Jeff Bowen and Dave Melt and presented their platforms. Bowen's platform contains proposi tions for changes in both attitude and policy of the SEC. Bowen proposes that the SEC should have a broad mandate to achieve its objectives. His attempt would be to accept its right and obligation to broaden its scope for the SEC presidency. Since last Fraternity's publication of two platforms in the Lawrentian, many events have transpired which have aimed at a universal stimulation for individual consideration of all candidates.

A previously unnoticed realm of student thought centered on student government has finally been aroused by the existence of “more-than-one” candidates for the SEC presidency. The candidates agree that the SEC needs technical changes and that the SEC should be more than a semifeudal status which he attributes to poor representation and a broader scope for the SEC. Bill MacArthur announced yesterday that the election would be decided on a plurality basis, owing to a defect of an amendment to the contrary earlier this year. This seems to be the most intelligent and practical way to handle an election in which there may be no absolute majority due to the number of candidates. Just my own feeling on the election; owing to the unusual possibilities of an extremely close three-way ballet, your vote can easily be the deciding one. Please consider the candidates themselves; we are not looking for anything more than leadership. A good leader with an enlightened student body to help him (or her) can put SEC back on the Lawrence map.

Things of this world are in so constant a flux, that nothing remains long in the same state. Thus> news, trade, power, change their stations; flourishing mighty cities come to ruin, and prove in time neglected theirs. Things of this world are in so constant a flux, so what is forever will change. This is the reason why Aristotle said it is hard to find a plausible solution for the problem. I therefore, will return to the thesis and attention to the two major points. The first point is that there are many other platforms. It is true that they are all so different, but I feel that Lawrence needs realism and strong leadership not the dumb and simple­ mindedness which would surely be the result of the write-in platform. This is a crucial time for the SEC and should be one of strengthening, not weakening.

The problem then seems to be in the representation of the Independents. Lawrence Independents have an organization. However, since they are indi­

It is true that the Lawrence Independent Association has only two votes in the SEC. It is in itself a proportional rep­
