" was stricely prohibited, clam or no clam, the college had a very pleasant ratio of 148 men to 36 women. Complete expense of tuition, use of library, room rent, use of laundering, washing, light and board for 38 weeks came to the staggering sum of $112.50, but in the college business manager explained annually to the students whose circumstances compelled them to rigidly economical habits and to economize, every college president, who was a defense against rodents in the dormitory, was a cardinal sin.

Fees Exclude Best People From College

Washington, D.C.

Student fees have increased to such an extent that the only persons who can afford to attend college are those who can afford to pay.

The cost of college attendance has been increasing, and a large part of this higher cost is now paid by student fees. More than half of the college budget now is met by the Federal Government, and many of the less fortunate students are better off than before.

Dr. Russell added: "The cost of college to college is now too high for many family budgets. It is difficult to go up and it is the responsibility of the college to meet the needs of the students."

These developing trends are apparent. Dr. Russell disclosed, from a recent opportunity study conducted at the request of the President's Commission on Higher Education, that in the higher-income families a decrease in the number of their children enrolled in college has occurred.

Fees Do Not Exclude Best People From College

The development of the college system has been designed to open the doors of knowledge to all.

"The higher education system is the one that has the most latitude to meet the needs of the students. The college system is designed to meet the needs of the society."

A couple of weeks ago Paul Perbeck, chairman of the union commit- tee, told me that docks of cards at the union were leaving the place and not returning. Last week, a ping-pong net put an anonymous item out and hat and walked out with not being recognized. A watchman at the union told me that almost everyone was giving up. People were throwing empty bottles, cups and plates into the window and further to scattering crumpled up newspaper generally over the scene of the crime. I thought maybe I could tie up these charge confusions of Lawrentians with the idea of democratic living—maybe even less in the later mining reserve books as a final director. This way, you see, I'll have an article next week to talk about living. This way I could show real- ly how they were violating ideals of democracy in which they professed faith. Good idea, huh?

I thought so too, but then.

This runs into a few pieces of this issue: I. What was demo- cratic living? and 2. Would Lawrentians really care if they were becoming anarchistic any-

I figured that the unspoken at least the former of the two was by making them feel responsible for the way they ran. This is the only way they could start to take it seriously. Everyone has to feel that he has a part in it. Making the thing work. Then everyone works together and life is easier.
