CADETT L.T. COLONEL, Bert Walker, Cadet Captain Robert De Lapp, and Cadet Captain Robert De Lapp, who were presented Distinguished Cadet awards at Whiting field yesterday.

The award is presented annually to the members of the senior class who have shown that they possess an unusual degree of the ability, initiative, and leadership qualities so essential to successful performance of duty as an Air Force Officer. If these men maintain their present academic standing and receive the Distinguished Military Graduate Award at graduation, the Air Force will give them special consideration to elect them to a cadet in the Air Force Reserve.

Commenting on the selection of the award winners, Mr. Kirk assured the students, "We are carrying on business as usual." He added that "The college is insured for the loss." This Saturday Lawrence will play football against Ripon for the 4th year in a row. In 1958 Ripon issued a challenge to Lawrence in football as did the University of Wisconsin Lawrence, however, did not have either a team or a facility to make this challenge. Soon after, Lawrence became an outstanding student of this, and they declined the challenge.

This year Lawrence played its first football game against Ripon and lost 24-4. The newspapers wrote the results as being due to a lack of Lawrence of men and experience. In general they made a joke of this unpreparedness. This success the rivalry to an even greater extent especially when the Lawrence were used re-

Seeger Returns To Campus

Pete Seeger, well known folk singer who visited the Lawrence campus last year, will return tonight, October 22.

Pete Seeger attended Harvard for approximately two years. When he decided to leave college, he took five course of study and instruments and proceeded to travel around the country with his banjo, exchanging songs with other folk singers.

In 1944 he left the Weavers, a musical group, to play the banjo and left for California. He titled his songs as "T foreclosure, On Top of Old Smokey" and "There Is No Such Thing As Christmas.

Pete Seeger has a wide range of performances over the country, including such places as M. I. T., Oberlin, and University of California. Pete will begin his concert at 8 p.m. in the Union. Tickets will be sold for 25 cents per person. They may be purchased at Building One, Lawrence Business Office and the Union.

The Lawrence moved three doors west in the Main Hall last semester, and in doing so, closed the door on 23 years in the northeast corner of the building. The change was unexpected, reported L. R. D. Room Three, in 1923.

The new headquarters, Room Six, lies between Mr. John Alford's Spanish classroom and the janitor's office.

Reason given for the move was that the former office was being used too much as a public passageway to warrant its continued use as a newspaper office, in the opinion of the staff. In the old room is locked and contains the graduation gowns, which will be held in another chapel as soon as the Music-Drama Sageway to warrant its continued use.

The move was not responsible for the 24-hour delay in the appearance of last week's Lawrence, stated Jim Beck, editor-in-chief. Late deadlines, combined with difficulties at the print shop, caused the delay, which is not expected to recur.

The move of the office served as the College Bookstore until 1910, when the business was taken over by Conkey's Bookstore.

CLOCK

Aside from a few minor difficulties, such as the fact that the electric clock stops every time the language turned off, Room Six is pleasing the staff. Other news from the new office is that Jack Anderson this week began laying which is not expected to be combined with difficulties at the print shop, causing the delay, which is not expected to recur.

The new office entered the College Bookstore until 1910, when the business was taken over by Conkey's Bookstore.

The Lawrence started in 1891 to serve students of the Lawrence School. The first issue was a two-page sheet, printed in red ink, and sold for a penny. The paper was published weekly until 1908, when it became a daily. The first editor was James C. Beck.

The paper's mission was to provide a voice for the students of the Lawrence School. It was a forum for discussion of campus events, student activities, and local news. The paper also served as a platform for students to express their views on issues of the day.

In 1910, the Lawrence merged with the Lawrence Advocate, a weekly newspaper, to become the Lawrence Advocate-Lawrence Times. The merger allowed the paper to expand its coverage and increase its circulation. The new paper was published five days a week.

The Lawrence continued to grow and evolve over the years, adapting to changes in technology and reader preferences. It has published various sections, including a sports section, a entertainment section, and a classified advertising section. The paper has also published special issues, such as the Lawrence Yearbook and the Lawrence Review.

Today, the Lawrence is a student-run newspaper that covers local news, sports, and campus events. It is a valuable resource for students, faculty, and alumni to stay informed about the Lawrence community.

The Lawrence's mission remains the same as it did in 1891: to provide a voice for the students of the Lawrence School and to serve as a forum for discussion of campus events, student activities, and local news.
'Porgy and Bess', 'Doctor Faustus' at Grinnell Festival

Art, music, drama, and literature will all be featured during the special three-day celebration at Grinnell College on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 25, 26, 27, as well as science, religion, and social science, under the general theme of "American Culture at Mid-Century."

An exhibition of 11 paintings from the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, New York City, has already been hung and will remain on view here until the end of February. At conversation-time, work done by the college's art department faculty will also be exhibited, as well as representative student art in progress.

Two musical events will be presented, "An Hour of Modern Music" Friday afternoon and a Friday evening program featuring portions of Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," "Coffee Cantata," and selections from the Honegger oratorio "King David."

GERSHWIN'S CHOICE

BETAS AND THETAS watch entertainment at the Beta House last Friday. Prizes were given for the Coolest Kat and the Boppiest Beta, judged by Beta Theta Pi. A contest showing the different styles of jitterbugging was won by Joan Gilkerson.

Betas Host Thetas

Last Friday night found Kappa Alpha Theta being entertained by Beta Theta Pi at an informal get together.

Admittance to the party was obtained only through the wearing of a costume which checked. Entertainment featured Ed Dowland at the keyboard; Dave Mulford as a blues singer; Joan Gilkerson, and Rock and Rollers Len Hall, Dave Mulford, Linda Kaiser, and Chuck Scruggs, singing a rendition of "Young Blood." After the entertainment the group marched downtown singing "You Must Be a Beta Theta Pi." A contest showing the different styles of jitterbugging was won by Joan Gilkerson. The coolest KAT, Wendy Crouch, and the Boppiest Beta, Fred Hughes, took the classiest dress awards. Dancing then concluded the evening.

Early Sunday morning Theta pledges were rolled out of bed by their big sisters, and escorted to Coleman all in their pajamas. Suspecting foul play, some of the pledges put up a sleepy resistance, but when they saw that it was a breakfast party the freshmen Thetas joined in with hearty appetites.

On Good Themes

In his talk, Mr. Schneider outlined the most effective way in which to construct a theme. The first point he made was to choose a topic which one has opinions and is prepared to prove or defend them. When the topic has been chosen, one should jot down ideas as they come and proceed from there to set up an outline.

"A good outline is the key to a good theme," says Mr. Schneider. "It is probably the hardest part of the job." He continued by citing some valuable points to remember. One should make sure to remember. One should make use of topic sentences, repeat key words and use transitional words to give the theme unity.

"When the outline is complete," he added, "the student is ready to give his theme solidity. He should argue points with himself, reason things out and formulate decisions with examples. He must work to enlarge his vocabulary by keeping in constant touch with the dictionary."

Science Majors Aid Teachers

There has been a new addition to the Lawrence College Science Department's Assistantship Program. This year, in addition to the Chemistry, Physics, and Geology student assistants, the project is being extended to cover the Biology department.

The general program of assistantships, a fairly common program in colleges throughout the country, is with a few minor exceptions the same in all of the science departments here at Lawrence.

Assistantships are granted to students who are working towards a specific science major or to others who have a strong background in science and are capable and responsible. Financial need is also taken into consideration. The assistantship is an hourly paid job, and the student is selected by the professors on the basis of their qualifications.

The assistants who aid with the teaching help the students taking a laboratory physics course by providing more individual attention to each student and his particular difficulties at the moment.

TEACHER LAB

In the Geology Department, Bob Thruve, a senior, is the only assistant. His duties include helping the professors with many tasks and also the full supervision of one lab section.

The Physics Department has three assistants: Dorothy Hur, David Benjamin, and Louise Siack, and Henry Hurley work with the assistants in the Biology Department.

One assistant had this to say about the program, "I think that being an assistant is an honor because of the recognition a student gains in his own field. It is invaluable experience because he learns more about his subject by helping to teach it to other people." Another assistant added, "Besides, it's fun!"
