Poll of Students Records Large Amount of Cheating

By M. C. VANDER WAL

Recently a motion was passed by SEC approving an academic honor system in theory, and setting up a six-member committee to work out the mechanics of such a system. This idea was also discussed and approved by the Committee on Administration. The action came as a result of a poll taken among Lawrence students. Led by Doug Grims, an SEC committee devised an honor system questionnaire and divided the campus into five living units of approximately 50 students, distributing one questionnaire to every third student. Nearly 200 of these questionnaires were returned to the committee for tabulation.

One of the most influential factors apparent from the poll was that nearly one-half of the students questioned reported having seen cheating at Lawrence this year, and over one-third admitted engaging in academic dishonesty; yet, only one-fifth expressed a desire to report such cheating to their professors under the present system.

FRANKS SEES MARKET IDEA

A NEW NEGOTIATING MEDIUM

By AL SALZSTEIN

"The countries of the Common Market have a hold of a creative idea, new in the world, and they are trying its use. This creative idea, Sir Oliver Franks, chairman of Lloyd's Bank Limited of London, and a renowned expert on British foreign policy, referred to is the six member nations to solve common problems. This idea, he feels, is a new approach to the solving of world problems and could "drastically affect the dealings of the free world within a short span of time."

Franks spoke before a small but enthusiastic gathering in the chapel on Friday, March 30. His speech was the fifth in the Appleton and the World Community series sponsored by the college and the Appleton Post-Crescent, a local newspaper.

The talk dealt with the application of the method that is presently helping the member nations solve their problems. He stressed that this method, if more universally applied, might shed new light on some of the most vexing economic dilemma of the day.

Political Aims, Ends

The market, Sir Oliver noted, "is an economic experiment, but its aims and ends are political." The organization was founded to collectively improve the standard of living of the nations, but Sir Oliver feels the nations have a hold of a great idea if, spoken with a united voice.

The ultimate end of the union, the speaker felt, was an important issue. The question is, "Can the member nations solve their problems that cannot be solved by methods of diplomacy."

Sir Oliver stated that the six member nations. For this reason, Sir Oliver believes it can and should be applied to other nations and problems. Sir Oliver concluded: "These are people. Britain thinks it worthwhile to join. They are trying to make a political community of West Europe. There are no quick answers, but the movement is interesting, different and quite exciting."

The new method, he indicated, has not met the test of time, but has shown the world a new technique which has already proved successful to the six member nations. For this reason, Sir Oliver believes it can and should be applied to other nations and problems. Sir Oliver concluded: "These are people. Britain thinks it worthwhile to join. They are trying to make a political community of West Europe. There are no quick answers, but the movement is interesting, different and quite exciting."

Beloit Trackmen Top Vikes
In Last Indoor Test

By JOHN KLINKERT

A strong Beloit track team defeated the Vikes 65-18 in a dual indoor meet at Beloit March 23. The Vikes were hampered by injuries and the loss of a key man, Roger Niel, a pole-vaulter, and George Dunn, high jumper, both hurt their ankles the week of the meet. Joel Ungrud, the Vike's best hurdl er of last year, is not out for track this season.

Seven men gained points for the Vikes, Dave Peterson, with a toss of 39 Yd., placed first in the shot put, and Carl Cederlund took third in the one-mile run. Dan Mcelroy took third in the long jump and Mark Miller was third in the pole vault.

Coach Davis considers his team this year mainly one of rebuilding. In the next few seasons he will be counting heavily on this year's freshmen track team, which he believes is good. However, he should know more about the fresh after their meets with Beloit and Ripon.

Today at 1:30 the Vike fresh trackmen compete in an indoor invitational meet at the Alexander gymnasium. This will be an open meet, the only restriction being that any contestant must have notified Coach Davis by Thursday evening, after which Coach Davis will make two teams of the entrants.

Saturday, May 18, will witness the presentation of the high school track and field championship. Last year won by Joel Ungrud. A bus will leave the chapel for the gym at 1:00.
