Students Vote Radio Station

The proposal to establish a radio station on campus was defeated in yesterday's referendum by a vote of 114 to 68. The proposal, which would have required that a board of control be established, was defeated by a slim margin. It is believed that a 130 vote would have been extended to the board to give it a margin of safety for adoption.

Institute New College Work In Curriculum

Waukesha, Wis. — (IP) — Carroll College has instituted a new course for college workers, as part of its curriculum, which will be available in the fall. The new major, called pastor's assistant in Christian education, will prepare students for service as children and youth workers, camp directors, church secretaries and recreational directors.

The proposed curriculum requires 131 hour credits and 131 honor credits for graduation including a full year of history, "The Modern World," over a four hour course and one semester of introductory psychology.

The new course promises to give to a selected group of students the kind of training that will enable them to move directly into church work in a related area when they complete their college course with a B.A. degree. Churches are asking for such workers and the admissions office here reports the receipt of "a good number" of applications already for the 1950-51 college year.

Elect Modder President Of Drama Organization

The Sunset Players, Lawrence dramatic organization, elected its officers for the next school year at a meeting held last Thursday, announced retiring President Don Jones.

Arthur Modder was named president in June. He has played varsity football, and was president of the Lawrence Ski club. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Greek News Condensed This Week

Edited by BG Reid

Due to circumstances beyond the irresponsible control of the editor of this column, the usual activities of the greeks will be condensed and digested form. In the way of news, AD Pi Dorothy Cole received a fraternity pin from Phi Tau Ed Conrad. Welcomed to the folds of brotherhood recently are newly initiated Beta Bruce Ritter, member of Beta Theta Pi's pledge class. Congratulations.

The fraternity and sororities have been giving parties, picnics and dinners. Next month all will receive little notices asking for aid consideration and generous donations in order to further the functions of the respective alumni organizations. Ah yes, those who play must pay.

Being a prospective graduating senior, the editor of this column wishes to thank all his little helpers and hopes that, in view of the new and expanded department of the greeks, there will be no more mix-ups. It is in this spirit that The Lawrentian will still continue to be greek minded (put it another way if you like) and help make their activities known through this fine medium the "Greek Column."

To Dedicate Art At New Building
Old Master Collection Honors Art Patrons

A quarter million dollar collection of Old Master paintings will be dedicated at the Worcester Fine Arts center this month at Lawrence college, Appleton, Wis., and pay honor to three prominent ladies in Midwestern art—Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Appleton, whose husband was once president of Lawrence and is now head of Brown university, Providence, R. I., and the late Mrs. Henry M. Wriston, whose husband was once president of Lawrence and is now head of Brown university. Providence, R. I., planned the plans of a picture rental service to college students, the inaugurating idea at Lawrence before her death, and it is now national. The principal lounge in the Worcester art center is known as the Ruth Bigelow Wriston room in her memory. Coming from Boston for the official dedication on June 10 will be her daughter Barbara Wriston, who is with the division of education of the Museum of Fine Arts. Dr. Wriston visited the building earlier in the spring while on a midwestern speaking tour.

The pictures in the opening show range from the 13th to the 20th century. Included are a small sixteenth century wood panel by the German artist Heinrich Albrecht, "Portrait of a Woman with a Prayer Book," a Portrait of a Man by Lucas Cranach, the Elder. "The Creation," by Giordano, and the early renaissance. "Saint Jerome," by Giovanni Battista Tiepolo. In one of the few eighteenth century artists to paint religious subjects with extraordinary skill is William Gillham, Donald Haack, and the late Joan Janston. Muriel Jensen, Mary Rose, and Arden Youngblood. Following the initiation ceremony a short informal reception was held for the new members.

Schedule Calendar
Need Future Plans
Social and program chairman of all organizations are asked to submit their plans for the coming year to the Dean's office before the close of the school year, if they wish to insure a place on the 1890-11 calendar. The calendar is being made up this coming week and dates for meetings, par­ties, dances, etc., can be assured, provided the plans are handed in on time. It will be to the advantage of every organization on campus if this is taken care of now.

Sunset Initiates Elevon
Initiation ceremonies were held yesterday at a special meeting in the upper floors of the Main hall. Three stu­dents qualified for membership and all were accepted. They were: Susan Bartels, Don­ald Cipningen, Richard Dinon, William Gillham, Donald Haack, and others. "Creation of Eve," from the high renaissance painting of Venus; "The Beggar Boy," by the 16th century Venetian, Giovanni Bat­tista Piazzetta; "The Opera Music­ians at Bordeaux" date of the turn of the century by Toulouse­Lautrec; "Church Interior" by the 17th century Dutch Rembrandt Rem­brant; "Vestibule," a 20th century in the impressionist style by Fernand Leger.

The tools of his trade: If, in short, he is willing to enter upon an apprenticeship which will end not after a foreseeable number of years, not after he has passed definable tests, not after he has achieved a definable minimum of proficiency, but only after he has realized an unattainable potential; if, in short, he is prepared to strive for the unattainable, then and only then may the writer lay claim to the name, artist.

Writing is a difficult profession. The active practitioner must be prepared to expend a hundred times as much time weeding over the process of actual composition as chatting pleasantly with the muse. And when he has written, the artist must be prepared to suffer the frustration of never knowing the real merit or value of his work.

We are fortunate here in Lawrence to have a magazine such as the "Contributor," it often an excellent opportunity for the

by Art Modar

We heard the following on the second floor of Main Hall the other day, "Well, I don't know. I don't know. What this story says is all right, but somehow it doesn't seem to see the right words." This is perhaps the most perfect gem of literary criticism that has appeared in the English speaking world in the past three centuries.

For this one straight forward expression of literary taste brings home, to us at least, more philanthropically than two dozen books on aesthetics and literary criticism, the fact that good writing is an art. The artist in general and the writer in particular, as the articulate members of their society, must be able to function as spokesmen for their groups, and to hold this position they must be able to see things more clearly and speak of them more accurately than their less "gifted" brothers.

By our use of the word "gifted" we do not mean to imply that the ability to write well is a gift; each an implication would be a gross misrepresentation of the writer as an artist. The writer is not given the ability to write, to express himself coherently; he must work for it. He is, broadly speaking, endowed with more acute perceptions, more highly developed sensibilities. What the individual writer makes of these "gifts" will determine his ultimate worth as an artist.

If he is willing to work hard, if he is willing to learn, not only from the mistakes of others, but from his own mistakes, if he is willing to learn to use intelligently all the tools of his trade; if, in short, he is willing to enter upon an apprenticeship which will end not after a foreseeable number of years, not after he has passed definable tests, not after he has achieved a definable minimum of proficiency, but only after he has realized an unattainable potential; if, in short, he is prepared to strive for the unattainable, then and only then may the writer lay claim to the name, artist.

CHESTERFIELD is the largest-selling cigarette in the country. To receive points which count toward the Inter-sorority athletic award given in the spring.

One of the highlights of the season is the Folk Dance Festival which is usually held in the Campus gym each year in March. Each sorority presents a dance representative of a different country, such as Brazil, Norway or Switzerland. These are judged for appropriateness, precision and the spirit of the dance and the country from which it came.

According to the constitution, "The purpose of this association is to provide recreation for the women of the college through participation in sports and recreational activities, and to foster friendly inter-school relationships through the sponsoring of playdays." The latest of these playdays was held last Saturday, and in spite of the unseasonably cold weather, it was a success. The University of Wisconsin, Ripon, Eau Claire State Teachers, and Marquette were among the schools represented.
